Court Order Temporarily Cracks D. C. Milk Policy

Holtzoff Issues Restrainer Sought By Dairy; Arlington County Limits Sales

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

The District's imminent closed-door policy on sale of "outside" milk in Washington swung open a crack last night, only a few hours before it went into effect at midnight.

District Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff granted a 10-day order restraining the District from halting sale by Wakefield-Model Farms Dairy of "outside" milk in the Washington area.

The ban will apply, however, starting today to Embassy and Highland Farms Dairies, which were not parties to the restraining order, Judge Holtzoff ruled. Health Department inspectors were scheduled to begin policing separation of District-inspected and "outside" milk in those plants this morning.

At the same time, Arlington County decided to limit sale of milk in the county to that from farms inspected by the District, Arlington or Alexandria, pending further study. County Manager A. T. Lundberg said the policy was effective immediately.

On the heels of the Arlington ruling, the Arlington Better Government League last night issued a statement saying that "the county health officer should immediately reconsider his ruling before any dairy now supplying Arlington is stopped from selling milk.

"Milk which has been acceptable to thousands in Arlington for the past eight years does not become a health menace overnight," the statement added.

A third action in the rapidly changing milk market situation was on Capitol Hill. Senator Guy M. Gillette (D., Iowa) received a reply to the questions he had directed to the District Commissioners on their stand concerning milk regulations.

In the four-page letter, the Commissioners stated there was "an adequate supply" of D. C.-inspected milk available for Washington consumers.

Stand Continues

The District heads told Gillette, chairman of a Senate Agriculture subcommittee on food, that their present stand on admission of milk continues:

1 "Milk to be supplied to District consumers would come from dairy farms licensed and operated in accordince with the Milk Act of 1925." The act requires inspection by District officials of farms supplying the milk.

2. "That milk or cream may be brought into the District of Columbia from unlicensed sources

Shaw Takes Turn For Worse; End Is Feared Near

AYOT ST. LAWRENCE, Eng., Oct. 31 (U.P.)—George Bernard Shaw has taken a sudden turn for the worse and was reported "very weak" at his home here tonight.

Lady Astor, life-long friend of the 94-year-old playwright who visited him for an hour today, said: "I am afraid he hasn't long to live. We expect him to go at any moment."

The famed Irish author suffered a relapse a few days ago. He had been recovering from two operations for a fractured thigh bone and an old kidney ailment.

Post Want Ad Sells Unneeded Furniture

Mrs. M. Ratner of Illinois Avenue wanted to get rid of an unneeded love seat and lounge chair. She placed a two-line want ad in The Washington Post, advertising these items for sale, and as a result, quickly sold them both.

Mrs. Ratner says, "I've been using The Post for years, and always get good results."

A small Post want ad is a rapid and low-cost way to dispose of furniture you no longer need. And it's a convenient way, too. All you have to do is call NAtional 4200 and ask for Classified. Do it now.

34,000 Attend First 3 Days Of Faith Rally

Washington's six-day Festival of Faith reached its mid-point yesterday as Protestant churchgoers heard visiting ministers at more than 40 churches and civic meetings.

Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary of the sponsoring Washington Federation of Churches, estimated a 34,000 attendance for meetings during the first three days of the preaching mission.

Yesterday's highlight was a gathering of lawyers and jurists addressed by the Rev. Ralph W. Sockman, pastor of Christ Methodist Church, New York City.

More than 400 persons attended the luncheon at the Hotel Statler, including Fred M. Vinson, Chief Justice of the United States, Associate Justice Tom C. Clark of the Supreme Court, and Seth W. Richardson, newly appointed chairman of the Subversive Activities Control Board. Judge Bolitha Laws, chief of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, presided.

Dr. Sockman called on his audience "to take the witness chair. The World Council of Churches realizes the pulpit cannot save the world. We are therefore stressing the lay witness of the church.

Appeals To Free Men

"The church must present an authority which appeals to free men," Dr. Sockman said. "The next two decades, I predict, will not be as congenial to authoritarian religion as the last two decades have been. The church that can capture the needs of our education system must be a church that can give a reason for the faith that is in us.

"The lawyers can serve the Christian cause by endeavoring to bring our old moral commandments up to new social trends."

Another capacity crowd greeted the Rev. Robert J. McCracken at the noonday service at the Episcopal Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G st. nw.

12 Ohio Races In Congress Will Be Close

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 31.—Close races are in progress in more than half of Ohio's 22 Congressional districts with the outcome apparently keyed to the Taft-Ferguson feature race for the Senate.

Mathematics of the situation seem to favor Ohio's House Democrats at least holding their own if the vote in the blue-chip Senate contest is at all close either way.

If Senator Robert A. Taft runs far out front, which now appears doubtful, Republicans stand to pick up a top of six Democratic House seats, including the Democratic seat at-large.

If Taft trails his Democratic opponent, Joseph T. Ferguson, in a mid-century upset not yet ruled out, Democrats could gain as many as seven narrowly-held Republican House seats.

At least that's how it looks on paper, and it explains why both sides are laying claims to a Congressional seat gain from Ohio.

Fact is that 12 Ohio districts

U. N. Will Sell Stamps, Expects $217,000 Profit

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 31 (NYHT).—The United Nations decided today to enter the postage stamp business and anticipated a $217,000 profit from philatelists the first year.

The Assembly's budget committee instructed Secretary General Lie to sign an agreement with the United States to set up a U. N. Postal Administration. The postal address of the U. N. headquarters district would be "United Nations, N. Y.'

The United States Postoffice Department would perform the usual postage services, using U. N. postage stamps printed at U. N. expense.

Chest Drive Up to $1,907,004; 44.77% of Goal Reached

The rising red fluid in the Community Chest thermometer was less than six points away from the halfway mark yesterday—44.77 percent of the $4,260,000 goal having been reached.

The Red Feather fluid rose 14 points in one week as $349,653 more in contributions brought the total to $1,907,004.39.

However, at the general report luncheon yesterday in the Washington Hotel, Hugh K. Duffield, chairman of the campaign, reminded the unit commanders that 156,866 people still need to be provided for in the Washington area.

Entertainment was provided by the United States Marine Band Symphony Orchestra and Jane Heffner, who played the lead in "The Red Mill" on Broadway, sang two numbers.

Honor guests at the luncheon, in observance of Armed Forces Day, were officers and men from nearby service posts and hospitals. The local chest has given $72,000 to Associated Services to the Armed Forces, a newly-created organization.

Standings reported by the nine units at the luncheon were: Government—over the halfway line—with $945,831.35, or 56.21 percent; Business I, $717,799.08, or 43.72 percent; Business II, $58,579.32, or 24.09 percent; Special Solicitations, $99,029.39, or 31.79 percent; Alexandria, $29,359.59, or 31.25 percent; Arlington County, $16,261.45, or 26.10 percent; Fairfax County, $13,124.39, or 33.23 percent; Montgomery County, $18,730.29, or 15.74 percent, and Prince Georges County, $8,289.53, or 15.94 percent.

British Plane Falls in Fog; 28 Die, 2 Live

3 U. S. Residents Victims; Liner Hits Pipes at London Airport, Explodes

LONDON, Oct. 31 (AP).—A British European Airways plane hunting a safe haven crashed into a pile of pipe beyond the end of a runway at London Airport tonight and exploded, killing 28 of the 30 persons aboard. Three of the passengers lived in the United States.

BEA identified the Americans as Ernest Friedenheim of New York City, a United States citizen, and P. Levy of Chicago, a native of South Africa. A third person killed was Miss Judith Lauterbach, a British citizen of New York City.

Two survivors were found alive in the wreckage. They were identified as Stewardess Alice Steen and William Perkins, a passenger, both of London. Others killed were of French, British and Irish nationality, taking advantage of BEA's 10-pound ($28) London-to-Paris "bargain" rate.

The two-engine British European Airways Viking, carrying a crew of four and 26 passengers, was hunting a safe haven from ceiling-zero fog. It had been en route from Paris to Northolt Airport, but had been diverted to London Airport because of the weather.

Two weeks ago a BEA twin-engine Dakota crashed in this area and claimed the same number of lives. It hurtled into a London suburban back yard, killing 28 of the 29 aboard. The worst crash of the London district occurred in 1948, when a Swedish airliner and Royal Air Force transport collided, killing 39.

Parts of the plane were scattered over hundreds of yards. One of the engines was found a quarter-mile from the main debris. Rescue work was hampered by the heavy fog.

The two survivors miraculously escaped death. Their injuries were described as serious but not critical.

The plane missed the No. 1 runway in a ground controlled (radar) landing in autumn's worst fog and hurtled into the stack of pipes. Fire started and the plane soon became a blazing mass. Fire engines had to grope their way slowly toward the wreckage.

The plane crashed shortly after 8 p. m. (3 p. m. Eastern Standard Time). It was more than an hour before the 28 bodies were recovered. The two survivors, both Londoners, were taken to a nearby Ashford Hospital.

After Protests

NPA Eases Nondefense Building Curb

The National Production Authority, in the face of protests from the building industry, yesterday backed down on its threat to halt future nondefense building even if construction has been started.

The action followed vigorous protests from the Associated General Contractors of America, whose managing director, H. E. Foreman, said one clause of NPA's ban on construction of amusement places was more drastic than "anything in World War II."

The provision in question declared that NPA will follow the policy, whenever necessary in the defense effort, of banning nonessential construction "even though its commencement at the present time is not forbidden."

NPA Administrator William H. Harrison yesterday declared the agency "has no intention of adopting a policy of halting construction which may then be under way."

The disputed section of the regulation has been amended, Harrison said, to read as follows:

"In the event that increasing material shortages clearly indicate the necessity for such action in the national interest, NPA may further limit the commencement of construction of additional types of projects which do not support the defense effort or increase the Nation's productive capacity."

In a statement, Harrison voiced his regret that the language of the original order had "caused concern in the construction industry."

He emphasized that NPA will continue to follow a policy of not interfering with production and construction "unless that action is clearly indicated by defense needs."

The amended language of the order makes it clear that NPA does not intend to issue any orders which will halt construction which may be under way at the time, but aides of the NPA chief said this does not preclude the possibility that such a step may be taken if conditions become so critical as to warrant it.

Valentine Foresees Controls for Years

The prospect of economic controls stretching on for long years—a longer time than those in effect during World War II—was raised yesterday by the Nation's stabilization chief, Alan Valentine.

In his first public appearance since becoming head of the Economic Stabilization Agency, Valentine said that a defense production program and controls had to be formulated of a kind that could endure "not for four years but

Overpowers Nurse

John Boettiger, Ex-Son-in-Law Of Roosevelt, Leaps to Death

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (U.P.)—John Boettiger, 50, the former son-in-law of Franklin D. Roosevelt, overpowered a male nurse and dived to his death at sunrise today from a seventh floor hotel window.

Boettiger succeeded in killing himself after failing in a suicide attempt last Saturday when he took an overdose of sleeping pills which made him unconscious for two days. His physicians tried to persuade him to enter a psychiatric hospital yesterday but he refused.

The former newspaperman, who wooed and won the late President's only daughter, Anna, while covering the White House for the Chicago Tribune, left two notes to his third wife, the former Mrs. Virginia Lunn. One said: "Good night, darling. We love you."

At the time of her husband's death, Mrs. Boettiger was flying here from California because of his first suicide attempt and to be with him on their first wedding anniversary Wednesday. She shrieked, "Oh, no!" and fell sobbing to her knees when told the news at La Guardia airport shortly before noon.

In Berkeley, Calif., Anna Roosevelt said her mother, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, telephoned her early this morning to tell her of Boettiger's suicide. She divorced Boettiger August 1, 1949 after 14 years of marriage. They had one child, John, now 11.

"John had been depressed for some time," she said. "Naturally, even though there is a divorce, I feel very deeply."

Joseph Payne, a 24-year-old nurse who struggled in vain to prevent Boettiger's death plunge, told police the story of his patient's last hours.

Savage Red Attack Halts Yanks' Drive

U. S. Force Held Up Only 32 Miles Short Of Manchurian Line; Foe Is Beaten Off

SEOUL (Wednesday), Nov. 1 (AP).—A lightning dash by an American column up North Korea's west coast to the Manchurian border was halted last night by a savage Red counterattack.

The Reds stopped an armored column of the United States Twenty-fourth Division 32 miles short of its border objective and prevented the column from making an intended all-night advance. It planned to return to the attack today.

3 Red Planes Downed In Attack on B-26s

WITH FIFTH AIR FORCE, Korea (Wednesday), Nov. 1 (U.P.). Four Russian-type Yak planes attacked a flight of B-26 bombers and a T-6 observation plane 5 miles east of Sinuiju today.

A Fifth Air Force spokesman said a B-26 shot down one Yak and a flight of F-51 Mustangs shot down two more.

On the northeast coast of Korea, where another American column was within 51 miles of the border, Maj. Gen. Edward M. Almond said his Tenth Army Corps would attack soon in strength to determine just how many Chinese Communist reinforcements stand in the way.

The Red counterattack in the northwest, which cost the enemy 100 casualties, was made northwest of Chongju, captured Monday by the British Commonwealth Twenty-seventh Brigade.

Reds Active on Right Flank

On the right flank of the United States Twenty-fourth Division, where one South Korean division was cut to pieces last week, there were fresh reports today of Red activity. The South Korean First Division beat off the sixth strong Communist counterattack in the past 48 hours near Unsan. It is 37 miles northeast of Chongju.

A First Division spokesman said that 1000 Reds on horseback were reported moving south on a road toward Unsan.

For the second night in a row, enemy planes appeared over an area to the immediate rear of fighting in the northwest. No bombs were dropped last night. A few fell the night before. The Reds claimed in a communique

Chinese Reds Say 'Bandits' Harass Area Near Korea

Hong Kong (Wednesday), Nov. 1 (AP).—Red Peiping news dispatches today claimed the Communists are encountering serious "bandit" trouble in Manchuria across from North Korea.

The dispatches asserted anti-Communist guerrillas have been on a concerted campaign of destruction and sabotage in Manchuria since the Korean war started last June 25.

One dispatch said Red "security forces" had killed 681 guerrillas but that "bandits" still were active in the Manchurian provinces bordering Korea.

(That may become the stated Communist China reason for moving an estimated 500,000 troops to Manchuria, from where republic of Korea army officers charge at least two divisions of Red Chinese have joined the Communist North Korean forces in the battle against United Nations troops for Korea).

New Blood Transfusion Method Saving Lives at Walter Reed

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Physicians at Walter Reed Hospital here are saving patients' lives with quick, full transfusion of blood directly into their arteries, it was reported yesterday.

The faster acting, more dangerous arterial transfusions are used when patients in critical states from shock or heavy bleeding fail to respond to the traditional transfusions given into the veins.

Brig. Gen. Samuel F. Seeley, chief of the Army hospital's surgical service, reported the transfusion methods yesterday, at a meeting of the Annual Congress of Anesthetists, at Miami Beach.

Dr. Seeley reported that arterial transfusion has proved effective even with plasma.

In an earlier discussion of the artery transfusion technique, Dr. Seeley said the method was readily adaptable to battlefield situations. He envisioned transfusion tents with rows of high-hanging tanks of whole blood or plasma, ready to be piped to the arteries of victims of blast amputations and other often fatal war wounds.

An even greater potential role of arterial transfusion, though still to be proved, may be its use on victims of coronary thrombosis, or blood-clotting in the arteries

The two conditions in which arterial transfusions have most regularly proved lifesaving, Dr. Seeley reported, were those of hemorrhagic and traumatic shock. The former is caused by gross loss of blood, either apparent or internally concealed; the latter may variously be caused by extensive freezing, or burning, or external violence to the intestines or large muscle groups.

U. N. Group Votes to End Ban on Spain

FLUSHING, N. Y., Oct. 31 (U.P.). The United Nations' special political committee voted today to lift the four-year-old boycott against Generalissimo Francisco Franco's Spanish regime.

The 1946 resolution called for withdrawal of ambassadors and ministers from Madrid and barred the Franco regime from membership in U.N. specialized agencies, such as the World Health Organization and the Food and Agriculture Organization.

The vote was 37-10 with 12 abstentions, a comfortable margin over the two-thirds that will be needed for final approval by the full General Assembly.

The United States voted for lifting the boycott against Franco, as did all but four Latin-American countries. The 10 negative votes were registered by the five-nation Soviet bloc, plus Yugoslavia, Guatemala, Uruguay, Mexico and Israel.

U. S. Battles Red Opposition To Lie in U. N.

Austin Calls Keeping Him a Sign of Unity Against Aggression

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP).—Warren R. Austin fought today to extend Secretary General Trygve Lie's term for three years as a sign of U. N. unity against aggression.

Andrei Y. Vishinsky countered with a denunciation of Lie as an American "stooge" and declared the Soviet Union would not recognize Lie or deal with him if he is maintained in office. Most Russian business is conducted through Lie's assistants, so such a boycott would have little practical effect.

The Assembly adjourned at 5:56 p. m. EST. It will meet again at 10:45 a. m. Wednesday and a vote on extending Lie's term is expected around noon Wednesday.

The fight took place in the 60-nation General Assembly. Lie, who usually sits on the rostrum during the sessions, left his seat when the debate began.

United States Delegate Austin told the Assembly Lie was vetoed in the Security Council by the Russians to punish him for carrying out Security Council decisions to resist aggression in Korea. The United States and 14 other countries have put a resolution before the Assembly to add three years to Lie's term, which ends next February 2.

"We cannot permit our efforts (for peace through collective security) to be undermined, sabotaged or attacked indirectly by a veto of the man who had the courage to take his stand against aggression in Korea on the twenty-fifth of June," Austin said.

Soviet Delegate Vishinsky attacked the resolution for an extension of Lie's term as a violation of the Charter; said there could be no action in the Assembly because the Security Council has not made a recommendation and then turned his guns on Lie.

Vishinsky, Russia's Foreign Minister, said Lie has "no international tact" and had ranged himself on the side of one power against another.

Plans Halted By Deadlock On German Units' Size

Ministers Refer Question to Council And Committee; Quick Solution Asked

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

North Atlantic Treaty Defense Ministers yesterday concluded their three-day conference after postponing plans to form a unified western European armed force.

They delayed action on establishment of a supreme commander and approval of the proposed integrated command setup pending settlement of differences between France and the other powers over the German rearmament problem.

French fears of a resurgent Reich—reflected in unwillingness to accept what American leaders consider the only militarily feasible basis for employing German soldiers in the anti-Communist force—were responsible for the impasse.

Pentagon chiefs insist on formation of German divisions, while France wants only battalion-size units under control of a sort of western European union yet to be formed.

Council Gets Dispute

As disclosed yesterday in The Washington Post, the representatives of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization reached a deadlock on the latter question but agreed to refer the vital issue to the NATO Military Committee and Council of Deputies for a hoped-for quick settlement.

Secretary of Defense George Marshall, formally announcing this formula for solving the all-important German troops question, said both groups are holding preliminary meetings immediately.

The military committee—composed of top uniformed chiefs of the 12 NATO nations—got together right after the fourth session of the Defense Committee adjourned at 5:30 p. m. yesterday. Members of the permanent Council of Deputies—representatives of the Pact Foreign Ministers—meet this morning here. America's Charles Spofford, chairman of the group, and many other members are in Washington.

This device—rather than simply reporting a failure to agree to the NATO Council of Foreign Ministers—was proposed by the Italian Defense Minister, Randolpho Pacciardi, it was learned.

Marshall and other defense chiefs expressed hope that the problem can be settled "within a few weeks" so that the min-

'June' Smothers Bright October, Sets Record

The thermometer [illegible] its record-breaking peak of 85 degrees so much yesterday it will return to the 80's today, the Weather Bureau reported.

Previous high for October 31 was in 1946, when the mercury hit 84 degrees. There may have been others before 1871, but they weren't recorded.

The weatherman foresaw "another day like today" when asked what the morrow held. The sun should be out all day, with very little wind.

For the first time since summer, the policemen turned out in light-weight jackets yesterday. Inspector George R. Wallrodt, in charge of clothing and equipment, ordered the uniform change on a day-to-day basis until cooler temperatures return.

The Weather Bureau's forecaster, who said the weather will turn cooler "toward the end of the week," said the autumnal shenanigans are called various things at various times.

In the summer, he said, such weather would be known as a heat wave. In October, it's called Indian Summer. In the winter, it's a January thaw.

He recalled that less than a month ago, on October 2, the thermometer read 87 degrees. And only five days ago, October 27, it was 39 degrees.

Parties Begin Final Drives for Elections

By The Associated Press

Leaders of both major parties opened the throttle yesterday in a final week drive to sway the voters in next Tuesday's election of a new Congress and of 32 State Governors.

Democratic National Chairman William M. Boyle, jr., led off for his party with a broadcast speech that will be followed on Saturday night by President Truman's campaign broadcast from St. Louis.

For the Republicans, who say they haven't the money to match the Democrats' radio time, National Chairman Guy George Gabrielson speaks Wednesday night at Charleston, W. Va., and continues on Thursday a border swing that will take him into Kentucky.

Each side was making the usual victory claim although contests looked so close in a number of States that a slight swing of voter sentiment either way could be decisive.

Kirwan Predicts Victory

Representative Michael J. Kirwan of Ohio, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Committee, predicted a "decisive" Democratic victory on the basis of a "careful survey of every district in the United States where there is any reason to believe there is a close contest."

Kirwan said the Democrats not only will hold their present House majority but also stand "an excellent chance of reversing previous off-year election trends by increasing our Democratic membership."

The corresponding Republican group forecast an exactly opposite result last week. It said the GOP definitely would increase its strength and might capture 55 or 60 Democratic seats, enough to take control of the House.

Democrats now hold a 259-169 margin in the House. Their Senate edge is 34 to 42.

Ohio Investigation Asked

In Ohio, Joseph T. Ferguson, Democratic candidate for Senator, charged that "illegal corporate contributions" are being made to the reelection campaign of Republican Senator Robert A. Taft. Ferguson called for a Federal investigation.

Taft's campaign chairman, Willis Gradison, said his forces would welcome an investigation. "Everything in our campaign is as clean as a hound's tooth," Gradison said, adding:

"Any such investigation should first start with the millions of dollars raised by the CIO-PAC, AFL and other unions all over the country to be used in Ohio to defeat Senator Taft."

Ferguson's call for an inquiry was sent to Chairman Gillette (D., Ia.) of the Senate campaign investigating subcommittee.

Gillette said earlier at Cherokee, Ia., that it may be too late for the subcommittee to investigate Ohio campaign spending before the election.

Illinois Race Costly

Meanwhile, reports to the Secretary of the Senate yesterday showed that more than $100,000 has been spent in the Illinois contest between Senate majority leader Scott W. Lucas, Democrat, and his Republican opponent, former Representative Everett M. Dirksen.

There is a $25,000 top limit on expenditures by any Senate candidate but some campaign costs, such as travel and personal expenses are exempted.

Lucas listed total contributions of $66,796 and expenditures of $55,768, but said $40,897 of the expenditures were exempt.

Dirksen reported contributions of $53,863 and expenditures of $51,646, of which he said $33,974 were exempt.

Other campaign reports yesterday included:

SOUTH DAKOTA—Representative Francis Case, Republican, seeking the Senate seat, listed contributions of $6108 and expenditures of $6336, of which he said $654 were exempt.

IOWA — Albert J. Loveland, Democrat, opposing Senator Hickenlooper, Republican, listed contributions of $2474 and expenditures of $3715. Loveland formerly was Undersecretary of Agriculture. Hickenlooper reported contributions of $4425 and expenditures of $5990.

KANSAS—Paul Aiken, Democrat, listed contributions of $23,547 and expenditures of $0330.

UTAH—Wallace F. Bennett, Republican opposing Senator Elbert D. Thomas, Democrat, listed contributions of $6750 and expenditures of $3171.

Illinois Stop By President Is Arranged

President Truman will land in Illinois on his way to St. Louis, Mo., for his only speech of the 1950 campaign Saturday night, it was announced at the White House yesterday.

The presidential airplane Independence will put down at the Scott Air Force Base in Illinois, which is east of the Mississippi River, about 20 miles from St. Louis. Illinois is the scene of a red-hot battle between Senator Scott Lucas, Democratic floor leader, and the Republican aspirant for his seat, Everett Dirksen.

White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said, however, that there were "no political significance" to the landing in Illinois—that the President has never used the Scott Field and the Air Force people have been eager to have him do so."

Ross, asked about reports that Mr. Truman will announce Saturday night that he is calling a special session of Congress, said that the President had not yet made up his mind about a special session.

Mr. Truman will take off from Washington at 2 p. m. Saturday. He will speak in St. Louis that night at 9 o'clock local time (10 o'clock Washington time). He is scheduled to take off for Washington after voting Tuesday morning at Independence and expects to be back here about 3 p. m.

Hanley Story Leads to Suit By Rep. Macy

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP).—Representative W. Kingsland Macy (R., N. Y.), who received the "Hanley letter," today sued the World-Telegram and Sun for $250,000, charging libel.

Macy's lawyer, John M. Greene, said the newspaper charged Macy "with attempting to use the now famous letter written to Mr. Macy by Lieut. Gov. Joseph R. Hanley to procure for himself the nomination for United States Senator.

"The statement made by the New York World-Telegram and Sun crediting Mr. Macy with trying to use the Hanley letter as a weapon to secure any political preferment for himself was a malicious lie and Mr. Macy felt that it could not go unchallenged," the attorney's statement said.

Hanley Race Studied By Committee Agents

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP).—United States Senate investigators have begun a secret probe here into charges that Lieut. Gov. Joe R. Hanley was "paid off" to give up his quest of the governorship and run for United States Senator instead.

The inquiry was started yesterdy by aides of the Senate subcommittee on elections, headed by Senator Guy M. Gillette (D., Iowa).

The left-wing American Labor Party had requested the investigation.

Crux of the inquiry is a letter the Republican Lieutenant Governor wrote to Representative W. Kingsland Macy, Suffolk County Republican leader.

Hanley said in the letter:

"If I will consent to take the nomination to the United States Senate, I am definitely assured of being able to clean up my financial obligations within 90 days."

The letter was written after a conference between Hanley and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, who stepped in as the GOP candidate for Governor as Hanley yielded to him and stepped out as the leading contender.

Democrats have charged the letter was evidence of a "payoff" to clear the way for Dewey, who changed his mind at the last minute about being a candidate for reelection.

Dewey and Hanley have denied any "payoff" or anything else improper was indicated in the letter.

French Ease Pressure on Frontier Post

SAIGON, Vietnam, Indo-China, Oct. 31 (AP).—French counterattacks were reported today to have eased pressure by the Communist-led Viet Minh on the isolated northwest frontier post of Laokay.

A French spokesman said one thrust dislodged the rebels from heights overlooking the Laokay airfield Sunday and the aerial supply service to Laokay resumed operation after a 48-hour lapse.

In another counterattack Sunday, the French recaptured the village of Phonop, about a mile and a half east of Laokay, the spokesman said.

French Foreign Legionnaires faced rebel forces before Fort Pennequin, the principal French position on the east bank of the Red River. The fort is about a mile from Laokay, on the west bank. The spokesman said there is no question of evacuating Laokay. Though some Viet Minh units are known to have crossed the river. The bulk remained on the east side, subject to French aerial attack and shelling.

A dispatch from Hanoi reported the first American military air supplies have reached some of the quieter sectors of the North Indo-Chinese front. Jeeps, trucks and guns made in the United States have been distributed to scattered French-commanded Viet-Namese battalions on the Red River Delta's southern defense line. The jeeps and trucks bear red, white and blue stickers with the words: "For the Mutual Defense of the U. S. A."

The French forces north of the delta were reported to have received none of the goods so far.

12 Congress Races in Ohio Will Be Close

were captured in 1948 by slippery margins of less than 55 percent of the vote, seven by Republicans and five by Democrats. Four of the seven Republicans fell below 52.5 percent of the vote. None of the five district Democrats won by so slim a margin.

The Democratic at-large seat of Representative Stephen M. Young, most likely to swing with the tide of the Senate race, was won by a scant 52 percent edge, however, and probably will swing to former Representative George H. Bender (R.) if Taft wins.

Each of the 12 marginally held district seats has become a happy hunting ground for both parties. But on the 1948 figures, the five Democrats could stand to lose more votes than the Republicans without forfeiting their seats.

Labor's concentrated drive in Ohio, whether or not Senator Taft survives the storm, could stem the normally heavy Democratic casualties in an Ohio off year.

In fact, some local prophets think it possible for Taft to win by a moderate margin without upsetting Democratic control of the Ohio delegation.

One of the most vulnerable House Republican seats is held by Representative Walter E. Brehm by a margin of only 50.8 percent of the vote. Charges of office kickbacks, which he calls "cockeyed," have enlivened the race.

Democrats say their best chance to win is in the Eleventh District. Mell G. Underwood, Brehm's opponent, is the son of a Federal judge and was formerly executive secretary to Governor Frank Lausche.

Republicans think their best chance is in the Ninth District, won by Representative Thomas H. Burke (D.) by only 53.8 percent of the vote. Here, former Congressman Homer A. Ramey (R.) is trying to win his old seat back. Republicans were cheered when former State Welfare Director Frazier Reams entered the race as an independent, figuring it would split Burke's vote. But Democrats insist Burke's vote will hold fairly solid and Reams will take votes from Ramey.

From the old gerrymandered Twenty-second District, which encircles the city of Cleveland, comes word that Mrs. Frances P. Bolton (R.) has a tight race on her hands. The district once was solidly bluestocking, but now has more low-income votes. Mrs. Bolton polled 54.7 percent of the vote last time. Her Democratic opponent, Chat Paterson, is conducting a vigorous, doorbell-ringing campaign.

Another Republican incumbent, the Fifth District's Representative Cliff Clevenger, who won by only 52.1 percent in 1948, is reported in the fight of his life. His Democratic opponent is Dan Batt, whom Clevenger nosed out last time by 2874 votes.

Also believed in some trouble is Representative Charles H. Elston (R.) in the First District. Elston polled only 51.6 percent of the vote in 1948. He's opposed by Representative Rollin H. Everett, a former Cincinnati city hall reporter.

Before Truman took Ohio from Dewey in 1948, Republicans controlled Ohio's House delegation, 19 to 4. Eight of Ohio's Republican seats toppled in that election, and Democrats now control the delegation by a tipsy 12 to 11.

Here are the other relatively close districts, with the 1948 margins of victory:

Twelfth District, Representative John M. Vorys (R.), 52.1 percent. Vorys is opposed by John W. Guy (D.).

Sixteenth District, John McSweeney (D.), 52.6 percent. McSweeney is opposed by Frank T. Bow (R.).

Sixth District, James G. Polk (D.), 53.1 percent. Polk is opposed by former Republican Congressman Edward O. McCowen.

Eighth District: Dr. Frederick J. Smith (R.), who won by 54.5 percent, is not a candidate. Jackson E. Betts (R.) is opposed by W. Dexter Hazen.

Seventeenth District, J. Harry McGregor (R.), 52.9 percent. McGregor is opposed by Robert W. Levering (D.), an assistant Ohio Attorney general.

Dalai Lama Appeals To India for Asylum

NEW DELHI, India, Oct. 31 (U.P.)—The boy Dalai Lama of Tibet has asked the Indian government for asylum for himself and his government and is preparing to flee his capital to escape the invading Chinese Communists, well-informed sources said today.

Latest advices said the Communists were within 150 miles of Lhasa, the capital, advancing slowly through heavy snowstorms along the age-old silk caravan route from China.

The report that the 15-year-old Dalai Lama, spiritual and temporal ruler of the little Himalayan country, was preparing to flee came as the Chinese Communists replied to the strong protest of Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru against their invasion. Well-informed sources said that the Peiping government told Nehru:

1. Tibet is an integral part of China. The invasion is a domestic operation.

2. The invasion was ordered as a security measure to defend Chinese territory and thwart "military intervention by foreign powers."

3. The Communist government still intends to settle its problems with Tibet through peaceful negotiation, and awaits the arrival of a Tibetan mission that is now in India.

Nehru, who has long sponsored the admittance of the Chinese Communists to United Nations membership, expressed his "surprise and regret" to Peiping last Friday at reports of the invasion. Nehru is his own external affairs minister.

The Communists made their reply through Sardar Pannikar, Indian Ambassador in Peiping. The reply seemed undoubtedly a rejection of Nehru's protest. Informants said Nehru would call meeting of the cabinet foreign affairs committee to draft a second communication to Peiping.

Frontier dispatches said that the spearheads of the 100,000-man invasion force were meeting only token resistance by scattered bands of ill-armed Tibetan border guards and troops.

Tibetan exiles, including nobles who found sanctuary in China after opposing the Dalai Lama's government, are lending their full support to the invaders, frontier dispatches said, and are with the Tibetan "liberation force" that accompanies the Chinese.

McGrath Ruling

U.S. to Admit 'Nominal' Totalitarians

Attorney General McGrath has formally ruled that "nominal membership" in a totalitarian party will not bar an alien from entering this country temporarily.

McGrath put this ruling and his definition of "nominal membership" in a letter to the Secretary of State. It is designed to guide consuls abroad in granting travel permits to the United States under the new anti-subversive law.

This law set up a ban against foreigners who at any time have been associated with totalitarianism.

However, under McGrath's ruling, the ban will not apply to those who can show they belonged to a totalitarianism group only in childhood or were required, one way or another, to belong. They must have a "good, legitimate reason" for coming here, however.

Actually, scores of such persons have been allowed to enter the country temporarily during the past month under the Attorney General's basic authority in such matters. Most of them have been Italians or Germans.

The State Department early this month froze the issuance of visas—entry permits—except in cases where the foreigner could establish, before leaving home, that he would be accepted for entry on this side.

McGrath said that the policy of temporary admissions of persons not regarded as dangerous to the welfare or safety of the United States is intended to avoid "undue hardship in legitimate cases until the Congress may consider appropriate amendments to furnish a permanent solution."

Regarding "nominal" totalitarian memberships, McGrath said:

"By 'nominal membership,' whether present or former in the Nazi, Fascist, Falangist or other totalitarian party or organization is meant mere membership during infancy under 16 years of age or for purposes of obtaining employment, food ration cards, general education, or through military service or similar circumstances, and the alien has not actively engaged in advocating totalitarianism or voluntarily taken part in any atrocities committed by such totalitarian party or organization.

"By 'good and legitimate' reasons for wanting to enter the United States, is meant for purposes of health, business relations affecting the national economy, in the national interest from a standpoint of foreign relations, or similar considerations."

Navy Reveals Bacteriological Warfare Data

(Special to The Washington Post)

ST. LOUI , Mo., Oct. 31—A Navy spokesman, with Defense Department clearance, today told public health officials in convention here just what can be told now about bacteriological warfare.

Further, still secret data on germ-loosed attacks and how to combat them will be disclosed later to key defense personnel in specialized training courses now being worked out by Government offices, he said.

The speaker was Comdr. Frank R. Philbrook, of 832 S. Frederick st., Arlington, Va., deputy director of the division of preventive medicine, Navy Bureau of Medicine and Surgery.

His talk marked the first official public discussion on the subject and followed open criticism from civil defense planners that the information vitally needed for their planning was being withheld.

Among other possibilities of germ attacks which can't be overlooked in defense planning, Commander Philbrook said, is the possibility of sneak and purposeful infection of "key individuals or selected population groups" in government centers.

"As to when and where an enemy might use BW (bacteriological warfare), the answer is, of course, whenever and wherever it suits his purpose to do so," Commander Philbrook declared.

Enemy Could Time Infection

Concerning selective sickening of key individuals, he said such infections "could be timed to the anticipated incubation period of the disease in such a manner that they might be casualties at a time of need for important action on their part."

More specifically, he said the timing could be arranged by the enemy to coincide with a later open declaration of war by the enemy.

The speaker did not discuss how such selective sickening might be carried out, but did say that in more general attacks on populations in industrial, communication and governmental centers disease germs might be planted in the products of "cafeterias, bakeries, dairies, kitchens or possibly soft drink distribution plants."

In more open attack, he said, the germs might be loosed in odorless, tasteless and invisible mists released through bombs or other conventional blast weapons "in order to take advantage of disrupted sanitation and medical services," he said.

Not Comparable To Atomic War

In its present stage, at least Commander Philbrook said, bacteriological warfare "should not be considered a means of mass destruction comparable to atomic warfare."

He stressed that any enemy contemplating germ-attack would probably not use just one disease since "two or more agents used simultaneously would complicate the problems of clinical laboratory diagnosis and therapy."

He cautioned against public alarm over disease outbreaks as enemy-planted, but said that health officials must be alert to the possibility and ready to detect them and to take standard preventive measures to prevent the outbreak's spread.

Another speaker yesterday at the same annual meeting of the American Public Health Association offered hope for the development of a protective vaccine against gas gangrene, an ever present complication in war wounds.

Dr. Victorien Fredette, of the University of Montreal, reminded the health officials that World War II statistics "show that no marked progress has been achieved against gas gangrene since 1918," despite such drugs as sulfas and penicillin.

The "new hope" for a preventive, he said, may come in a vaccine being evolved from cultures of "clostridium perfringens," the principal germ in gas gangrene. As yet, it has only been tested on guinea pigs, he said.

Court Cracks Milk Policy

for distribution to consumers outside of the District of Columbia. Such milk and cream must, however, be pasteurized and processed separately from milk and cream brought into the District of Columbia for distribution to consumers in the District of Columbia."

Health Department officials disclosed Monday that they would require that such milk be grade A by State or United States Public Health standards.

In a hearing before Judge Holtzoff, Simpson Bros., Inc., trading as the Wakefield-Model Farms Dairy, complained that imposition of the ban on sale of "outside" milk in the District would endanger their million-dollar enterprise by cutting their source of supply for District sales.

The firm's attorney, John F. Hillyard, called for a review of the District's milk regulations contending they were "unreasonable and restrictive" and favored the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association.

Assistant Corporation Counsels Chester H. Gray, Edward A. Beard and Oliver B. Gasch objected to the granting of the restraining order, arguing that it would hinder the Commissioners in enforcing the 1925 Congressional Milk Act.

Judge Holtzoff asked whether there would be any harm done to the public or the Commissioners in delaying the ban for 10 days, emphasizing that the ban has been suspended for eight years as a wartime emergency measure.

The District attorneys had no ready answer for this and Holtzoff then granted the order. He set 10 a. m. November 8 as the time for a hearing on granting an injunction.

300 Volunteers To Fight Raid Fires Urged

Fire Chief Joseph A. Mayhew yesterday asked the District Commissioners for permission to recruit and train an emergency fire-fighting force of 300 unpaid volunteers for civil defense.

Mayhew recommended accepting men from any part of the metropolitan area and training them for duty as full-fledged firefighters. They could be made into an effective force within a month, he estimated.

Mayhew said volunteers would help put into effect an emergency plan to split the District's 30 engine companies of two engines each into 60 companies of one engine each. A company needs five men whether it has one piece of apparatus or two, Mayhew said.

Earlier plans called for an auxiliary force of several thousand men. It was planned to put "fire watchers" under the fire department, Mayhew said. Now these workers—who would be stationed around the city during an attack to spot and put out small fires—are to be part of the warden service.

Three hundred volunteers is the total that can be used with present equipment, Mayhew said. Funds for badly needed hose have been included in a defense budget already sent to Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young, Mayhew said.

The Commissioners turned over Mayhew's recommendation to General Young, who said last night he hadn't had a chance to study it.

Other civil defense actions yesterday:

1. The Commissioners approved Young's appointment of the following to help organize a civil defense plan: Max C. Schwartz, warden services; P. Y. K. Howat, survey of construction resources; Public Health Director Daniel L. Seckinger, medical and health services; Gerard M. Shea, emergency welfare services; Allan B. Mills, survey of possible bomb shelters; Harry L. Burbridge, ground observer post.

2. Clearance was given Burbridge to establish his post on the roof of Nalle School, 51st and Bass sts. se. Assistant Engineer Commissioner Thomas J. Hayes, 3d, said the Board of Education approved the site and arrangements are being made to install a phone. Burbridge's post will spot planes for the Air Force as a supplement to the radar screen.

U. S., Britain to Discuss Future Suspension Of Marshall Plan Aid Owing to Economic Gains

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

British-American discussions looking toward a suspension of future Marshall Plan aid to the United Kingdom are soon to get under way, it was made known yesterday.

In London, Prime Minister Attlee told the House of Commons that since Britain had "achieved a most notable recovery" during the past year, it was agreed with the United States to "review the question of Marshall Aid."

In Washington, Economic Cooperation Administrator William C. Foster hastened to point out that if there were any suspension of dollar help, the United States policy would be kept flexible, and the ECA would stand ready to renew the flow of help should the situation change.

In a prepared statement, Foster was careful to note that though the British exchange and reserve position had been steadily improving, "certain negative factors continue to operate."

Defense vs. Exports

His reference was to the possibility that the pressures of the expanded British defense effort would reverse or diminish economic and payments gains. Britain will face new demands for dollars to build armaments and its dollar-earning exports may have to give way to defense production.

Other ECA officials emphasized that should Britain run into economic and exchange difficulties as a result, any decision that might be reached to cut off Marshall Plan dollars would be revised.

Those officials stressed the further facts that:

1. No firm decisions on suspending dollar aid have been reached. They will be arrived at after mutual examination of the problem. This will be conducted in discussions in London, when the new ECA mission chief to the United Kingdom, William L. Batt, arrives there.

Not for Punitive Reasons

2. Any future action in cutting off further dollar aid will in no way mean the end of Britain's participation in the Marshall Plan. It will continue its membership in the European Payments Union, and in the European Marshall Plan organization — the OEEC. Its Marshall programs of technical assistance, strategic materials, etc., will be maintained.

3. A suspension of aid will not be put into effect for any punitive reasons. Rather, it will be out of the recognition of improved economic performance — granted that this is a somewhat backhanded and unhappy way to "reward" economic virtue.

4. The probable new policy does not come to Britain as did the dismaying, unanticipated termination of Lend-Lease. For some months, the British themselves have had informal talks with ECA officials, and concurred that the time was coming when a re-examination of the justification for further help would be in order.

In the current fiscal year, the United Kingdom has received 175 million dollars of Marshall Plan aid. Its tentative allotment for the full year is about 400 millions. It is the difference, 225 million dollars, that will be the subject of the suspension talks.

Meantime, however, Britain has been given other dollar aid, to help defray added dollar costs of its immediate, high priority defense projects. Discussions will take place in coming months, multilaterally with other members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, for further dollar help on future, medium-range rearmament efforts.

Adonis Surrenders On Jersey Warrant

HACKENSACK, N. J., Oct. 31 (AP).—Joe Adonis, much-publicized gambling and underworld kingpin, surrendered today to New Jersey authorities.

Adonis and Salvatore Moretti, also listed by police as a top gambling figure, gave themselves up to answer State charges of conspiracy to violate New Jersey gambling laws.

Both men were sought unsuccessfully several weeks ago as witnesses by the U. S. Senate Crime Investigating Committee.

Adonis, alias Joseph Doto, and Moretti were two of five men named yesterday in State warrants issued in Bergen County's gambling probe.

John E. Selser, attorney for the five, said two of the others named would be surrendered Wednesday. The fifth is in State prison.

Adonis and Moretti at first were reluctant to brave a battery of newspaper cameramen gathered at the courthouse. Finally, they surrendered after Deputy Attorney General Nelson F. Stamler threatened he'd have them arrested and marched handcuffed into court.

Stamler said the warrants were in connection with a "big-time" gambling casino which was operated full-blast in nearby Lodi, N. J.

County Judge J. Wallace Leyden set bail of $15,000 each on the two men. Stamler had asked $25,000 bail.

Stamler yesterday went to the homes of the four men, but found no one home. Warrants were given to local police chiefs to serve, but were recalled today when the surrender was offered.

The others named in the five warrants are James Lynch of Palisades Park and Arthur Longano of Englewood. Adonis, former top Brooklyn racketeer, is listed from Fort Lee and Moretti of Demarest. The fifth is Anthony Guarini of Hasbrouck Heights, now in State Prison on a gambling conviction.

Senate Unit Intends To Question Adonis

Senate Crime Committee investigators said yesterday they expect to question Joe Adonis, reputed big-time gambler who surrendered to New Jersey State police yesterday.

Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.), committee chairman, was in Tennessee yesterday but aides here said investigators and agents had been trying to locate Adonis.

The name of Adonis had cropped up numerous times at both public and closed-door hearings of the Senate crime investigators.

German Issue Delays European Defense Plan

isters can be reconvened to begin formation of a Western European defense force capable of withstanding Communist aggression. This was not just a "pious hope" but reflected some optimism that the job can be done on the "second go around."

Urgency Is Recognized

The American Defense Secretary declared that all of the ministers agreed there is a real urgency in getting the unified defense force in being by next summer. And other officials noted that France's Minister of Defense Jules Moch and all of the others agreed on this sentence in the communique issued by the conference:

"The ministers have reaffirmed the importance, subject to adequate safeguards, of a German contribution to the building-up of the defense of Europe."

About the only concrete achievement of the defense ministers' conference was an agreement to accept the recommendations of the military committee on the forces to be contributed by the member nations to the western European force. The group accepted those on Saturday, only to bog down over the German rearmament question.

There had been some suggestion that when an impasse was reached on this, the ministers would skip over to the question of the command organization and appointment of a supreme commander. All of the other eleven nations wanted an American commander of the western European armed forces and wanted Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower picked for the post if possible.

U. S. Ready to Assist

The United States was ready to supply such a commander, besides from five to ten Army divisions, all of the strategic air power, the greater part of the naval power and some tactical aviation. We were prepared to name "Ike" to the crucial top job and he was willing to accept.

France's government passed up this offer—embracing the farthest step that America has been willing to take. Many officials hope that the French will come to realize that any long deadlock could cause a shifting of congressional and public opinion. The offer might not stand indefinitely.

Therefore, they believe that when the consequences of long delay information of a real Western defense is realized, a satisfactory compromise can be reached.

Marshall's Patience

During the two-day-long conference of the German problem, however, behind closed doors at Interdepartmental Auditorium, American representatives did not go at it hammer-and-tongs against the French. Reliable reports say that General Marshall was most patient and understanding with the French, indicating he appreciated their old fears.

It was indicated that we felt persuasion rather than a crackdown promised and still promise, better results in solving the issue. France has come a considerable way already from her former stand against any German rearmament, officials noted.

Britain's Defense Minister Emanuel Shinwell and some of the smaller European country delegates were much more aggressive than the Americans on the issue, one source said.

But Marshall was very firm over the question of partially giving in to the French and going ahead with the formation of the Western European force without Germans. He told reporters last night that it was felt the German armament question must be settled first, as "we want a realistic program."

The American Secretary did say that postponement of the issue would not delay plans for spending five billion dollars in military aid already voted by Congress.

The 12-power communique declared that the French plan for acceptance of German troops "involves far-reaching implications of a political, as well as a military character, which the Ministers considered would require further study by governments."

And because the German question "so vitally" affects the whole plan, it was added, the Ministers decided to postpone "decisions on the final form of the military organization and command structure" until this is done.

Marshall said the conference in its consideration of the French plan on German participation had before it only a general outline of it as previously published, elaborated on only to a degree by Minister Moch. The United States plan, on the other hand, was a detailed "General Staff program."

Accomplishments Listed

The communiques listed these as actions taken by the conference:

(1) Approval of the recommendations of the Military Committee as to the forces to be contributed by each NATO member. This must be reviewed by the NATO Council and governments concerned.

(2) Defined and recommended adoption of principles to be followed on mobilization and training of forces, to assure a continuous flow of trained power to the NATO forces.

(3) Approved actions taken by the Military Production and Supply Board since the last meeting.

(4) Approved the establishment "when required" of a command organization for the North Atlantic ocean regional body, to be headed by a naval man.

Leniency Plea Fails, 16-Month Term Imposed

Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson yesterday refused to heed a plea for leniency made by a confessed convict who said he had learned his lesson in a Florida chain gang.

William F. Havey, 32, no fixed address, pleaded guilty to charges of indecent exposure, disorderly conduct and carrying a concealed weapon.

He asked Judge Neilson to be lenient. "I learned my lesson after seven and a half years on a chain gang in Florida, your Honor," he said.

Judge Neilson disagreed.

He gave Havey the maximum sentence for carrying a deadly weapon, one year, 90 days for the indecent exposure and 30 days for the disorderly conduct.

Havey was arrested on September 29, after allegedly exposing himself to three female telephone company employes and making lewd remarks.

Havey was carrying a knife when arrested, police said. He was sent to Gallinger Hospital for a mental examination and was found to be sane.

Safeway Teamsters Accept 10-Cent Hike

Five hundred warehouse workers, employed by the Safeway grocery chain and affiliated with the AFL Teamsters, yesterday voted overwhelmingly to accept a new contract providing a pay increase of 10 cents an hour across the board.

Final membership vote on the contract by Local 730 came at 1 a. m., one hour after the old contract had expired.

The agreement came also a few hours after 12 members of the local struck and sought to lead a wildcat walkout. The strike failed to spread, however. The 12 men were fired by Safeway and now stand to be tried by the local for violating union discipline.

Agreement on a new contract, which runs for a year and provides a universal five-day week for all warehousemen working for Safeway and its five warehousing subsidiaries, was reached by Frank Sheehan, negotiator for Safeway, and Frank Gibson, business agent for Local 730.

As a result of the Safeway contract, it is expected that some 500 other warehouse workers, employed by other companies in and around Washington, will also get a 10 cents an hour raise in their new contract. Safeway is usually the pacesetter in these negotiations.

Meanwhile, Local 639 of the Teamsters is continuing negotiations with Safeway on a new contract for some 250 drivers, loaders and helpers. The old contract expired, but has been extended pending the negotiations. James Holden, Federal mediation commissioner who helped settle the contract dispute with the warehousemen, is also participating in the discussions with the truck drivers.

Union Meets Tonight on Red Charges

A rank-and-file meeting of the 3000-member Local 74, AFL Laborers, will be held tonight to determine the status of Henry Thomas, who has been both temporarily deposed and temporarily reinstated as president by the local's executive committee.

Thomas was found guilty by a union trial board two weeks ago and suspended from office by the union's executive committee on a charge of maintaining "Communist affiliations" while holding union office. The suspension was ordered by the executive committee pending refutation of the charges.

A few days later, the executive committee reinstated Thomas as president so he could sign the union payroll checks and to continue the routine functions of president. At the same time, the executive committee set November 6 as a trial date for Tom Sampler, secretary-treasurer of the union and chief accuser against Thomas. Sampler was charged by a member with injuring the union.

Thomas is expected to open the meeting tonight at 8, at Laborers Hall, 523 New Jersey ave. nw., and then turn the chair over to another official when the issue of his suspension come up. Thomas has denied the accusations against him, and has in turn charged that his trial was a "frameup." The suspension of the executive committee can be overruled only by a two-thirds vote of the members attending tonight's meeting.

Hand Grenades Litter Oregon Town's Beach

FLORENCE, Oreg., Oct. 31 (AP). Hand grenades and mortar shells littered more than a mile of beach near this Oregon coastal town today. Coast Guardsmen set up a watch to keep beach visitors out of danger.

The explosives, all of U. S. make, began coming in Sunday night by case lots, most of the boxes breaking up as they hit the beach. Their source was not determined.

Witness Spends Time in Cell Block For Applauding

A District Court witness yesterday spent a few minutes in the cell block there for applauding the acquittal of his friend.

Robert M. Cockerille, 42, of 1830 8th st. nw., was found innocent by the jury of a $132 theft on May 22 from the Standard Industrial Catering Service.

His friend, Lee A. Williams, former employe of the caterers, had furnished Cockerille the alibi, saying that on the day of the theft the defendant was helping him move from the YMCA here.

As the jury returned the finding, Williams clapped his hands gleefully. Judge Edward M. Curran informed him that a courtroom was not a "circus."

The judge slapped a $10-or-10-days sentence on Williams for contempt and a marshal led Williams off to the cell block.

In a few minutes, however, Williams was brought before Curran, who gave him a warning and set him free.

ices were led by mission pastors in 19 of the 309 churches sponsoring the event.

At Washington City Church of the Brethren, the Rev. John Calvin Reid, pastor of Mount Lebanon Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, said "The important thing is not how much faith we have, but how vital it is."

Pittsburgh Speaker

The Rev. J. A. Jones, of Myers Park Presbyterian Church, Charlotte, N. C., told a group at Eldbrooke Methodist Church "It is time for us as a Nation and as individuals to take stock of the fact hidden diseases of the soul can work disaster in our time."

The Rev. Ansley C. Moore, of the Sixth United Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, said "Lack of knowledge of the Bible gives rise to spiritual ignorance and opens the door to the lunatic fringe in religion to take charge of the church." His talk was at Arlington Methodist Church.

In the First Methodist Church, Hyattsville, the Rev. Reuben H. Mueller, executive secretary of Evangelican United Brethren Church's religious education, said "We of the church need to be weighted down with the sense of awful responsibility for those who do not know God."

The Rev. Ralph W. Loew, pastor of Holy Trinity Church, Buffalo, told a Ninth Street Christian Church audience "Never was there a time when it is more important for the average Christian to interpret Christ by what He is."

Curb on Nondefense Building Eased by NPA After Protests

possibly for much longer . . . and which will leave our economy at the end of that time stable, productive and free."

Although Valentine did not say so in precise words, the tone of his speech before the Women's National Press Club indicated he was opposed to the immediate application of price and wage ceilings.

He said that indirect regulations, such as higher taxes, curbs on credit, and allocations of materials for defense work were the "first hope" for holding inflation in check and that, in general, these must be "our first effort."

But, Valentine warned, if these measures, directed at the root of the inflation pressures, did not succeed, and "if we cannot hold the line voluntarily, we shall have to do so by other means."

Team Spirit Is Lacking

The will to control inflation by the less drastic, less cubersome measures short of direct wage and price fixing was not as strong as it ought to be, Valentine intimated.

"We lack as yet the team spirit of those months after Pearl Harbor," he said. "Many good Americans are not yet ready to make real personal sacrifice to serve in the war against inflation. Must Alaska or Greenland be in enemy hands before many American recognize our danger and act accordingly?"

As if to underscore the difficulty of the inflationary problem ahead, the Department of Agriculture yesterday issued a forecast that food prices will rise still higher next year, perhaps to the highest level ever reached.

It said prices are not likely to go up much before late winter, but predicted "reinforced pressure" in the spring.

"Accelerated consumer demand for food, unless checked by anti-inflationary measures or other developments, could push food prices by mid-year up to or even above the record level of the summer of 1948," the analysts concluded.

The report said food supplies are likely to be somewhat larger than this year's, but not enough to stay even with demand. It listed these factors as likely to boost buying:

"The rise in employment, hours worked and hourly wages will increase consumer incomes. Increases in consumer incomes may be only partly offset by higher taxes and other anti-inflationary measures. Larger social security benefits will permit increased food consumption by many individuals.

"Probable reductions in output of consumer goods and perhaps some non-durables, as well as credit controls, will make available additional consumer purchasing power for food."

Marketing costs will be going up, too, from such causes as higher taxes and wages, it said.

The report was reinforced by speakers at an Agriculture Department conference, who said clothing and building materials appear headed for higher prices, too, and fuel is likely to be in tight supply.

Garage Sold For More Than Million Dollars

The Continental Building Garage has been purchased by Jerome Murray, part-owner of the Du Pont Circle Building, for about $1,100,000, it was learned last night.

The six-story garage at 1514 L st. nw., formerly known as the Investment Building Garage, was sold by the Southland Life Insurance Co of Houston, Tex.

The building, now widely used by Statler Hotel customers, is expected to continue operating as a garage, Murray's associates said. It was built in 1942.

Formal announcement of the sale is expected today or Wednesday.

Last month Southland sold the Continental Building at 1511 K st. nw. to W. R. Kelley, head of a mortgage lending firm, for about $4,500,000.

that the raiders wrecked vital bridges.

American planes were out in force but ground support was hampered by smoke rolling up from fires set by artillery shells in the wooded hills.

General Almond disclosed that at least one Chinese Red regiment had marched to within 15 miles of the important industrial center of Hamhung on the east coast.

In a statement at Hamhung he indicated that a strong U. N. attack would be delivered "in the next few days" to determine if two Chinese Red divisions are supporting the Red attack. Prisoners have said two Chinese divisions have moved into northeast Korea.

A tank column of the United States Twenty-Fourth Division advanced 24 miles beyond captured Chongju Tuesday in the northwest.

Field dispatches said the column reached a point only 32 miles away from Sinuiju, on the Yalu River, across from the Chinese city of Antung.

The column was ordered by Maj. Gen. John H. Church, division commander, to continue rolling Tuesday night to keep the Reds off balance.

Church told the Associated Press Correspondent Jack Macbeth he would be "very disappointed" if his tankers did not reach the border by today.

On the northeast front, a column of the United States Seventh Division raced through light opposition for the interior Manchuria border town of Hyesanjin. These Americans and Korean troops landed Sunday at Iwon, and took off on a northwest tangent leading away from the Sea of Japan coastline.

Aerial reports to the United States Eighth Army headquarters said the Seventh Division column reached Pungsan Tuesday, a gain of 52 road miles since Sunday. At Pungsan they were 51 road miles south of the border.

The South Korean Capital Division advancing unopposed up the east coast turned in one of the biggest gains Tuesday when strong cavalry patrols entered Kilchu. The mounted Republican troops were 21 air miles and about 45 road miles northeast of Songjin. The division had last been reported three miles north of Songjin.

Kilchu is only 62 air miles southwest of Chongjin, the last big Korean port south of the Siberian border. Chongjin is on the main eastern trunk line connecting with Soviet teritory.

Despite the thrusts of the American and South Korean forces to the northwest and northeast, Communist resistance was far from crushed.

In the northwest the United States First Cavalry Division rushed up tanks and artillery to bolster the hard-hit Korean Sixth and Eighth divisions. Both ROK (Republic of Korea) outfits had taken a bloody mauling in the vicinity of Unsan from an estimated 10,000 Reds stiffened by an undetermined number of Chinese.

The Reds recaptured Huichon, railroad town 58 miles southeast of the Communist provisional capital of Kanggye.

In the northeast the resurgence of Red strength in a fight south of the big Changjin (Chosin) reservoir fell on the outnumbered Twenty-seventh Regiment of the ROK Third Division.

Outflanked, the Twenty-seventh was forced to yield two or three hydroelectric power plants it had captured. One plant was at Sudong, 20 air miles northwest of Hamhung and the other was to the east near Yonda.

It was in this are that field reports repeatedly estimated two Chinese Communist divisions, totaling 8000 to 10,000 men, were in action.

Almond, who is responsible for the occupation of northeast Korea, identified one Chinese regiment as having crossed the Yalu River into Korea on October 16. It marched south to a point 15 miles north of Hamhung, where it was engaged by South Koreans.

This regiment was the 370th, Associated Press Correspondent Stan Swinton said. It was tentatively identified as part of the 124th Chinese Communist Division of the Forty-second Army Corps.

"You cannot tell if there are two Chinese Communist divisions until you attack in enough strength on a broad front to tell how many there are, and what weapons and artillery they have," Almond said.

"In the next few days we will develop what is there."

U. S. intelligence officers estimate the Chinese Communists' Manchurian army is 500,000 strong. It is a tough, battle-hardened army, with air support and armor.

There is no evidence yet how many men Chinese Communist leader Mao Tze-tung will gamble in North Korea. U. S. officers believe that even if they came down in great force United Nations troops could hold a line across Korea, well up the peninsula.

"You can put only so many men in the front," an intelligence officer said. "I think that altogether — Americans, South Koreans, British, Filipinos, Australians and Turks—we have enough infantry to make and hold such a line if we have to."

Already the United States First Marine Division had sent at least one regiment north from Wonsan to Majon, 17 miles northwest of Hamhung. The Marines captured more than 100 enemy prisoners in that area, but the number of Chinese among them was not disclosed.

A Tenth Corps spokesman said 20 Chinese Communist prisoners were captured northwest of Hamhung but the location was not given.

The South Korean Twenty-seventh Regiment, which ran into reinforced Reds while advancing on the important Changjin reservoir, formed a triangular defense position about 20 miles northwest of Hamhung. There were fears that the Chinese Reds had bypassed them and would try to break into Hamhung.

Navy and Marine planes gave close support to ground forces in this area.

South Korean intelligence sources said the Chinese Communist Forty-second Army Corps, including the 124th Division and one other, was operating in northeast Korea. This has not been confirmed by United States intelligence so far.

There was also some evidence that the Chinese Reds on the Hamhung front may have exhausted their mortar ammunition and were pulling back north, Swinton said. However, one American military adviser said "daytime withdrawals by the Reds do not mean much. They do their fighting at night."

The whole question of Chinese participation in the Korean war was being handled cautiously by General MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo.

An intelligence spokesman confirmed the capture of 10 Chinese Red soldiers, but said the presence of organized Chinese units has not been definitely established.

He made his statement before General Almond disclosed that at least one Chinese regiment had crossed the Yalu River.

Headquarters noted that Chinese prisoners had been taken at Taechon, Unsan, Onjong and Taepyong, all hot points in fighting on the northwest front within some 45 miles of the border.

The intelligence spokesman said whether the prisoners were from organized Chinese Communist units "is a decision of the commanding general in Korea to make and we have had no official report from them."

However, several points indicated strongly the Chinese Reds have entered the Korean war in force. Resistance has stiffened since last Friday. The sudden flurry of counterattacks indicated the North Koreans again were directed from a general headquarters.

The Reds likewise have communications with field units and there was a definite plan of defense in operation. The Reds have been resupplied with armament differing in type from tanks and weapons already encountered.

The Tokyo spokesman said "continued appearance of tanks in these dwindling forces indicated the enemy still is receiving supplies from across the Manchurian border."

Almond, who led the successful Inchon invasion, said the United States Tenth Corps did not intend to "sit by and let them reinforce."

Union Asked To Lift Ban On Navy Man

AFL Musicians Local 161 today will be formally requested to reconsider its ban on conducting of the Arlington Civic Symphony Orchestra by a Navy musician.

A delegation from the orchestra, and the association which supports the 70 amateur musical organizations, will meet with the executive board of the local at the union's headquarters, 1105 16th st. nw., at 1 p. m.

Mrs. Ralph B. Campbell, president of the association board of directors, wrote the union last Saturday asking for a hearing. On the same day, unaware of Mrs. Campbell's letter, the president of the local, Paul J. Schwarz, announced the union executive board was willing to listen to any arguments on reconsideration.

On October 24, the local wrote the symphony association and requested that the services of Navy Chief Musician Bernard Rosenthal, as conductor of the orchestra be terminated. Otherwise, the union said, it would be forced to withdraw some 15 union members from further participation in the activities of the civic orchestra.

The union holds that Rosenthal, as a member of the armed services, is supplanting a civilian in the conductor's post. This, the union maintains, violates a Federal statute prohibiting uniformed men from competing with civilians for paid jobs.

The Navy has taken the position that the position of conductor for the amateur symphony orchestra is basically an unpaid job, and that no law has been broken. The symphony association says that it pays its conductor only a small honorarium—in this case $450—if and when the money is raised. Rosenthal has since said he will not take any honorarium, and the $450 has been earmarked for a symphony association scholarship fund.

Rosenthal is due to conduct the civic orchestra the evening of November 9. The orchestra has voted to retain Rosenthal, "irrespective of any action" taken by the local. However, the loss of 15 key players, who are union members, would be a serious blow to the orchestra.

Request for reconsideration by the local will be made, according to Mrs. Campbell, by a delegation which will include some of the union members who play for the orchestra, and I. Lee Potter, former president of the association, who is a member of the trustees operating the musicians union welfare fund.

The symphony association plans to appeal to the national leadership of the American Federation of Musicians should Local 161 reject the request for reconsideration of the ban on Rosenthal.

Pope Recites His Prayer for Virgin

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 31 (AP).—Pope Pius XII, on the eve of his dogmatic proclamation of the Virgin Mary's assumption into heaven, recited for the first time tonight a prayer he has composed in her honor.

"We believe with all the fervor of our faith in your triumphant assumption, in soul and in body, into heaven, where you are acclaimed queen by all the choirs of the angels and all the legions of the saints," he said, speaking from his Vatcan apartment.

Loudspeakers carried the Pope's prayer to a throng in St. Peter's Square, where the high point of the Roman Catholic 1950 Holy Year jubilee will take place with proclamation of the dogma tomorrow.

The dogma will establish as a doctrine of the Roman Catholic Church what most Catholics have long believed—that Mary, the mother of Jesus Christ, ascended to heaven bodily as well as spiritually.

At least 300,000 pilgrims are expected for the ceremony in St. Peter's Square with an equal number of Romans. At least 38 cardinals will be on hand. Thousands will listen in by radio around the world.

The biggest network the Vatican has ever had will broadcast the ceremony. It will be held—weather permitting—from about 8:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. (2:30 a. m. to 6:30 a. m. EST.). Reading of the Pope's papal bull in Latin is expected to require 25 or 30 minutes.

Every Catholic must accept the dogma under pain of exposing himself to the sin of heresy.

Protestant criticism has developed especially from the Church of England. The British Protestant Truth Society, made up of 10,000 clergymen and laymen whose avowed purpose is to prevent "Romish" practices in non-Roman churches, telegraphed the Pope today:

"This November 1 is another blot on the history of the Roman Church. To proclaim an imaginative superstition such as the bodily assumption of the Virgin Mary into heaven as an article of faith revolts all who adhere to the Scripture, history and common intelligence."

The Protestant Alliance wrote the Pope last week it would embrace the Roman Catholic faith if he could prove by the Bible the bodily ascent of Mary into heaven and "the other errors of your church."

Holy Hours Listed In Recognition Of New Dogma

Holy hours will be conducted in most Roman Catholic churches tonight in recognition of the proclamation of the dogma of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin.

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, will preside at the 8 p. m. holy hour at St. Matthews Cathedral, 1725 Rhode Island ave. nw. The Most Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop, will preside at a similar service at his own church, St. Gabriel's, Grant cir. nw., also at 8 p. m.

The other auxiliary bishop, the Most Rev. Patrick J. McCormick, rector of Catholic University, will sing his first pontifical mass at 10:30 a. m. today at the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception of the university.

Sewage Bond Vote Urged

Arlington residents yesterday were urged from two sides to vote Tuesday for a $2,617,000 bond issue to improve the county's sewage facilities.

Harold A. Kemp, chairman of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin, said further pollution of the Potomac would endanger "our health, welfare and security." He urged approval of the bond proposal as "an absolute necessity" without "frills."

In a joint statement Arlington County Manager A. T. Lundberg and Richard M. Wirt, the county's director of public service, also asked voters to back the bond issue so that Arlington "can do its share toward ending the seriously polluted condition of the Potomac below Hains Point."

Kemp, himself an Arlington home owner, warned fellow residents "of the dangers we face in dumping raw sewage into Four Mile Run and the Potomac River."

Said he: "A septic or cesspool condition is threatened and must be prevented," and a concentration of water-borne disease organisms "in a foul septic river may be too great for our safety."

Arlington County now gives only rudimentary treatment to 50 percent of its sewage. The rest is being dumped, untreated, into the river.

Florida High Court Upholds Libel Law

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Oct. 31 (AP).—Florida's law requiring that newspapers be served written notice and permitted to publish a retraction before they are sued for libel was upheld by the State Supreme Court today.

The court unanimously affirmed a Broward County Circuit Court ruling dismissing a $100,000 libel suit against the Fort Lauderdale Daily News by Julian E. Ross, former city attorney and judge.

1 Killed, 5 Shot In San Juan as Revolt Flares

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Oct. 31 (AP).—A gun battle with barricaded anti-United States Nationalists erupted in San Juan tonight. One man was killed and five persons wounded, including two children.

This was the latest violence in the revolt set off by the Nationalists yesterday. It brought to 32 the number of Puerto Ricans known killed in rioting and bloodshed that spread through 10 Puerto Rican centers. Gov. Luis Munoz Marin described the revolt as a "conspiracy against democracy, helped by the Communists," and said it would be stamped out in a day or two.

Today National Guard troops smashed at the rebels with planes and tanks and drove them out of two strongholds outside San Juan.

(In Washington, Secretary of the Interior Chapman said he is confident that the Puerto Rican disturbances can be handled by the island administration. He said that "although the disorders and loss of life are tragic, there is no reason whatever to regard these incidents as indicating any general unrest or any serious disturbances in the economic, social and political life of Puerto Rico.")

Shortly after dusk a group of Nationalists barricaded themselves in a barber shop in the Barrio Obrero (working class) section of San Juan. A gun battle developed. The barber shop owner was shot to death. The children wounded were among spectators. Others wounded were two National Guardsmen and a civilian.

Striking at dawn, troops armed with machine guns, bazookas and tanks, recaptured Jayuya, 50 miles southwest of San Juan, and the neighboring town of Utuado. Fighter planes strafed the rebels. The rebels had seized control of the two towns last night after bombing police stations, killing some policemen and setting many fires.

Towns Patrolled

By afternoon, guardsmen were patrolling the two towns, with the last pockets of resistance apparently wiped out. Another guard spearhead was racing toward Arecibo to crush the resistance there.

Continued scattered reports of shootings in San Juan and other parts of this United States island territory of 2,149,000 persons in the Caribbean made it difficult to estimate the total casualties since the uprising began yesterday morning.

Munoz said today that the revolt was definitely connected with, and probably sparked by, the island's worst prison break Saturday, when 111 inmates escaped from Rio Piedras Prison 10 miles from San Juan.

Earlier government statements had said there was no connection between the revolt and the prison break. Only about half of the prisoners have been captured.

Arrests Numerous

There have been numerous arrests of the Nationalists, who advocate Puerto Rico's complete independence from the United States and often follow the Communist line.

Communist members in Cuba passed through the Cuban House of Representatives yesterday a resolution asking the United States to assure the safety of the Puerto Rican Nationalist leader, Harvard-educated Pedro Albizu Campo. The motion was instigated by a Nationalist commission that included Albizu's wife.

190,000 Parrots Killed

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—A total of 190,000 parrots have been killed and 215,000 nests destroyed in a campaign to wipe out psittacosis and crop ravages, the agriculture ministry said today. About two cents was paid for each pair of parrots killed.

Mahoney Will Take Stump for Gov. Lane

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31.—George P. Mahoney today went into full-time campaigning for the election of his former political enemy, Gov. William Preston Lane, jr.

Mahoney and his top aides moved into offices in Democratic campaign headquarters and said that he was going to work full time for the re-election of Governor Lane. Mahoney lost to Lane the Democratic nomination for governor after a bitter primary fight.

Republicans dismissed Mahoney's new alliance with Lane as an act of "political suicide." Mahoney laughed at that one and his primary campaign manager, Hugo Hoffman, remarked, "What else would the Republicans say!"

GOP in Mahoney's Old Office

Republican campaign headquarters now is located where Mahoney's headquarters operated during the primary campaign, in the Lord Baltimore hotel. Democratic headquarters is several blocks away, in the Emerson Hotel.

Both headquarters were buzzing with activity today in preparation for the all-out drive that starts Wednesday to capture the key voting strength of Baltimore city. Up to now the candidates have been circulating through the counties in their bid for votes.

Theodore Roosevelt McKeldin, Republican nominee for governor, was the first to make political capital of the fact that while Lane won the nomination, he lost the primary popular vote majority to Mahoney.

"Obligation" to His Supporters

In today's statement, Mahoney called attention to the 192,000 persons who gave him their vote in the primary. He said he owed that group an obligation.

"Governor Lane has adopted my platform. He has promised to give the people of Maryland the tax relief they sorely need," he said.

Mahoney said that he had no political promises from Lane and did not want any. At the same time aides of Mahoney left no doubt that he would accept appointment as Maryland member of the Democratic national committee when it is made. Governor Lane resigned from this post amid indications that it would go to Mahoney.

Another primary opponent of Lane, Herbert W. Larrabee, of Glen Burnie, turned up at McKeldin headquarters with a prediction the Republican nominee would win. Larrabee got about 8000 votes in the primary.

AFL Outfit Backs Hartle in Maryland

The AFL Maryland Labor League for Political Education yesterday announced its indorsement of Maj. Gen. Russell P. Hartle (USA, ret.), Democratic candidate for the Sixth Maryland Congressional District.

Robert Lester, chairman of the League's sixth district, said the decision came after interviews with Hartle and his Republican opponent, Representative James Glenn Beall.

Lester said: "Beall's record shows that his actions have been that of Mr. Taft. Beall, as far as we are concerned is antiunion."

Hartle "is more our friend," Lester said.

Hartle's candidacy was also backed yesterday by Charles B. Buscher, past department commander of the Maryland Veterans of Foreign Wars. Buscher indorsed Governor Lane and Senator Tydings as well, and urged "all veterans to go out and work and support each of these candidates."

Prince Georges Seeks Priority For Rhode Island Ave. Project

The Prince Georges County commissioners yesterday asked the Metropolitan District Improvement Advisory Board to give first priority in the 1951 program to the extension of Rhode Island ave. from Hyattsville to Beltsville.

The commissioners also at yesterday's meeting in Marlboro took under advisement a suggestion by a group of citizens that women be hired as auxiliary school crossing police. Such a system is in operation in Montgomery County.

The extension of Rhode Island ave.—a much discussed project—has been in the long range program of the advisory committee for some time. It would provide an alternate route or by-pass to U. S. Route 50 through the heavily traveled and densely built-up suburban business district.

All road projects financed under the Metropolitan District Improvement Program, established by the State Legislature in 1945, must be recommended by the advisory board.

The request for women crossing patrolmen was made by a delegation headed by John E. Prince, vice president of the Civic Federation of Seat Pleasant and Spauldings Districts.

According to Prince, many minor traffic accidents occurring in the vicinity of schools and which are not reported to police could be prevented if crossing guards were on duty.

Superintendent of Police Ralph W. Brown said some kind of protection at school crossings is badly needed. Women patrolmen might provide the solution, and the situation is under discussion with school heads, he said.

The commissioners also authorized an additional $20,000 for the Board of Education to supplement funds on hand for purchase of a 10-acre tract at Sargent and Chillum rds. for a new elementary school. Thomas S. Gwynn, director of school construction, said the area is one of the most rapidly growing in the county.

Property Owners Oppose Animal Shelter

Approximately 50 adjoining property owners voiced opposition to location of the new Montgomery County animal shelter on a tract near Kensington yesterday at a public hearing held by the County Council at Rockville, Md.

No opposition appeared at another hearing on purchase of a 13-acre tract on Browningsville rd. near Damascus for use as a county dump.

The opposing property owners were represented by Charles C. Jones, Rockville attorney, who presented a petition signed by more than 50 persons. "This is a residential area," Jones declared, "and these people believe location of a shelter there will depreciate the value of their homes." He said other vacant land is available.

County Manager Irving G. McNayr said the property "is ideal" for the animal shelter and that the county plans to screen the property from nearby homes so that it would not be a nuisance. The proposed shelter would cover about 2½ acres, bounded by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, Maple ave. and Garrett Park rd., Howard ave. and a property owned by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The council took under advisement the protests against purchase of the property, which would cost the county approximately $4200.

The council voted formal acceptance of a $2,295,000 loan and $234,000 grant from the State for school construction to include the new Eastern Suburban Junior High School in Silver Spring.

To Review Gains

Undulant Fever Talks Open Monday

The Third Inter-American Congress on Brucellosis will be held here next week, Monday through Friday, at the Departmental Auditorium.

Purpose of the congress, sponsored jointly by the National Research Council's committee on brucellosis and the Pan American Sanitary Bureau, is to review research advances on the disease since the last congress in 1948 in Argentina.

Brucellosis, often called undulant fever in man, is transmitted to humans by contact with infected livestock. It is widespread in the Western Hemisphere, causing serious economic loss in livestock and dairy products.

The meetings consist of formal discussions on all phases of the disease, including its medical, veterinary, public health and economic aspects. Scientific papers will be presented on the following categories: bacteriology, veterinary research, research on human brucellosis, epidemiology, and control.

Pollution Control Plan Cited

A five-point program to develop water pollution control has been outlined in a new U. S. Public Health Service booklet, "Clean Water is Everybody's Business."

Publication of the booklet was announced yesterday by Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele. In addition to pollution control, the booklet calls for stimulation of the construction of treatment works, provision of technical aid and research, encouragement of recovery and use of waste products and invocation of enforcement measures when necessary.

The booklet points out that about half of the country's population now lives in 140 metropolitan districts, which cover only 1¼ per cent of the country's total land area.

Pollution discharged into streams by communities and individuals, the PHS booklet points out, is "equivalent to the untreated sewage from a population of more than 150 million persons."

Over half of this pollution is produced by industrial wastes. The publication states that cooperation among communities, industry and State and Federal governments is needed to abate and prevent pollution.

King's Speech Starts Row Over Controls

LONDON, Oct. 31. — King George VI today opened a new session of Parliament, which immediately became embroiled in a heated debate over Socialist legislation proposed by the Labor government.

The government's legislative program, which is traditionally read by the King at the opening of a new session of Parliament, called for permanent powers over the economic life of the country. These powers, involving price control and regulation of both production and consumption, have been granted the government until now on a temporary, annual basis.

The government's proposal to make these powers permanent brought a stinging denunciation from Winston Churchill, leader of the Conservative opposition. The debate over the issue during the next few months is generally expected to lead to a dissolution of Parliament and new elections during 1951.

Since it won the last elections in February by a very slender margin, the Labor government sought for a while to avoid controversial issues. The fact that it has now raised the most controversial issue of all is taken to mean that the Socialists believe a new election would gain them a more satisfactory majority in Commons.

As the new session opened with a colorful ceremony, thousands lined the streets to cheer the King, Queen and Princess Elizabeth as they drove to Parliament and then back to the palace.

Immediately after the King read his brief speech, Churchill opened the attack. The government proposal, he said, would give the executive "tremendous powers" that go beyond anything hitherto demanded. "This is not planned economy," he said. "This is a blank check."

Churchill also criticized the government's proposal to nationalize the British Sugar Corporation, which accounts for 23 percent of Britain's sugar refining capacity. He announced that his party will also ask the House next week to censure the government for its failure to provide sufficient housing.

Attlee defended the government's demand for permanent economic legislation by saying it was necessary to carry out its policy of full employment and of curbing inflation. He pointed to the government's success in expanding production, and increasing the country's favorable trade balances.

Prize Awards Delayed

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—The winners of the Nobel prizes in literature, physics and chemistry will be chosen Friday, November 10, instead of November 9, it was announced today. The change was made because the funeral of the late King Gustaf V will be held November 9.

Homes Found For Evicted Family of 8

A Washington family, evicted from its National Capital Housing Authority apartment Monday, had shelter yesterday though mother and father were separated from their six children.

The Charles E. Naylors were left on the curbstone with their possessions in a heap beside them when the authority was forced to evict them. They failed to answer a Municipal Court summons for being $44 behind in the rent since last June.

After a four-hour vigil over their furniture Monday night, the Naylors found a friend who trucked some of the belongings to his home for safekeeping. The rest the family left with neighbors.

The children, aged 2 to 14, went to their grandmother's three-room apartment—already occupied by the grandmother, her son, his wife and baby.

Mr. and Mrs. Naylor went to her sister's apartment. Naylor, a 35-year-old pipefitter's assistant, said he got behind in the rent because of illness. He went back to a physician today for further treatment of stomach ulcers that have kept him away from work three weeks.

Radio Berlin Power Cut Off By West; Red Officials Seized

BERLIN, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—The Western allies recharged the cold war today by cutting off the electric supply to Russia's Radio Berlin and arresting two high East German Communist officials for trying to move railroad equipment into the Soviet sector.

Under the protective guns of West Berlin police, workmen ripped up the sidewalk outside Radio Berlin—which is in the western sector—and cut is power lines while Russian troops with tommy guns slung over their shoulders watched.

The action was in retaliation for the cutting off one month ago of electric power supplied to the western sectors of Berlin by East Berlin power stations. The radio was told there was a power shortage as the result of the cutting of East Berlin current to the allied sector.

Radio Berlin was not silenced. Its staff turned on an emergency generator inside the building and programs continued.

British sector police this morning arrested Kurt Freitag, vice president of the Soviet-controlled Berlin railway system, and Hermann Frahn, a Communist labor union official, for ordering workers to take railroad equipment from the abandoned Lehrter station and remove it to the Soviet sector.

The Russians sent 300 Communist railroad workers to the station to protest the arrests, but they were met by 200 West Berlin police and shuffled away.

A British sector court released the two officials tonight when they pleaded that they intended merely to move the railroad equipment to another west-sector station, not to the Soviet section.

One-Party System Denied As Aim of East Germany

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—Communist Vice Premier Walter Ulbricht denied that the one-party system would be introduced into East Germany and promised that the so-called bourgeois parties would as well represented in the new government as in the old one.

Students See Post Book Fair

The parade of children, teachers and visitors continued yesterday at The Washington Post Children's Book Fair in the lobby of the Commerce Department building.

Fifteen area schools were represented in the parade and the 1200-book display continued to meet the approval of both youngsters and their teachers. Dr. Hobart M. Corning, District school superintendent, was one of yesterday's visitors.

Students from at least one school—Sacred Heart Academy, 1621 Park rd. nw.—were urged to submit titles of books they thought the school library should acquire.

So far in the six-day Fair, building guards reported, the kids have been behaving admirably. Only one boy found himself separated from his school group, but the situation was remedied quickly.

The display, held under the auspices of the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission, opened Sunday and will continue through Friday.

Hours today and Thursday are 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. Friday's hours will be from 8:30 a. m. to 9 p. m.

There is no admission fee. Books on display are not for sale.

Court Of Claims

When we pointed out the consequences of "judicial dumping" last June and again on October 2, our attention was centered chiefly on the Supreme Court's habit of occasionally handing down on a single day more opinions than the press or the public can possibly digest. One effect of this discussion, however, was to enhance the awareness of other courts in Washington that they were competing with the Supreme Court for the spotlight on a single day of the week. As a result, the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia last week shifted its opinion day from Monday to Thursday, and this week the United States Court of Claims announced that henceforth its decisions will come down on Tuesday. A change had been under discussion for some time, but Chief Judge Marvin Jones acknowledges that the suggestion of this newspaper was "the final push" that brought action. That is incidental; the important thing is that another court has recognized the desirability of timing its opinions so that the press can give them more attention in the interest of better public understanding of what the court is doing.

Montgomery County

Montgomery County is going through an interesting phase of its struggle for good government. Two years ago the people of the county approved a home-rule charter under which the present council was elected as the county's policy-making body. An able group of councilmen inaugurated the new government and set up an efficient administration divorced from patronage and boss manipulation. But only one of the present councilmen, Harold F. Hammond of Silver Spring, decided to stand for reelection, and all but two of the Democratic candidates sponsored by the Montgomery County Charter Committee were defeated in the primaries. The foremost local issue before the voters of the county is, therefore, whether the new government is to be taken out of the hands of the groups that brought about the recent reforms.

From its beginning the charter movement has been nonpartisan, drawing widespread support from both the major parties. But the charterites lost their fight to keep the election of councilmen on a nonpartisan basis, and since the defeat of several of their Democratic candidates in the primaries, the charterite slate has become heavily Republican. In other words, the Charter Committee is indorsing all six of the Republican candidates—George F. Nesbitt, Lathrop E. Smith, John C. Reid, Kathryn J. Lawlor, J. Lewis Monarch and Mr. Hammond—and only two Democratic candidates, Grover Walker and Mrs. Stella Werner, who for five years was executive director of the Charter Committee.

It is a pity that any party labels have been attached, for the issue of efficient local government has no direct connection with the differences between the two parties on State and national issues. The Democratic president of the County Council, Frederic P. Lee, recently charged that all but two of the Democratic candidates are "supporting a machine whose leaders for years opposed the adoption of our home-rule county-manager form of government" and announced that he will support the Charter Committee's Republican candidates. The Democratic candidates are hotly contesting this charge, but, aside from any consideration of how well founded it may be, voters who are interested in retaining the charter reforms may well prefer to keep in power the groups responsible for these reforms.

Treaty Ratification

A legal technicality has arisen in the U. N. General Assembly which may affect this country's ratification of the genocide convention. The technicality concerns the procedure for accepting treaty ratifications to which reservations are attached. The practice followed by the U. N.—and in earlier years by the League of Nations—is to submit to nations that have already ratified a treaty any reservations that an additional ratifier may wish to attach to its ratification. If the nations that previously ratified accept the reservations, then the additional ratification becomes effective. It has been suggested, however, that nations which have not ratified should also be allowed to raise objections to reservations made by nations desiring to ratify. To laymen, this must seem a formula for frustration; and frustration seems to have been the aim of those who suggested it. But no doubt it is an appropriate subject for study and reflection by the experts on international jurisprudence.

The Legal Committee of the General Assembly, confronted with this controversy, has now recommended that it be referred to the International Court of Justice and the International Law Commission for advisory opinions. So far as the abstract question is concerned, this seems entirely proper. But the resolution submitted to the Assembly contains no provision governing the course to be pursued in the interim while the issue is pending. The U. N. secretariat has declared that it will continue to follow its past practice. But Senator Hubert Humphrey, in a letter to the United States delegation to the U. N., has urged that this ought to be expressly stipulated in the resolution. "In the absence of such provision," he says, ". . . it is clear in my opinion and in the opinion of many legal experts, that the secretary general is estopped from any such action. This opinion is, of course, based on the international law principle of 'pendente lite,' which in essence prevents the secretary general from acting on a matter pending before the International Court of Justice."

This highly technical refinement of international law may have an important bearing on American ratification when the Senate takes up the convention, as President Truman has asked it to do, on its return in November. There is little doubt that the Senate will attach reservations if it ratifies. Senator Humphrey's fear is that the Soviet Union, which has not ratified the convention, may use the tangle over procedure as a pretext for objecting to the American reservations. Even if this fear is groundless, there is a danger that the uncertainty will be used by opponents of ratification in the Senate (of whom Senator Humphrey is certainly not one) to bring about postponement of a decision. In referring the general legal question about ratification procedure to the International Court, the General Assembly would do well to make it perfectly plain that it has no intention of giving the Soviet Union a veto power over the genocide convention.

U. N. Tangle

The General Assembly of the United Nations had no alternative to the action it took today in extending Trygve Lie's present term as Secretary-General for an additional three years. The Assembly could not elect anyone else to the office without a recommendation from the Security Council. And it could not leave the office vacant after February 2, when Mr. Lie's originally designated term expires, without bringing all U. N. operations to a standstill. Moreover, there can be no doubt as to the Assembly's authority to take this action under the terms of the U. N. Charter.

An unhappy and potentially explosive situation has been created by Andrei Vishinsky's arrogant declaration that the Soviet Union will not deal with Mr. Lie and will not recognize him as Secretary-General. If the threat should be carried out literally, it could gravely interfere with the conduct of essential U. N. business. But since Mr. Vishinsky also said that his country has no present intention of withdrawing from the U. N. over the issue, perhaps the Russians will make their boycott a formal one and carry on relations through other members of the Secretariat. Perhaps, too, they will change their minds about the matter completely when it seems advantageous to them to do so, as they did in connection with their boycott of the Security Council. In any case, the Assembly could not afford to be intimidated by Mr. Vishinsky's threat.

To some extent, Mr. Vishinsky's outburst may be set down as a response to pointless provocation by the United States delegation. When the Soviet Foreign Minister urged the Security Council to recommend someone other than Trygve Lie for the Secretary Generalship, Warren Austin, the American delegate, threatened to interpose an American veto. As we have observed in earlier comment, we think the threat was an imprudent one for three reasons. First, it was an unnecessary exhibition of spleen, since the Russians would have been unable to muster the requisite seven Security Council votes for any candidate they proposed, anyway; second, it marred the splendid American record of reserving the veto power for major substantive issues involving national security; third, it was a kind of roughness which afforded a pretext for the roughness of Mr. Vishinsky's reaction. The reelection of Mr. Lie or the continuation of his term of office was necessary to the prestige and integrity of the United Nations. It should have been kept a United Nations, rather than a United States, victory over the Russians.

Missing Scientist

In light of the mysterious disappearance of Dr. Bruno Pontecorvo, a British atomic scientist, it is reasonable to ask whether security precautions could prevent a similar case here. All evidence points to the suspicion that Dr. Pontecorvo either has fled to Russia or has been kidnaped. After going to Italy on a vacation with his family, Dr. Pontecorvo was reported seen in Helsinki; since then there has been no trace of him. If he actually has joined the Communists, this would indicate that the infiltration of the British atomic energy program did not end with the arrest of Dr. Klaus Fuchs earlier this year. It is even possible that Dr. Pontecorvo fled the country in fear of arrest after the Fuchs disclosures.

On the heels of the Fuchs case, atomic security representatives of Britain, Canada and the United States met in Washington in February to work out discrepancies between individual security programs. As a result, security procedures, though not altogether alike, are described as "equivalent." Apparently Dr. Pontecorvo passed several rigorous security investigations, and perhaps there was no reason to suspect him. Officials here regard his atomic knowledge as one of basic engineering rather than of weapons in particular. But of course any knowledge of British or American procedures might be of help to the Russians.

Fundamentally the security problem is twofold: first, thorough screening for loyalty, and second, adequate passport control. In the United States it is the procedure for the State Department to consult the Atomic Energy Commission before granting passports involving atomic scientists—a procedure which, if thoroughly enforced, should give reasonable protection. No security system, of course, can be 100 percent safe. In the last analysis, after scientists have passed scrutiny, they must be trusted, for any curtailment of their physical or intellectual freedom would not only violate their rights as citizens but also impair their work. The tragedy is that each case such as that of Dr. Pontecorvo tends to bring demands for unworkable restrictions.

Korean Complication

Chinese have been discovered in North Korea fighting alongside or with the North Koreans. They seem to be in Korean uniform, and though some of them are fighting with their own units, they are apparently not in anything like divisional strength. It is thus an irregular kind of intervention which does not commit Mao Tze-tung's government. Did he sponsor it? We don't know, but undoubtedly he must be thoroughly cognizant and approve of it.

Very shortly, perhaps, more details will be available about the composition of the invading soldiery. There are pickings across the fluid Manchurian-Korean border, judging from the reports from Wonsan about the peddling of loot. They would normally excite the acquisitive Chinese, and persuade him to risk his life in such an escapade. The notion is even entertained in some quarters that the intruders are not members of the Chinese Communist armies at all, but rootless Nationalist troops who have been captured. This is by no means impossible. Nationalist prisoners have become a nuisance to the Communists, and it may be that Mao Tze-tung thought that, instead of making trouble for him, they might as well make trouble for the United Nations. This they could easily do, and it would suit the book both of the Peking government and the Muscovites. Harassment of the United Nations forces would prolong their stay in North Korea through the winter months, and so pin down troops that are needed elsewhere, or require to be repatriated.

Doubtless the incursions will not be treated, politically, as anything more than a nuisance. There is, however, a warning in it—that to delay withdrawal of United States troops till there has been a thorough-going clean-up would be foolish. Authority in the conquered areas, pending U. N. action, should be passed on to the Koreans without delay. It is said there is a shortage of Koreans experienced enough to run local affairs pro tem, but this should not deter the U. N. military command. If local talent is unavailable, officers ought to be picked out from the South Korean army for the purpose. It is easier to get into a situation of this sort than to get out of it, and this will be impossible if there is too much anxiety about doing the mopping up job completely. Guerillas are part of the landscape of such countries as Korea, and they should be left to the Koreans themselves to deal with.

Trouble In Puerto Rico

It would be dignifying the abortive revolt in Puerto Rico to call it a rebellion. Actually the violence incited by fanatical nationalists, which at this writing has caused nearly 30 deaths, is not an indication of popular feeling so much as a peg for Communist propaganda. Indeed, there is good reason to suppose that the Communists had a part in the plot and that it was intended to embarrass the United States before the world by picturing it as an "imperialist oppressor." The people of the island have shown overwhelmingly by their votes that they do not share this view.

Gov. Luis Munoz Marin, against whom one part of the plot was directed, has termed the nationalists a "lunatic movement." The leader of the Nationalist Party, Pedro Albizu Campos, recently served six years in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta for inciting insurrection. His party has never numbered more than a few thousand out of a population of two million. Recently the few hundred members of the Communist Party in Puerto Rico cast their lot with the nationalists, and they may well have taken over direction of the movement. The fact that the insurrectionists were well armed is not surprising, for weapons are available fairly freely in Puerto Rico as in continental United States.

It is important not to confuse the fanatical Nationalist Party with the so-called Independistas, who believe in independence for Puerto Rico through lawful means. The Independence Party garnered approximately 10 percent of the vote in the 1948 election. At the same time the Statehood Party got 20 percent of the vote, the Popular Democratic Party headed by Governor Munoz the remaining 70 percent. Munoz, the first elected Governor in Puerto Rico's history, has proved an exceptionally able executive, with a progressive program. Most Puerto Ricans, though they may want Statehood or even independence ultimately, are sensible enough to know that either at this point would mean economic suicide because of their dependence on financial aid from the United States.

Lodge's "Reservation"

In a radio press quiz on October 26, one of the questions put to Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., was, in substance, how it is that he supports the United Nations so ardently when his grandfather was so violently opposed to the League of Nations.

The Senator's reply, as I understood it, was that his grandfather, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of another day, had not been opposed to the League; that he was "for" it, "with reservations that have since been adopted by all the world." He stated that the United States would have taken membership in the League of Nations had Wilson not "got sick." My inference was that he believed Wilson and Lodge would have gotten together—that Wilson would have accepted the final Lodge reservation, had Wilson not been stricken.

As history records the case, Wilson did accept any number of the Lodge reservations, and finally, just when it appeared that the way was clear for Senate ratification, Senator Lodge turned up with another one which, in Wilson's opinion, "took the heart out of the League." It is recorded that Wilson, before he was stricken, made it very clear that there was no chance of compromise on that reservation, which left the door wide open for imperialist nations to violate the territorial integrity and political independence of small nations without adequate means of their being protected through the leadership and influence of the one great champion of their rights—nonimperialist United States.

This was the final Lodge reservation: The United States assumes no obligation to preserve the territorial integrity or political independence of any other country or to interfere in controversies between nations,—whether members of the League or not,—under the provisions of Article X, or to employ the military or naval forces of the United States under any article of the treaty for any purpose, unless in any particular case the Congress, which, under the Constitution, has the sole power to declare war or authorize the employment of the military or naval forces of the United States, shall by act or joint resolution so provide.

Has all the world since adopted this reservation for inclusion in the Charter of the United Nations? Hardly. Had the United States accepted the principle of that reservation the United Nations would have died this summer following a quick absorption of all Korea by Moscow. Senator Lodge, jr., during the recent interview defended our use of military and naval forces in Korea, stating that the President always had the power at all times to send troops anywhere in the world without a declaration of war.

Maltreated Children

If the writer had life to live over again, one effort toward the general good would seem most worth while—a crusade against the prevalent stupid and vicious conception that children's tender bodies should not be protected by law from physical assault.

It is the lack of public and official intolerance which gives countenance to the child-whippers, who belong in the dark ages. In your issue of October 25 there is another one of those sickening items of news—of a father cruelly beating his 5-year-old daughter. Yet even the Municipal Court judge—though no doubt personally revolted, and giving the man a sentence—felt called upon to repeat the old adage about sparing the rod. It is just this social tolerance which is responsible for the continuing domestic horrors which lie under the surface of society.

In the London Spectator of last August 4, under the heading of "The Ill Treatment of Children in Their Own Homes," there is the following: "It is obviously difficult to interfere between parent and child, but the constant press reports of cruelty, and the facts mentioned in December (when the House of Commons debated an official inquiry) that the thousand or so annual court cases represent only about one sixth of the cases investigated, and the appearance in court may climax years of ill treatment . . . point to the need for action."

The Voice of America will never carry items of news such as that mentioned, but we need not think this aspect of our Western society's standards is not publicized. The "murder of children" in our own country, has been one of the accusations made against us by Russia, and one with more than half-truth behind it.

"Older Workers"

I am wondering why in your editorial of October 24 you doubt the efficacy of attempts at legislative enforcement of nondiscriminatory policy (not hiring workers because of age), while you have often editorially advocated the passage of the Fair Employment Practices law? Wherein should it be more difficult to do away with discrimination because of age than because of color, race, or religion?

Jerusalem's Future

I write as one to whom the spiritual associations of the Holy Land are precious and deeply meaningful and who has but recently returned from an extensive visit to the land. During that stay in Israel I was apprehensive about the future of the city of Jerusalem, for it is Jerusalem with which Palestine's spiritual associations are most closely interwined.

Authoritative reports emanating from Lake Success during the last week indicate that a fresh and, it seems to me, both practical and just approach to the Jerusalem question is being broached at the United Nations by The Netherlands, Sweden and Canada. Their plan for confining international authority and control to religious places in Israel and Arab Palestine (recently annexed by Jordan) would take the place of the unrealizable solution of complete political internationalization of the Jerusalem area. To me as a Roman Catholic it seems significant that even important Roman Catholic sources seem to be thinking in terms not too different from those of the Swedish-Netherlands-Canadian plan.

Let us hope that it will be in an atmosphere of logic and calm that the Jerusalem issue will be debated at the United Nations. Recognizing the realities of the situation will bring us nearer to a solution which will guarantee peace and due security for Christian interests in the Holy City.

County-Wide Voting For Fairfax

Your October 26 communication from Mr. David Lawrence invites comment. I should like, first, though, to point out the very significant contribution made by Mr. Lawrence to the government-reorganization movement that has been sponsored by Fairfax County civic groups. The value of his support for real change in the government form is not reduced in the slightest by the fact that—with the exception of Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Lewis Travis—the still active members of the study commission are publicly confessing their opposition to the executive form which the commission recommended, and to any change now available.

As to Mr. Lawrence's "communication," it seems little more than a restatement of opinions that have been answered many times before. One point may need some elaboration.

The claim that the shift in election method that will come with the manager form will make machine control easy is the most persistent and unsupported claim of those who favor the present method of election by district. The manager form provides that the supervisors—one from each district—will be elected by the vote of the entire county. Every voter will vote for a supervisor from each of the six districts.

How does a machine gain control under each of these methods? With election exclusively by district, a machine needs to get a majority of the vote in at least three districts—in order to elect three of the six supervisors. By concentrating its efforts on organization of the three sparsely settled districts a machine can elect half of the board of supervisors if its influence prevails among the 17,000 residents of these three districts. Even a unanimous vote of 100 percent of the qualified residents among the 83,000 people in the populous districts would not prevent such a machine from gaining control.

With county-wide voting how does a machine get in? It would have to get a majority of the entire county for at least three of the supervisors. In other words, it would have to get a majority vote among about 100,000 residents for three supervisors, instead of a majority vote among 17,000 residents. Which looks easier?

Let's admit, that no form by itself can prevent machine control. Under any form, machine control is made easy—almost inevitable—if voters fail to turn out on election day. How easy or difficult it is to unseat a machine with election by district certainly is easy enough to see. Fairfax County has machine rule now, with election by district, and has had for years. This machine, by working in the three districts with 17,000 residents, is able to continue to elect three of the six supervisors.

Still under district elections—it might be asked how any popular uprising among the county's overwhelming majority of residents could even touch this machine. Even if every qualified citizen registered and voted, with a unanimous vote in each of the three populous districts for one candidate, the machine still could elect half the board. Is it any wonder that citizens of these populous districts have never bothered to vote in the county elections?

Let's see how this—or any—machine can be tossed out with county-wide voting, as provided for by the manager plan. Any movement to free the county from the machine will be successful if a majority of the county's voters supports the movement. In other words, a popular uprising against the machine can win.

The county manager form is not going to bring an automatic end to the present machine, or an automatic preventive against rule by any new machine. No form will. It takes voter participation. But what can be said is this: With county-wide voting, a simple majority of the entire county vote can prevent any small group from gaining control in the first place. With district elections, no simple majority—in fact, no overwhelming majority—can prevent a small group from gaining control so long as that small group is entrenched among the tiny minority in the three sparsely settled districts.

Again, I urge voters who have heard these unsupported charges about machine rule to consider carefully the county-wide voting provided by the manager form and the district voting provided by the present form and the executive form.

Trend Toward Voting Apathy

By Malvina Lindsay

Tuesday: a Gauge

THERE ARE some fears that another 1946 in voting apathy is in prospect for Tuesday. If this proves true, the indicated trend of "sleepers" (nonvoters) to increase will be given disturbing confirmation. Yet there's a chance Tuesday's results could show reversal of the tide.

In the last midterm election, 1946, only about 38 percent of the potential vote was cast, and only 58 percent of the registered vote. There would be less excuse now for such a low response, as the end of the war found many citizens dislocated and uncertain of their suffrage. But even in the presidential election of 1948, only a little over half of the electorate voted, the lowest presidential vote in proportion to potential vote since 1924.

"The deliberate nonvoter," says Louise M. Young in her book Understanding Politics "has become one of the serious problems facing the American people." Yet, as she points out, the citizen's share in the cost of his national Government has increased 300 times since the Republic was founded, and his assessment for State and local government has likewise spiraled. Apparently his only reaction to where the money goes is to grumble about taxes.

THERE ARE some heated contests over personalities that could run up Tuesday's vote. And the campaign is not without its emotional issues, including who's to be blamed for the Korean war. Yet when could more emotion be found than in 1946—over meat shortages, communism, OPA "bureaucrats"?

Recently Louis Bean, economist and predicter of elections, said a light national vote was indicated on the basis of registration figures in New York, which were not much greater than in 1946. And the voting apathy in prospect caused Jennings Randolph, former member of Congress, to tell an audience that the American people are "losing democracy by default." He cited a recent primary in Prince Georges County, Maryland, which drew only 30 percent of eligible voters. Yet the vote in the Maine election, of September 11, was higher than in the presidential election of 1948, and the highest for an "off-year" since 1938.

Get-out-the-vote campaigns of political groups are now in high gear and may push up Tuesday's voting record. But the question remains: Why do people have to be hounded to the ballot box? At a time when the ballot is being lost by many former free men, it would seem that its stock here would inevitably rise.

There are many theories as to why citizens won't "bother" to vote. One blames Government paternalism, saying people have been relieved of so many responsibilities they want everything, including their voting, done for them.

ANOTHER theory blames the widespread cynicism about politics, which is such a popular excuse for not going to the polls. And on all sides there is effort to track the villain to the door of the schoolhouse. Children aren't taught enough history and government, it is claimed. They aren't being made to realize their duties as citizens. Yet the schools are making big-scale, practical efforts as never before to teach citizenship.

For those in search of simple sentence solutions there is also this: People are too busy to vote. Who, it is asked, isn't rushed to death? How can the wage earner, the office worker, the professional man, constantly pushed to crowd activities into a too-short day, find time to vote? How can the mother leave her young children, the tradesman his business?

Yet voting apathy can't be explained by such superficial excuses or by any one theory or factor. Many elements of today's living enter into it.

One scientific attempt to get at its basis is being made by a Rutgers University instructor in political science, Gabriel Gabrelian. In a certain district in a certain ward in New Brunswick, N. J., he will study records of nonvoters, and interview a cross section of them for background information—social, economic, family. He especially wants to find out why so many voters say: "Politics and politicians are corrupt so it doesn't make any difference if I vote. Besides who is going to bother to register and stand in line?"

Getting at the root of this attitude is indeed vital if democratic self-government is not to wither on the vine. Wider research than that of Mr. Gabrelian should be under way.

Proof Of Innocence

Mr. A. P. Arnold, in his letter of October 22, upholds the police action in the Williams case. He feels that Mr. Williams should be glad that he had such a hard time proving himself innocent.

Mr. Arnold should be reminded that a man is innocent until he is proven guilty beyond all reasonable doubt in a court of law. Mr. Williams should not have had to try to prove himself innocent.

As it turned out, Mr. Williams did not prove his own innocence. He was absolved of guilt when the real offender gave himself up. Had that not happened, Mr. Williams might very well have been convicted of a crime he did not commit.

Hope Amid Chaos

West German Industrialists Held Outmoded, Dangerous

(This is the third in a series of five articles on conditions in Western Germany. The author has just returned from a journey to Bonn, Berlin, Munich, Dusseldorf and other population centers, where she interviewed political leaders, industrialists, social workers and labor leaders to gain an insight into German views on economic conditions, European defense and resistance to communism. The fourth article in this series will be published Thursday.)

By Agnes E. Meyer
Post Reporter

The concept of "free enterprise" held by Economics Minister Ehrhardt and his followers among the West German financial interests can only be described in American terms as pro-World War I. Nothing could be more dangerous than such outmoded thinking in a country of mass problems—of unemployment, housing shortage, low wages and high prices—and problems that can only be solved by careful planning and close cooperation between all the public and private agencies.

When I said to Ehrhardt that the unrest among the workers was serious and that August Schmidt, head of the coal-miners unions, had assured me they would strike if they do not get the raise of two marks a day for which they are asking, he banged the table with his heavy fist and shouted: "It won't do them any good. We have pulled these people out of the dirt, but are they satisfied? No."

Workers Salvaged Germany

Now the truth of the matter is that it was not these federal officials who have only been in office just over a year, but the patient, enduring, hard-working average German citizen that pulled Germany out of the dirt. While Germany lay prostrate after its crushing defeat, Hans Bockler, head of the newly revived Gewerkschaften (United Labor Unions), called upon the German workers to come to the rescue of their prostrate nation, to repair bridges, mend the roads and clean up the rubble in the half-destroyed cities, although the mere business of getting something to eat was a day's job in itself.

Many people—even some liberal officials—regret that the workers did not stage a revolution at that time in order to serve notice on their former leaders that the traditional humility and obedience of the German masses was a thing of the past.

"The industrialists listened to us during those first awful years when they needed the workers to rebuild the cities and the factories," said George Reuter, one of the ablest of the union leaders, "but now that the Marshall Plan has supported the industrialists economically and weakened the power of the labor unions, they have no use for us. In your country the unions are heard. In our country they are again overheard."

This arrogance of the political and industrial leaders is all the more absurd because without the continued support of the Marshall Plan, the German government and the whole German economic revival would collapse like a house of cards. Thus it is difficult to see what Minister Ehrhardt's contribution can have been toward pulling the German workers "out of the dirt."

Authoritarianism Back

In fact, the hope that ECA can turn its back on Germany in two years is an illusion. It was no doubt necessary to get the employers' factory wheels moving again, but it is high time we stopped supporting only the possessing classes and tried to encourage genuinely democratic institutions, the labor unions, and other organizations as well as many small industries if we don't want a revival of the early German Reich.

The rumor that Nazism is again in the ascendancy in Germany is sheer fabrication. It is what President Heuss described to me as "an export article of American journalists." But the good old prewar German authoritarianism is back once more in the saddle whether at Bonn or in the Ruhr.

A few of the great industrial firms have private health, recreation and welfare programs for their own workers that surpass those of our own industries. But even these exceptionally paternalistic employers rarely rise above their own problems to think about the nation-wide problems and the plight of the people as a whole. Fortunately there is a group of brilliant young industrialists who have more vision, efficiency and social consciousness than the old group. They realize that the fate of Germany depends upon raising the standard of living and increasing the buying power of the people as a whole. Some of them have managed to increase their average wage rates as high as 350 marks per month. But they are a minority and the old school still dominates the policies of the National Chamber of Commerce.

Unless these younger, more flexible minds among the industrial leadership can save the day, Germany is bound to become a socialist state the moment we pull the props from under the present conservative government and its confederates, the old school industrialists and economists.

THURSDAY: German people lack faith in their government.

Contradictions In Egypt

Childs.

CAIRO.—From a news point of view this is one of the most blacked-out capitals in the world. Censorship falls heavily both on what the people inside the country read and what can be sent out by correspondents for publications abroad.

And the censorship almost invariably exacts a heavy price in rumor and gossip that take the place of the suppressed facts. This is true in all Egypt today. In the Cairo tapestry of rumors some are so incredibly gaudy and fantastic as to the point of downright absurdity.

It may well be that the fact of censorship, with its resulting rumor factory, exaggerates the seriousness of the present situation. When the return of King Farouk was announced by the palace recently, the opposition political parties presented a petition of a startling nature. It warned of the danger of revolt, which would leave the country financially, morally and politically bankrupt. It even went so far as to point out that certain palace advisers were under suspicion in the investigation of the armaments scandal growing out of the war with Israel.

The government told the newspapers they were not to print or refer to the petition. But the order came so late that some papers appeared with big, unexplained white spaces where the columns devoted to the story had been hastily scrapped. It was even harder for the public to understand what was happening when, the following day, some papers printed the government's reply to the petition without any explanation of what it was supposed to be answering.

ACTUALLY, judicious observers here believe the position of the government may be considerably less threatened than the attack by the opposition indicates. In the last analysis the absolute rule of King Farouk depends on two factors.

One of these factors is the loyalty of the army, and he is believed to have that loyalty today. The other is the bent back of the peasant farmer—the fellah—who for 6000 years has been tilling the soil and drawing his water from the Nile in very much the same fashion. The fellah shown in the ancient tomb carvings is almost the same figure in the fields now.

There is modernization of a sort going forward in Egypt today. This is true of education. An effort is being made to make rudimentary education available to all and the universities are being rapidly expanded. In this last, there is significant irony. For it is this very fact of education that may provide the fuel for a revolt—if it comes. The growing number of lawyers, engineers and other professional men are failing to find opportunities in the developing middle class.

The discontent of this group, which is believed to be spreading rapidly, is sometimes even reflected in the press. There is criticism of the extravagance and lavish foreign spending of Egypt's tiny upper class. It is reported even among the younger army officers, who are bitterly resentful of the scandal resulting from the faulty arms for Egyptian troops while high officials were getting generous "commissions."

This matter of scandal is a touchy one for Americans. What the secretary of President Elpidio Quirino of the Philippines put into words is what is in the minds of most officials one encounters around the world. They feel it is out of order for the American pot to call the foreign kettle black. This partly may be the result of the extreme freedom of the press in America.

ONE SOURCE of resentment toward America is the oversensationalized accounts of King Farouk's free-wheeling conduct at home and abroad. But the sources go deeper than that. There is a refrain here similar to that in most of the underdeveloped countries of the Middle East and Far East that are newly come to nationhood and are intensely conscious of their rights and prerogatives.

This refrain is based on two questions that are curiously linked together. The first is: "Why haven't you helped us?" The second is: "Why don't you get out and leave us alone?"

Egypt has just made an approach toward Washington for arms aid, with the intimation that if it isn't forthcoming from the United States then Russia will be given a chance to provide assistance to Egypt to build up its defenses.

At the same time the government and seemingly much public opinion are determined to get the British out of the important base they hold in the Suez Canal zone. This is the last British stronghold in Egypt proper. When a visitor points out to Egyptian officials that maybe this cooperative defense is important, they reply that they are perfectly capable of defending themselves if given the proper weapons.

Another equally deep source of resentment is the stand of the United States toward Palestine at the time of the dispute with Israel. This has been aggravated by the desperate plight of Arab refugees from Palestine. The number of refugees living in tents and caves is put by Egyptians officials at 900,000.

Help us and get out. Give us what we ask for and leave us alone. This must sound very strange to Americans who are asked to pay the bill for this assistance. But nevertheless, it is a fact, and the reasons for it are not hard to find.

OF BOOKS AND BRENTANO'S

Children's books are better than ever! Today's moppets have literally hundreds of inexpensive, well-written, beautifully illustrated books to grow up with. The best way to prove this to yourself is to drop in this week at the Children's Book Fair in the lobby of the Department of Commerce Building. All of the new children's books will be displayed there through Friday, Nov. 3rd. Any book that catches your fancy, or what's more important, your youngster's, may be found, of course, at Brentano's . . . With politics in the autumn air again, at least one new book, WASHINGTON ADVENTURE ($2.00), gives youngsters 8 to 12 a fascinating glimpse of their political city when their great-great-great grandparents were preparing to welcome President John Adams to the White House in 1800. It's an exciting story, too . . . Songs that are fun to sing and pictures that are fun to look at make ANIMAL FOLK SONGS FOR CHILDREN ($2.50) an inevitable stopping-place for almost every child who wanders through Brentano's . . . There's an enviable fellow in Warrenton, Va., who has as pleasant a way of earning a living as anyone you might think of. His name is Wesley Dennis, and he illustrates horse stories for children. Right now on the shelves there are four new books which he illustrated, and it should be added that he edited one of them himself, too: 24 HORSES, A TREASURY OF HORSE STORIES ($2.50); BORN TO TROT ($2.75); COPPER KHAN ($2.50); and PALOMINO AND OTHER HORSES ($2.50) . . . Speaking of horses, and apparently youngsters do little else, there's another story for older children, non-Dennis this time, about an untamed horse and a brave boy at Culver Military Academy, BLACK HORSE OF CULVER ($2.50) . . . An unidentified man-child on the sunny side of six created a minor stir in the Arlandria store Friday when he fought off sales-clerks and unseen redskins and successfully made his way outside and presumably to his hideout with a copy of THE BIG BOOK OF INDIANS clutched to his breast and a menacing six-shooter in his good right hand . . . STOP AND BROWSE: with CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS, DISCOVERER ($1.50), illustrated by Janice Holland of Washington; COAT OF MANY COLORS ($2.50), the story of Joseph for older readers; DUKE OF THE BRUINS ($2.50), a thrilling yarn about professional football for older boys.

Matter Of Fact

The Dirksen Formula

CHICAGO. — Former Congressman Everett McKinley Dirksen, in a casual remark to this reporter, summed up the basis for both Republican hopes and Republican strategy throughout this area. Dirksen is trying to unseat the well-entrenched Democratic majority leader, Senator Scott Lucas. He is confident he will do so. Asked why, he replied, "The people are dissatisfied. They are sort of frustrated. They know something has gone very wrong."

This sense of dissatisfaction certainly exists—and it is certainly the function of an opposition party to exploit it. But much depends on how this is done. A speech Dirksen made last Sunday at a Republican rally in the prosperous Chicago suburb of Oak Park may be taken as a fair sample of the technique of exploiting dissatisfaction.

DIRKSEN'S speaking style is intensely ecclesiastical, like that of a rather gloomy and unctuous parson, with an added suggestion of a radio uncle telling children's bedtime stories. The ecclesiastical note was struck at the outset. Dirksen told how an old man had asked him how his mother would have felt about his campaigning on a Sunday. Dirksen replied that she would have approved highly, because he was engaged, not in a political campaign, but in a crusade, spreading "Holy Doctrine."

Dirksen then proceeded to outline the "real issues of this campaign." His old and dear friend, Carl Vinson, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, has said that spending the high taxes and the drafting of young men "must go on and on and on." This meant, he said, "windrows of young men marching away" to an uncertain fate.

DIRKSEN also says that aid to Europe (for which he himself fought effectively in his last term in Congress) is "throwing money down a bottomless pit." Thus you have the essence of the Dirksen formula for exploiting the dissatisfaction and frustration of the voters. He is clearly convinced that the voters' resentment against the draft, high taxes, Korean casualties, and all the other heavy burdens of American world leadership, can be exploited in such a way that conservative isolation can again triumph in the Middle West.

Dirksen's enemies say that his reconversion to isolationism really springs from a conversation between Dirksen and Col. Robert R. McCormick, in McCormick's lair in the Tribune tower. It is true that McCormick exercises a veto power over Republican nominations in Illinois, and that Dirksen wanted very much to be nominated. But Dirksen also wants very much to be elected, and he is an extremely astute politician. He has changed his mind on great issues of national policy before this—no less than 63 times, according to the count of the Chicago Sun-Times, and he has usually succeeded in switching to the popular side of issues.

MEANWHILE, there were two aspects of the Dirksen meeting at Oak Park which seemed significant. First, every person present was quite obviously already a convinced Republican. Second, every person present was well on in years. Virtually every Republican rally this reporter has attended has had the same characteristics.

In short, the Republican Party is in danger of becoming a permanent minority party — and this is a real danger to the American political system.

No Policy Fixed Yet On Air Raid Signals

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

A national policy on air raid warning sirens is as far away today as it ever has been.

One result is that Washington officials are up in the air about what to do to let the public know if warning should come of an impending A-bomb or other air attack.

This is the situation, as indicated by a check of the agencies involved:

At the recent conference of mayors here, James J. Wadsworth, acting head of the civil defense office in the National Securities Resources Board, was asked about air raid sirens. The mayors wanted to know if there was going to be any Federally-approved type or whether it would be better to use steam whistles or church bells, as a Congressman has suggested for Washington.

Wadsworth said the Bureau of Standards was working on a project to determine the best system and that the mayors would be told about it in due course. They got the impression the Government wanted all cities to use pretty much the same type of public warning device. Some thought the Federal Government might buy the devices and then sell them to the cities at cost.

But a check now shows that nothing is being done at the Bureau of Standards. In fact, it appears they haven't even heard from NSRB. A call did come in from the Pentagon to the effect that the bureau should be prepared to make some tests. But that's all.

An NSRB official said last week that it really comes down to money. He indicated the Bureau of Standards wouldn't move without having the funds to make the tests anyway. And NSRB hasn't got that sort of money.

In fact, NSRB has been trying for over two months to find someone to head the proposed Office of Civilian Defense which President Truman two months ago said he was about to establish by executive order. The order is gathering dust while various candidates approached turn down the offer.

Wadsworth himself is known to have said that anyone with enough sense to run the agency has enough sense not to take the job.

Washington's acting civil defense boss, Police Inspector John E. Fondahl, told The Washington Post that he has been thinking of some sort of makeshift arrangement which might be set up pending directions and information from NSRB. One idea is to roll all the city's fire engines out of their firehouses and turn on all the sirens at once.

Supposedly that would make enough noise at night to wake up the whole town. But it would be lost in the daytime city din, Fondahl said he has been told.

New York last week installed the first of 204 air raid sirens left over from World War II. Soon they will cover the city. But Washington unfortunately sold its sirens as surplus, many of them to volunteer fire departments in nearby areas.

When the District asked Congress to vote a $290,000 civil defense fund, it planned to spend $20,000 for such devices. But since only $100,000 was appropriated, just $7000 is available for the warning systems. So far nothing has been bought.

Meanwhile, Washington is hooked into the Air Force's provisional aircraft warning system by a phone which comes into the Eighth Precinct Station at 42d and Albemarle sts. nw. If a call were to come from the Air Forces today that an enemy bombing fleet is on the way, the policeman charged with answering the phone would be supposed to call the police and fire departments' radio system so that an alarm could be spread.

But there wouldn't be any way to tell the public unless someone were willing to take the responsibility of asking the radio stations to make an announcement. Even that wouldn't do much good for the citizens who had turned off their radios or who don't have radios.

The District is supposed, in turn, to alert the nearby Maryland counties and a makeshift phone system has been laid out to inform the authorities in the counties.

But the officials on the Virginia side of the Potomac won't hear from Washington. They're supposed to get their information from a warning phone down in Winchester, Va., and there aren't any public warning sirens or other devices in either the Maryland or Virginia counties.

Dentist Builds Miniature Racing Cars

Dr. Swanson

Dr. John Swanson, Washington dentist, is a man who likes his cars fast. And despite the fact that he's run them up to 139 miles an hour, he never gets a ticket.

Simply explained, Dr. Swanson is a miniature automobile racing enthusiast. He designs and builds them in the workshop of his home at 8303 Ellingson dr., Silver Spring.

The miniature racing cars, explains Dr. Swanson, are 1½ feet in length and are scaled-down replicas of regular racing cars.

They are powered by a 2-cycle motor and contain a gas tank, a complete ignition system including a magneto, and a reduction gearing system.

The drive tires are semipneumatic and expand as the motor picks up speed. As there is no transmission, this expansion acts as a method of increasing the gear ratio.

The cars are run against time on a circular concrete track that is one twenty-fourth of a mile in circumference. In the center of the track is a steel post to which is fitted a ball bearing. A wire runs from the post swivel device to the car.

Dr. Swanson, who started his unique hobby about three years ago, attained a speed of 139.83 mph with one of his miniature racers last summer in a national meet at Anderson, Ind. The national record for the small cars is 144.96 mph.

A member of the American Miniature Racing Car Association, Dr. Swanson competes in race meets throughout the East during the summer months.

NEW... fall-grade

Esso EXTRA Gasoline

A big new EXTRA at the Esso Sign

Helps prevent stalling*
in your car!

NOW, FOR THE FIRST TIME IN MOTORING HISTORY — a revolutionary new fall-grade gasoline that resists stalling...annoying conk-outs at traffic lights or parking, and that sputter-and-stall trouble during the first few minutes of driving.

It's especially good in cars with AUTOMATIC TRANSMISSIONS — where restarting after stalling is more troublesome.

IT'S ANOTHER BIG EXTRA FOR YOUR MONEY IN ESSO EXTRA — the high-test gasoline long famous for quick starting, fast warm-up, high anti-knock power and long mileage! And Esso Extra is the ONLY premium gasoline with patented Esso Solvent Oil that fights harmful engine deposits.

Don't stall another day...

And when you're in, there's no better time to let your Esso Dealer give your car a complete check-up for the winter driving you'll be doing!

*Don't let this happen to you!

Stalling that occurs on cool, humid days (30° to 55° temperatures, humidity above 65%) is generally caused by carburetor "icing." Evaporation of the highly volatile gasolines required for modern cars has a refrigerating effect which freezes moisture out of the air, accumulating icy frost in the carburetor. New Fall-Grade Anti-Stalling Esso Extra Gasoline helps eliminate this cause of stalling, which is experienced with most cars on the road today. It will not, of course, prevent stalling caused by faulty carburetor adjustment or electrical failure.

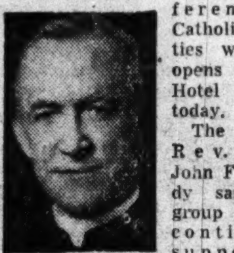
Catholic Charities Parley to Open Here



Msgr. O'Grady

Public housing and the displaced person will be the two chief topics of the thirty-sixth annual meeting of the National Conference of Catholic charities which opens at the Hotel Statler today.

The Right Rev. Msgr. John F. O'Grady said the group would continue its support for public housing, would take no stand on rent control.

The executive secretary of the conference added it would work for a broadening of the present DP Act, especially in regard to increasing immigration from Italy. He said one of its chief objectives will be in work with other church groups to aid the resettlement of 200,000 DPs "so that they may be able to make the most effective contribution to the American defense program."

Monsignor O'Grady will be given a testimonial luncheon at 12:30 p. m. today at the Statler in honor of his thirtieth year as NCCC executive secretary.

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, and several hundred priests and laymen prominent in Catholic charity work in scores of cities in the United States and Canada will attend.

Host to the five-day meeting is Catholic Charities of Washington. The annual meeting of the National Society of St. Vincent de Paul will held jointly. More than 1500 delegates are expected to attend the meeting.

Alexandria Case

Annexation Trial's End Due Today

Annexation of 7½ square miles of Fairfax County by Alexandria would not imperil the financial structure of a proposed eight-million-dollar county sewage program, a Richmond accountant contended in Fairfax Circuit Court yesterday.

James A. Rennie testified as a rebuttal witness for Alexandria in the city's annexation suit against the county. He said his study of the county's sewage plans convinced him they would be financially sound even if Alexandria is awarded the land it seeks. The disputed territory is part of the county's Sanitary District No. 1, for which the improvement program is planned.

Rennie said he believed the county would gain a surplus of more than two million dollars from a combination of service charges and taxes after the improvement program is completed.

James J. Corbalis, county sanitary engineer, testified for the county Monday he believed the sewage program would be "operationally and financially" unsound if part of the sanitary district were removed from the county's jurisdiction.

Corbalis was cross-examined yesterday by Horace H. Edwards, attorney for Alexandria. He admitted that the sanitary district would receive "some financial benefit" by annexation through the fact that it would be relieved of the cost of some proposed improvements and also would receive a payment from Alexandria for facilities acquired.

The case is expected to end today, with presentation of final arguments, beginning at 10 a. m.

Trashman, 30, Held for Jury In Stab Slaying

Lue Ouzts, 30, of 704 Lamont st. nw., was held for the grand jury on a charge of murder yesterday as a result of the ice pick slaying Monday night of a fellow trash collector, Charles I. Rivers, 22, of 513 Kenyon st. nw.

Rivers was pronounced dead on arrival at Freedmen's Hospital, where he was taken by a passing motorist after a fight in an alley behind the Lamont st. address.

Ouzts was treated at Freedmen's for severe lacerations of the face and head, while a third man police said was in the altercation, Vincent Gough, 23, of 753 Morton st. nw., was treated for a cut on his left hand.

At a coroner's inquest yesterday, Detective Sergt. Grayson Chapman of the Homicide Squad testified Ouzts told him each of the three men, with two others, had drunk a fifth of wine in his room when an argument started.

Police quoted Ouzt as saying Rivers struck him in the face before he stabbed Rivers.

Void Warrant, Lewis' Lawyer Asks Court

Attorneys for William (Snags) Lewis and 18 others accused of bookmaking yesterday attacked the warrant under which the group was arrested more than 19 months ago.

Motions to quash the warrant, suppress evidence and return property seized were filed in Prince Georges County Circuit Court, Marlboro.

The legality of the warrant was upheld in District Court here, when Lewis and 13 others were tried on charges of gambling and conspiracy. That trial ended in a hung jury, and the defendants were extradited to Prince Georges County.

All 19 defendants were arrested March 25, 1949, at 4310 46th ave., Bladensburg, Md., in one of eight simultaneous raids under the leadership of U. S. Attorney George Morris Fay.

Resort Fashions From District Hailed at Bermuda Show

By Evelyn Hayes
Post Reporter

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Oct. 31. American resort fashions ended a cruise to Bermuda today by starring in a spectacular benefit show at the Princess Hotel here.

Beautiful clothes, designed for sea voyage or vacation jaunt, were brought to Bermuda by Julius Garfinckel & Co. of Washington and displayed by Washington models and attractive members of Bermuda's Junior Service League. The fashion preview was part of a cocktail dance for the benefit of the league.

Hundreds of residents and American visitors crowded into the hotel to gaze with delight upon this advance collection of resort and cruise creations from America's leading designers.

For those interested in le dernier cri in fashion the news seemed to be in the many kinds of slimness the designers could achieve—slim stark sheath, the trumpet silhouette, the slim dress with pleats and the chemise coat dress which registered high in audience appeal.

Natural linen is in the news again, slimmer and more soignee than ever, in all sorts of casual clothes. For the purposes of the show, it was called Bermuda Sand but its still everybody's favorite nature color. Starring here was a forward looking costume by Tina Leser made of natural linen. The coat was a full-length straight kimona, sleeved and cuffed, with most edges piped in Navy blue to match the separate Navy jersey top. The skirt, a slim affair with wide buckled waistband, would serve endless uses in a resort wardrobe, or a Washington wardrobe for that matter.

Worn by Mrs. Llewelyn Gibbons, this costume posed a loose chemise coat over a slim one-piece dress with pleated skirt. The fashion premium here is the coat, which is worn unbelted as a coat then belted to double as an extra dress.

Bathing suits, as usual, were the show stoppers with the holiday mood guests. The highlight was a two-piece made of ribbon cut on all sides with as much brevity as the law allows. The top was simply a strategic crossing of the wide bands of blue ribbon, the panties scanty. A brilliant blue and green serape, a stole kind of a thing, serves as coverup.

For evening a dark carnation-red looked very new, especially in a slip-short dinner dress of red satin by Dior worn by Mrs. John Hornburg, leading social light here. Also Traina Norell's new note in the trumpet silhoutte, a dark red heavy silk sheathe with flaring flounce at the bottom and an outsize flower on one shoulder.

As though to send every woman away talking and the men away whistling, the show ended with a Dior copy, a seductive evening gown with strapless clinging bodice of red sequins and a billowing skirt of yards and yards of matching net.

'Dummy' Shell Fires, Wrecks Armory, Travels 15 Blocks

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

THE RICHMOND BLUES—Sergt. Carl Garrison (right) points out path of what was supposed to be a dummy shell before it smashed through 4-inch wall of the Blues Armory in Richmond. Sergt. Thomas Johnson holds back picture the shell narrowly missed. Armory was left a shambles

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 31 (AP). A field artillery practice shell discharged during National Guard training here tonight and the projectile landed more than 15 blocks away.

The 75-millimeter projectile slammed through a four-inch wall of Blues armory and soared through the air for 15 blocks before bouncing off the porches of four houses and landing in a street.

Col. W. G. Warton, commander of the First Battalion, 176th Infantry, said one of his companies was going through "dummy" practice when the shell went off as the gunner pulled the lanyard.

One member of the battalion, who was walked up the steps in the armory, was cut by flying glass. No other injuries were reported.

The armory itself, however, was a shambles. More than 100 windows were shattered, a large hole was torn in the wall, venetian blinds were knocked down, plastering was torn off the walls and furniture was overturned.

Colonel Warton said the shell had been issued as a dummy round. He was at a loss to explain how the practice shell could have been placed in the "dummy" ammunition shipment.

Members of the unit explained that an artillery practice shell has an explosive charge with a dummy projectile. A strictly "dummy" shell is absolutely harmless.

Low Bid Announced For Georgia Ave. Job

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31 (AP).—The Leo Butler Company of College Park today submitted a low bid of $44,639 for the installation of storm sewer outfalls adjacent to Georgia ave. extended in Silver Spring.

The work is part of the project for converting Georgia Avenue to a dual highway from Silver Spring north. The outfalls will be installed along Hildarose ave. and Windham la.

The FAR EAST and US...

The Furore

This concern is being singled out (The Washington Post, editorially describing it as "Senator O'Conor's Subcommittee, amid something of a furore, has launched an inquiry . . . pillorying the Isbrandtsen Line")—yes, set upon, by certain high-pressure groups, which probably think that the Government does not act quickly enough, or not at all, in what they (these groups) want the Administration to accomplish.

Trade With the Far East

We, of course, have reference to this Country's trade with the Far East, in which we have been engaged over the years. We are not the only concern carrying on trade with the Far East. We go there regularly.

Our Government itself owns a steamship line that goes there regularly, and our Government subsidizes other American lines that serve that part of the world.

We take legitimate cargo in, and we take legitimate cargo out—substantially the same types as those other lines carry, in and out.

Foreign Trade Is a Two-Way Transaction

When one emerges from the Union Railroad Station in the Nation's Capital, among the several impressive carvings on the Washington General Post Office Building, adjacent, is the following:

> "He who would bring home the wealth of the Indies, must carry the wealth of the Indies with him."

No Blockade

The Department of State has taken the position, and maintained the same, consistently, that "it could not admit the legality" of what the Chinese Government had announced as a "Port Closure Order," nor could the Department acknowledge the blockade as to either North China, South China or the entire China mainland coast. Now, as long as these are the policies of our Administration, its representatives should not stay in the background, and permit people like us to be attacked by high-pressure groups—not even by a one-man subcommittee of a subcommittee of 5 Senators of a Senate Committee of 13 Senators.

A United East

Since the Nationalist Government in China expired, a completely new situation presents itself in Asia: solidarity in the East which we, in the trade, have seen coming for many years—includes Indonesia, India, the Philippines and other Asiatic countries.

President Truman has said:

> "We believe that we have much in common with the people of the Far East. Their older civilizations have much to teach us. We hope our new developments may be helpful to them. We know that the people of Asia cherish their freedom and independence. We sympathize with that desire and will help them to attain and defend their independence. Our entire history proclaims our policy on that point."

On October 19, 1950, the State Department said, before the one-man Senate Subcommittee of the Subcommittee, sitting all alone in New York, in Washington, and maybe at other way stations—while the other 95 members of the U. S. Senate are home, vacationing or campaigning:

> "It would be fair to say that whereas the Korean War constitutes a major threat to the security interests of the United States in the Far East and in the world, we do have an interest at the same time in preserving a system of multilateral free trading the world over, which it would be undesirable to complicate excessively by government intervention where that is not necessary."

The Dilemma

Apparently this is the dilemma that now confronts us:

(1) Should we continue to trade with China and the Far East?
(2) Should we stop all trading with that part of the world?
(3) Should we spit them in the face?
(4) Should we even go to war with them?
Let's be realistic—these are the signposts—which road do we intend to take?

We have stated our position publicly, time and again, namely that we consider that mutual trade relations will do most to relieve this world tension, and, from the quotes we have given above, and other public expressions we have seen, from our Government officials, it appears that they, underneath it all (and they have all the facts) also realize that this mutual trade which we, like the State Department, have been advocating, is the sensible course to pursue—from a national standpoint—economically, and otherwise.

It cannot be otherwise—we here cannot continually go on with such a high cost economy—having the taxpayers (without benefit of referendum) subsidize almost everything—give our goods away to ¼ of the world while having our claimed superiority challenged and questioned by the other 3/4!

More Furore

Our Company does not make any trade regulations. Our Government agencies make them. We abide by them. Even so, the rules are changed in the middle of the road and cargo—medicines even—lawfully loaded on a ship—is being threatened with being yanked off overnight by agencies prodded to hysteria by the publicity-seeking and peripatetic one-man subcommittee of a subcommittee of five (of which he is not even Chairman) of a Senate Committee of thirteen members. (The attack upon us was first commenced when a senator took a seaman's letter for Gospel—without bothering to check on it first, opening up amid great fanfare a so-called "Investigation" during which the seaman in question retracted his charges and regretted having written the letter.)

We continue on rendering public service in the foreign commerce of the United States, with the long range point of view always in mind, and attempting to hold on carefully to whatever goodwill we may have left.

Take a city like Tientsin, China, for example, with its large population, its spinning mills, its increasing industries for its teeming millions. It serves as the terminus for export goods from a large part of the northern sections of China whose farmers, merchants, manufacturers and artisans are old customers of ours, and we old customers of theirs. By the latter three views of the foregoing dilemma it is proposed that we turn our backs on this entirely. Why? Are we losing our heads altogether?

Surely we cannot all be subsidized or go on the public payroll even if Senator O'Conor thinks so!

Our firm is engaged in substantial transportation. It is an important unit in the foreign commerce of the United States, carrying along in the old American tradition.

That's our direction finder!

A-Bomb Fears Drawing City Folk to Farms

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Fear of the atomic bomb is driving quite a few city families back to the farms.

In fact, Agriculture Department officials say that the World War II bomb is answering the question asked in the World War I song: "How You Going to Keep Them Down on the Farm?"

Department economists are deep in a study of the reasons for a sudden burst of interest in farm life on the part of city dwellers. The complete report will be published next month. So far they have determined three chief influences:

1. Desire to get away from probable targets of atomic attack.
2. Investments in farm land as a hedge against inflation.
3. Belief that there are to be huge profits realized from livestock growing, because of the long continued high prices for meats.

The result has been a stiffening of farm land prices in almost all areas, and particularly in the Midwest.

At the same time that city people are drifting to the farms to escape inflation or bombs, defense jobs are luring some farm workers to the cities, other experts, both of the Agriculture and the Commerce Department, told a farm meeting yesterday. However, it was emphasized this drift is not sufficient to endanger farm output this year.

Bureau of Agricultural Economics officials also revealed they are working with the Virginia Bankers Association and the agricultural commission of the American Bankers Association on a survey of the agricultural resources of Virginia—the first such statewide survey ever made.

So far this survey, which also will be released next month, shows that during the prosperous war and postwar years most farmers substantially reduced or paid off their debts.

Nearly two thirds of all Virginia farmers, the survey has disclosed, owe less than $50. "A large part of the farm debt is apparently owed by relatively few farmers whose financial position is markedly different than indicated as a whole for agriculture." Norman J. Wall, head of the division of agricultural finance, told the Agricultural Outlook Conference.

Many of the largest debts have been incurred recently, Wall said. "A recent analysis of the loan portfolio of two large life insurance companies showed that slightly more than two thirds of the dollar volume of their farm-mortgage loans had been outstanding less than three years," he said.

The same Virginia survey disclosed that although they are out of debt, the farmers of the Old Dominion aren't rolling in cash.

"The survey showed," Wall said," that 39 percent of the farmers had liquid assets of less than $50. Another 16 percent had more than $50 but less than $250."

Wall emphasized that BAE did not consider the result in Virginia necessarily "representative for the United States." But it indicated that financial assets are unevenly distributed among farm people.

"Despite the rapid expansion of farmer-owned currency, bank deposits, and United States savings bonds," he said, "there remain many farmers who hold few or no such assets. Studies . . . indicate that in early 1949 more than one fourth of the spending units headed by farm operators had no bank deposits or Government bonds. Almost another one fourth had such assets of less than $500."

Although farm debts have increased, they have not kept pace with the increase in the value of farms, Wall said. The value of the owners' equities in the Nation's farm lands on January 1 next, Wall estimated at 121½ billion dollars. It was 114½ billion in 1950; 116½ billion in 1949, 90 billion in 1946.

Baltimorean Buys Laurel for Reported 2 Million

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THERE IS going to be nothing very special about this year's Pimlico Special which they are running on Friday at the Baltimore track. Conceived as a dream race in 1937 by Alfred Gwynn Vanderbilt, and justifying that label for most of its 13 renewals, this week's presentation stacks up as just another hoss race.

Povich

The big stables are ducking the Special as if it weren't worth while, and to be candid about it, it isn't, in the coldly commercial view. It's for a mere $15,000 purse, a peanut-sized sum in these days of inflationary prizes.

Warren Wright's Calumet stable, which has provided no fewer than five Special winners in the past, has ignored the whole Maryland season to shoot at the $50,000 and $100,000 purses in California. Hill Prince, the 3-year-old Virginia gentleman which is probably the closest thing to the Horse of the Year, is similarly in California.

The cruelest blow of all to the Special, however, is the defection of Alf Vanderbilt himself, who is sending his two good entries Next Move and Loser Weeper after the big California stakes and giving the brush to the race he originated.

AS IT STANDS now, there is doubt that the field for the Special will total more than four, topped by One Hitter, three-time conqueror of Noor, and he won't be running against much. The Brookmeade Stable declined with thanks on behalf of Greek Ship, recent winner of the $50,000 Gold Cup and Jamaica, and Thomas Gray has pulled out Oil Capitol.

Those two will be shooting at the $30,000 purse in New York on Saturday, and can hardly be blamed for skipping the Pimlico race. The almighty buck is still a potent asset in anybody's stable, and the glory of winning the Special won't buy any oats or boxcar space.

Time was, though, when the Special was a compelling attraction and horse owners were more sporting-minded about the whole thing, and an invitation to the Special was something highly prized. You had to win one of the country's 34 big stake races to be eligible.

The fact that they stage it on a winner-take-all basis, with no consolation money stamped the Special as a race apart from all the others. On that basis it was a throw-back to the romantic roots of the sport when horse owners used to race their steeds for the prime satisfaction of seeing them beat the best around.

IN THE FIRST running, in 1937, Sam Riddle permitted his Three-Year-Old of The Year, War Admiral, to race in the Special for a mere $5680 purse, and put in completely with Vanderbilt's idea of de-commercializing at least one race. Riddle almost paid dearly for his magnanimity. War Admiral was a beaten horse until Masked General, with only 100 pounds on his back, ran wide in the stretch.

The greatest Special of all was probably run the next year when Riddle and the late Charles S. Howard agreed to match War Admiral and Seabiscuit for a $15,000 purse. That race could have commanded a $100,000 stake at any other major track, but the two owners asked no more. With both horses weighted at 120 pounds, the race produced the Special's first and greatest upset.

War Admiral was the favorite, was famous for both his early foot and staying power, and had the favored position on the rail. Imagine the gasps of the Pimlico crowd then when Georgie Wolff got Seabiscuit off first and took the track away from War Admiral to move in front on the rail. Down the backstretch they raced as one horse, stride for stride, and then on the last turn Seabiscuit pulled away to leave the Admiral up the track.

APPARENTLY Owner Riddle didn't like the ride Charley Kurtsinger gave War Admiral. Anyway, he fired Kurtsinger as his stable rider. But Wolff was back in the Special a couple of more times, winning with Challedon in 1940, and with Whirlaway in a walkover in 1942. It has been a list of great horses that has won the Special—including Market Wise, Shut Out, Armed, Assault, Twilight Tear, Fervent and Citation.

The Calumet Stable probably cooled on the Special after last year's experience when it sent the poorly prepared Coaltown, a high favorite, to the post against Capot and saw him licked. With that, Calumet has doubtless considered it has done its duty to the Special.

There's less excuse for Vanderbilt to run out on the race he dreamed up. Though no longer the president of Pimlico, he is still a heavy stockholder, and the same man who used to plead with owners to do something big for racing by running for the modest purse of the Special. If Vanderbilt is disenchanted, well . . .

Nats Seek Guerra From Athletics For Al Evans

A deal that would bring Catcher Mickey Guerra to the Nats from the Philadelphia Athletics in a swap for Catcher Al Evans is "under consideration," Clark Griffith said yesterday.

"We made the offer 10 days ago and it hasn't been turned down yet," said Griffith. He denied a report that Roy Mack of the A's had overruled Co-owner Earl Mack, with whom Griffith had been negotiating.

Manager Bucky Harris first broached the deal to the A's in an attempt to obtain a Spanish-speaking catcher to give a lift to his three Cuban pitchers.

The 33-year-old Evans was replaced as the Nats' No. 1 catcher last season by Mickey Grasso after hitting only .231. Guerra, 35, formerly the property of the Nats, batted .281.

'Railroaded Out' Of NFL, Lions' End End Bob Mann

DETROIT, Oct. 31 (AP).—End Bob Mann, who has been engaged in a running verbal battle with the Detroit Lions since they declined to give him a pay raise this season, charged today he had been "railroaded out of the National Football League."

The former University of Michigan star was traded to the New York Yanks this fall after he failed to come to contract terms with the Lions. He went to the New York Club in exchange for Bobby Layne, but was cut loose after a couple of exhibition games.

"I'm convinced I was railroaded out of the league as I never was given a fair chance to make the New York team," the Negro end declared today.

Mann's claimed that the NFL teams have a "gentleman's agreement not to claim players termed undesirable by other teams."

Scarbath's Shoulder Hurt in Scrimmage

Jack Scarbath, Maryland's ace sophomore quarterback, hurt his shoulder in scrimmage yesterday.

It was not known whether the injury was serious enough to keep him from directing Maryland's split-T attack against George Washington Saturday.

With men who know football players best, the coaches, Maryland's Bobby Ward is one of the best—a real candidate for All-America honors.

That's the solicited opinion of head coaches whose teams have played against the 180-pound Terrapin guard the past three years.

All along, Coach Jim Tatum of Maryland has maintained that his hard-hitting, dynamic little linemen is "an All-America football player if there ever was one," but Tatum's indorsement of Ward is mild compared to the compliments opposing coaches pay the Great Guard Ward.

COACH WALLY BUTTS, who has taken Georgia teams to every major bowl game and whose Bulldogs beat Maryland, wired The Washington Post: "Bob Ward definitely best guard Georgia has played against this season. He's one of best I have ever seen. He is very aggressive and quick."

BIGGIE MUNN, whose Michigan State received a 34-7 trouncing at the hands of Maryland, says: "In our game with Maryland, Ward wrecked us. We were unable to run a play through, around or over him. I've never seen a busier or smarter linemen. He's terrific." Munn was an All-American guard at Minnesota.

BEATTIE FEATHERS, whose North Carolina State team slapped down Maryland three weeks ago in one of the year's big upsets, sizes up Ward this way: "My team has played against Ward for two years and I have been coaching for seven years. I have not seen a better guard. He is truly a coach's dream ballplayer."

GEORGETOWN'S BOB MAGRITA, whose Hoyas gave the Terps the scare of a lifetime before yielding, says: "Bob Ward is finest guard we have seen all year. Can play on any football club anywhere."

NAVY'S EDDIE ERDELATZ, a standout lineman himself at St. Mary's and later line coach of the San Francisco '49ers, thinks: "Bob Ward may be the best college guard I have ever seen. Definitely best lineman we have faced. Is very effective against all types of offense. I think his success is result of extremely fast reactions and terrific competitive urge. He is a football player's player."

SOUTH CAROLINA'S REX ENRIGHT, former Notre Dame quarterback, offers this opinion; "Bob Ward certainly should be ranked with the top linemen in the country. In our two games with Maryland (Editor's Note: 1948 and 1949), his performance was outstanding. He is certainly the finest guard we have played against."

BO ROWLAND, the usually reserved George Washington coach whose Colonials go up against Ward & Co. at College Park, Saturday, believes "Ward a topflight lineman. Against Navy, the only game I've seen him play this year, he was terrific. Has strong determination."

FROM DON FAUROT, whose Missourians were beaten, 20-7, by Maryland in last January's Gator Bowl game: "Ward was great against us in Gator Bowl. He is the best lineman we have ever met."

GEORGE BARCLAY, an All-American guard at North Carolina 16 years ago and present head coach at Washington & Lee, says: "Ward is the perfect example of a perfect guard. He can't be fooled. I coached him a year at Maryland and that was time enough for me to decide I've never seen anything like him for ability, determination and football savvy."

One of the better testimonials to Wards ability came from the press box announcer during the third quarter of the Michigan State-Maryland game.

"In the State backfield now are the same players who were in it in the first quarter—Grandelius, Crane, Dorow, Pison and Ward."

Miami 'Yanks' Plenty Tough

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Miami, heretofore noted for drawing Northern tourists to sunny Florida, has expanded operations to include luring good Northern football players.

It well could be termed Operation Success. The unbeaten University of Miami has soared to the eighth spot in the AP poll and ranks thirteenth in the UP coaches' balloting.

Georgetown, with one rather lonesome win in five outings, figures to provide Andy Gustafson's Miami team with its sixth straight triumph Friday night in the Orange Bowl.

The Miami squad has a decided Yankee accent with 16 Pennsylvanians, nine New Jerseyites, four Ohioans and two New Yorkers.

Their deeds have left Georgetown End Coach Jack Prendergast properly impressed. He scouted Miami in its routs of Boston U., 34-7, and Pitt, 28-0.

Says Jack, "In the press box at Pittsburgh, they were comparing Miami's personnel favorably with that of any team in the country with the possible exception of Ohio State.

"Miami's a rough, tough, aggressive team. Nearly a dozen Pitt boys were carried off the field. Their blocking is ferocious. Miami's playing to win and they feel they can go all the way.

"Personally, I rate Miami over Maryland both offensively and defensively."

For Great Comeback

Sportswriters Name Ben Hogan 'Golfer of Year' in PGA Poll

CHICAGO, Oct. 31 (AP).—National Open Champion Ben Hogan, 1950's gallant comebacker, today was voted the P. G. A.'s "Golfer of the Year."

Hogan was named 112 times in overwhelming support by 173 sports writers and radio sportscasters voting in the Third Annual Professional Golfers Association Poll. Sam Snead, the 1949 award winner, was second, 43 votes behind the little Texan.

Hogan and Snead were far ahead of any other candidates. Ballots also were cast for Lloyd Mangrum, Jim Ferrier, Jimmy Demaret, Jack Burke, jr., Dick Metz, Henry Ransom and Chandler Harper.

Hogan's comeback from a near-fatal auto accident captured the golfing public fancy as nothing had done since Bobby Jones' Grand Slam. Last January, less than a year after his mishap, Hogan picked the Los Angeles Open to begin his campaign. After a 73 in the opening round, he fired three consecutive 69's to tie Snead for the title.

Hogan finished fourth in the Master's and third in the Colonial meet at Fort Worth. He climaxed his comeback by winning the National Open. The gritty little pro authored rounds of 72-69-72-74—237, to gain a three-way deadlock with Mangrum and George Fazio. In the playoff, he carved a 69 to win by four strokes.

Since the Open, Hogan has played in only two tournaments, finishing eleventh in each. He now is in Hollywood supervising the filming of his life, "Follow The Sun."

Poor Joe (8th Place) Kuhel Bounced Again, This Time From Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 31 (AP).—Joe Kuhel's contract as manager of the Blues will not be renewed, Parke Carroll, general manager of the Kansas City Club, said today.

The announcement was accompanied by an explanation given by Kuhel by the New York Yankee General Manager, George Weiss, that the organization in no manner blamed the manager for the last place showing made by the Blues this year.

Kuhel said he has no plans. Last year, Kuhel finished eighth with the Washington Nats and was ousted.

Kuhel said he was sorry he had not been given a chance to prove or disprove his managerial abilities.

"The manner in which players were sent here and then sent out again prevented any attempt to develop team spirit or produce any winning combination," he said.

Caps Lose, 78-70, Open Here Tonight

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 31. The Washington Caps got off to an unsuccessful start in their bid for 1950-51 National Basketball Association laurels, dropping a 78 to 70 decision to the Rochester Royals before 2184 fans tonight.

Coach Bones McKinney used all 11 of his eligible men tonight, but their blistering fourth quarter rally was not enough to overcome a miserable start.

The Caps hit only three field goals in the first quarter, after a 9-minute drought, and they cashed only 5 in the second 12-minute period. This caused them to trail 24 to 12 and 43-29 at the first two stops.

With eight minutes of action remaining in the game, the Royals held a fat 21-point lead, at 69-48.

Caps, Indianapolis Play at Uline Tonight

Coach Bones McKinney's hustling young Caps open their NBA home season at Uline Arena tonight against the Indianapolis Olympians.

The Olympians largely are composed of former University of Kentucky stalwarts.

Alex Groza, 6-foot-7 center who was runnerup to George Mikan for scoring honors in his rookie season last year, is a standout. Player Coach Cliff Barker, Wah-Wah Jones, Ralph Beard and Joe Holland are the other former Wildcats.

But the Caps finally found the range, and blistered the nets with a 22-point barrage before the clock ran out on them.

Frank Kudelka and Chick Halbert sparked the late drive, narrowing the deficit to 75-68 with three minutes left. The Royals settled into a possession game then, however and held off Washington's spurt.

Fat Freddie Scolari, hitting five of his pet one-handers in the second and third periods, added eight of nine conversions from the 15-foot stripe for 18 points, top figure for the McKinneymen.

Bonus Rule On Way Out

CINCINNATI, Oct. 31 (AP).—Baseball's major-minor league executive committee today went on record as favoring abolition of the bonus rule.

Acting on a motion by the Jersey City club of the International League, the committee decided to recommend to the major-minor league meeting in December that the entire bonus set-up be thrown out.

A proposal by the two Philadelphia clubs that the high school rule be eliminated was voted down by the joint committee, but is expected to be brought up on the floor of the Miami meeting for further consideration.

Players signed under the bonus rule are subject to unlimited draft throughout their career. Bonus players are those signed as free agents for $6000 or more by a major league, Triple A or Double A club, or any player whose contract is for more than one year.

They may only be optioned to a league of lower classification for one year.

Nothing was available as to what decision, if any, was reached on radio broadcasts.

Schapiro Gets 67% From Jockey Club

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

LAUREL, Oct. 31.—Morris Schapiro, wealthy Baltimore scrap metal dealer and real estate man, has purchased controlling interest in the Laurel race track, Henry A. Parr, 3d, president of the Maryland Jockey Club, made the announcement late this afternoon, ending several weeks of speculation as to the buyer.

Purchase price was not mentioned but rumors place the figure as high as $2,000,000.

Schapiro, reported to be one of the largest stockholders in the Maryland Jockey Club, which operates Pimlico, was associated with the Gulf Stream Park several years ago but is no longer connected with the Florida track. It is said, however, that he is financially interested in Bowie.

His son, John D., is a member of the board of directors of Pimlica and it is expected that he will take an active part in the future operation of Laurel.

67 Percent of Stock

Schapiro, rated one of Baltimore's wealthiest citizens, acquired 6710 shares of the Maryland State Fair (official name of the Laurel controlling group). That represents approximately 67 percent of 10,000 existing shares.

This stock originally was purchased by the Maryland Jockey Club in early 1947 with the purpose of eventually moving Pimlico's activities to Laurel and abandoning the old hilltop track. President Parr pointed out that this was considered in the best interests of the Maryland Jockey Club as well as the overall Maryland racing picture.

The Pimlico-Laurel merger was balked by legislation. In its announcement today the statement read: "The move did not prove feasible, and therefore it was no longer desirable for the Maryland Jockey Club to continue to hold its large investment in the Laurel property, particularly in view of the plans for the future development of Pimlico."

Sold Timonium, Too

In addition to selling controlling interest in Laurel, the Maryland Jockey Club recently sold the Timonium half-mile track and the scene of the annual Timonium Fair to a syndicate formed in the Baltimore County area.

The Laurel track was previously purchased by the group, led by Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, from the family of the late James Butler. It operated Laurel independently of Pimlico, but both tracks are under the same managerial set-up, with Parr as president and John O. Needles as secretary.

Laurel directors, in addition to Parr and Needles, are S. Bryce Wing, Breckinridge Long, Rigan McKinney and Alfred G. Vanderbilt.

During the first year of operation under the Maryland Jockey Club, upward of a half million dollars was spent on improvements with view to the Laurel-Pimlico merger.

Early in 1949, the Maryland Racing Commission recommended that the shift be made. However, Governor William Preston Lane, jr., withdrew his support and a bill, which would have authorized the shift, was pigeon-holed in the State House of Delegates.

The Laurel track, located in Anne Arundel County, had its inaugural meeting in October, 1911, having been built by the Butler family, whose wealth was acquired in a New York grocery business. Laurel offered the first pari-mutuel betting in the State. The late Col. Matt Wynn, of Kentucky Derby fame, cooperated in the venture with the Butlers, who also owned Empire City.

A mile oval, the track is approximately half way between Baltimore and Washington. The seating capacity of the stands and clubhouse enclosure is 15,000. There are stable accommodations for 1050 horses.

Oysterman Martin Wins Football Contest

FOR FOUR YEARS, G. Dick Martin shucked oysters at O'Donnell's raw bar and entered The Washington Post's weekly Pick-the-Winner Football Contest.

G. Dick Martin

He never found a pearl. Nor did he come close to winning the contest—until yesterday, that is.

After poring through reams of entries, The Post judges came up with Martin's blank as the contest winner, with 19 out of 20 correct predictions on last weekend's football games, and an almost on-the-nose forecast of the Navy-Penn score.

Martin said it would be Penn 27, Navy 9. It turned out Penn 30, Navy 7, only 5 points off. Another entrant, M. F. Hycke of 131 Hamilton st. nw., also picked 19 out of 20, but he was 15 points off on the Penn-Navy score.

The game Martin missed out on was Villanova's 20-14 victory over Georgetown. The Montpelier, Vt., native, who now lives at 1396 Mass. ave. nw., thought that it was the Hoyas' turn to win one.

Martin finds it hard to explain his sudden victory in the contest. "I've never guessed more than 12 or 13 right in any one week," he says.

"I always read as much football as I can, and listen to what everybody else says about the teams, and then draw my own conclusions," he says.

He sees his contest victory as an omen of better things to come. "I couldn't make the football team during my school days. I never won a contest. I'm still a bachelor. And I never found a pearl in all the oysters I've shucked.

"Maybe at 38, my luck is ready to change," he concludes happily.

Penn Poses Threat To Army's Streak

ARMY VS. PENNSYLVANIA in Philadelphia Saturday.

Army will be looking for an important victory to lengthen its unbeaten string to 26 games.

But Penn is formidable. The Quakers ran over Navy last week by 30-7, and they have lost only once this season, to undefeated California, 14-7.

This is one of the harder games in The Washington Post's football contest this week. The contest winner will receive two tickets to the Maryland-North Carolina game in Chapel Hill, N. C., on November 11 as well as round-trip, first-class transportation for two persons.

Contest Rules

THE CONTEST each week will include 20 major college games. The contestant will select the winner (or tie) in each of these games. There will also be a twenty-first game for which the contestant must give the "Probable Score," to be considered by the contest judges only in case two or more persons tie on the first 20 games.

All entries must be in the hands of the Football Contest Editor not later than 5 p. m. Friday of each week. Entries should be left at the Service Counter in the lobby of The Washington Post Bldg., 1337 E St. N. W.

The person submitting the most accurate entry each week shall be declared the winner. In case of ties, all persons sharing in the tie will receive duplicate awards.

The decisions of the judges will be final.

Entries submitted must be legible, with the selections listed in the order they are announced in The Washington Post.

Entries may be handwritten or typewritten. However, carbon copies and mimeographed copies or copies made by any other duplicating machine will NOT be accepted. You may submit as many entries as you wish.

No employe of The Washington Post or member of his immediate family is eligible to participate in this contest.

Redskins Again Release Spaniel

The Redskins yesterday released Halfback Frank Spaniel to make room for Quarterback Nick Sebek who was recalled Monday.

Spaniel, a star at Notre Dame last year, had been used principally for kick off returns. It marked the second time this season he has been released by the Redskins. He was dropped early in September when the pros had to trim their squad to 32 players and restored two days later when the player limit was upped to 33.

terback Jack Hackett, 150-pounder

In trouncing Pitt, Hackett completed 16 of 26 passes, two going for scores. Hackett's from McKeesport, Pa., and thousands of hometown fans went to nearby Pittsburgh for the game Saturday. Hackett didn't disappoint them, throwing those two touchdown passes to Soph End Ed Lutes, a McKeesport buddy.

Soph Fullback Bob Schneidenbach is so fast he plays safety on defense. Bob is from Newark's St. Benedict's Prep, school of Georgetown's famed Billy Conn.

Halfback Frank Smith, Tuckahoe, N. Y., is another standout. Smith dashed for two touchdowns in Miami's upset over Purdue after the Boilermakers had beaten Notre Dame.

Cocaptain Pete Mastellone, Hillside, N. J., backs up a powerful line that includes Tackle Al Carapella and Guards Ray Arcangeletti and Joe Lyden.

Miami opened with a 21-0 win over Citadel, beat Villanova only 18-12 in that great equalizer—mud—and then took into camp Purdue, Boston U. and Pitt.

British Jumpers Upset Mexico in N. Y. Show

By John Chandler

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP).—The Mexican army team, expected to dominate the international jumping, had to bow to England today in the International Inaugural as the sixty-second National Horse show opened at Madison Square Garden.

With victory seemingly within his grasp, Capt. Alberto Valdes of Mexico faulted on the final barrier of the jump-off, giving first place to Lieut. Col. Harry M. Llewellyn of the British equestrian team.

Six nations sent teams to the International event, the largest representation since 1936.

There was a tie for third place between Arthur McCashin of Pluckemin, N. J., member of the United States equestrian team, Capt. Michael J. Tubridy of the Irish army team, and cadet Roberto Vinals of Mexico. Miss Norma Matthews of Sacramento, Calif., was fourth. Mrs. Carol Durand of Kansas City faulted on the fifth jump of the first round.

Lieut. Eva Valdes of the Mexican army team won the Pennsylvania National Trophy in the night session to become the first woman rider ever to capture an international military event at the national show.

In the open events, which will determine champions after an eight-day grind of competition, Jerry's Pride scored points toward the conformation title.

Jerry's Pride, owned by Morton W. Smith of Middleburg, Va., won the conformation crown at the Pennsylvania national show at Harrisburg, last week, and took the lightweight thoroughbred hunters class today.

Champions also will be determined in the working hunter, young hunter, open jumper, green hunter and pony classes, as well as saddle horses and harness horses.

7-Under Par Ties Record, 5 Shoot 67s

PINEHURST, N. C., Oct. 31 (AP). With a record-equalling seven-under par 32-33—65 by Johnny Palmer the payoff punch, Pinehurst's fearsome No. 2 championship course rocked and reeled today under a birdie barrage never before seen in the 48-year-old North and South Open golf tournament.

Palmer, the chunky Badin, N. C., professional who ranks eleventh in this year's money-winning list, strung together seven birdies and 11 pars to equal the event record set 15 years ago by Paul Runyan when the old course had sand greens.

His card:
Par out	444	543	433—36
Palmer	434	443	343—32
Par in	544	443	534—36—72
Palmer	544	343	433—33—65

Despite this glowing achievement, Palmer had plenty of company in the par-pulverizing department as this 72-hole, $7500 event got under way.

Five 67 shooters were only two strokes off his scorching pace. In all, 18 players broke 70 and 17 others had 70 or 71, making 35 under par 72 for the 6952-yard country club layout.

Fourteen others weighed in with par 72s.

The 67 group included former PGA Champion Jim Ferrier of San Francisco; S. E. (Ted) Bishop, former national amateur king from Weston, Mass.; Johnny Weitzel, Harrisburg, Pa.; Walter Burkemo, Franklin, Mich., the Michigan Open champion, and Toby Lyons, Jamestown, N. Y.

Only three strokes out of the lead were eight men at 68, headed by Defending Champion Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. His company at that figure included Amateur Frank Stranhan of Toledo, Ohio.

The field will be cut to 75 after tomorrow's round and to 60 for Friday's final 18.

CU Back Breaks Arm in Scrimmage

Ed Holl, halfback and defensive end for Catholic U., broke an arm in a scrimmage yesterday at Brookland. He will be out for the season.

The Cardinals meet Gallaudet here Saturday and already are starting to worry. Backs Bucky Ennis and Joe Poms still are on the "doubtful" list with leg injuries.

QUIT STALLING!

DEAR FOLKS:

Jockey Dick Williams is beginning to believe the stewards are playing poker with him. Monday they gave him a 10-day suspension and Tuesday they raised him 10. His first ruling came for hitting Jockey Bobby Mitchell over the head with a whip. Unfortunately, a rider who is suspended is allowed to ride out his assignments for the following day. It was on this program that Williams is alleged to have carried out a rival. At least, the stewards disqualified his mount out of first money. Laurel closes today with the Chevy Chase Steeplechase Handicap as the top race. Thursday is an off day, with Pimlico opening Friday featuring the Pimlico Special, followed by the Pimlico Cup on Saturday. Post time for the first race at the Baltimore track will be 1:15 p.m.—BILL.

83-21 Not Enough

Fesler Draws Fans' Ire for Easing Up

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 31 (AP). A few cranks—sore because Ohio State has been running up unexpected scores—are venting their anger in letters to Coach Wes Fesler.

A thin trickle of "crackpot" letters was reported today by Fesler, who grinned and said:

"They were just crackpots."

"Gamblers? No, I don't thing so. Just a few individuals who were complaining about the scores."

Most of the few letters received by Fesler come from fans who lost football pool bets and didn't like it.

Take the case of the fan—or fanatic—who complained about Ohio State's generosity to Pittsburgh. Of course, Ohio State trimmed the Panthers, 41-7, but this fan had a new angle. He was angry because Pittsburgh got those seven points.

But, the one who really confused Fesler was the person who wrote in raising Ned about two touchdowns scored by Iowa last Saturday in the second period of a football rout.

This fan berated Fesler for having his second team in action when the two Iowa touchdowns came.

The final score was Ohio State 83, Iowa 21. This outlandish margin led some persons to believe that Ohio State was trying to pour it on.

Actually, said Fesler, that isn't so. Versatile Vic Janowicz, the Bucks' candidate for All-America, and right halfback Walt Klevay played only a small part of the time. Janowicz played 13 minutes against Iowa and Klevay 12 minutes.

You obviously can't be trying to pour it on and trying to ruin some stranger's football pool bet by running in the second team at one and the same time, said Fesler.

"I guess you just can't please them all," Fesler said.

Be Gracious, Picador Win

LAUREL, Oct. 31.—Perhaps it was the Halloween spirit but everybody wanted to get his horse in on the act today.

Hence, when 16 steeds were entered in the featured Friendship Purse, officials split the field into two divisions, running it as the fifth and sixth races.

In the first half, Brookmeade Stable's Picador, an aptly named son of Bull Lea, led every jump of the way, winning by 3 lengths from Edward Lawrence's Thunderjet with C. Crow There's Mere Bones third.

In the second division, M. J. Cremen's Be Gracious made good for the favorite players, scoring three parts of a length over Alan T. Clarke's King Howlee, with Pentagon Stable's Djinn third.

Stripers Bite Off Solomons

By Ralph Murdock

THE BEST CATCH of stripers reported in the last few days emanates from a foursome of anglers from Pittsburgh. The Smoky City fishermen nabbed 87 on their first day out and to prove that their success was no fluke, they yanked in 186 the next day.

Murdock

The two-day trip was out of Solomons Island, Md., with Capt. Edgar Bowen at the wheel of the "Red Sails."

Both catches were made in shallow water—the first off James Point and the second near Taylor's Island. These two spots are located on the eastern side of the bay, seldom frequented by local fishing guides—due to floating grass which is strictly a detriment to good trolling.

The anglers were Dr. A. G. Parker, H. J. Drew, A. E. Corn and J. E. Kline, jr. The bait which proved most successful was a silver-head Japanese lure with red and white feathers.

The fish ran from 1¾ pounds up to 4 pounds. Most of the fish were taken in the late afternoon, between 3 p. m. and dusk.

HERE'S A FOURSOME who prefer the Patuxent River for their fishing—the reason, eight good rockfish and one flounder while trolling and 75 nice perch.

The latter were taken on bloodworms while anchored off Broome's Island. Meet the crew—Les Debow of Saunders Rent-a-Car Co., Bert Longstreet, Underwood Typewriter Co., Harvey Fraley of Safeway Stores, and A. J. Robertson, owner of the company bearing his name. Their guide was Hezzy Elliott.

Further proof that fishermen travel in gangs of four: John J. Morgan, local dentist, Leo Wiley, Kinney Grim, and Ike Fisher fished on the "Hill" off Bloody Point Light. Nineteen rockfish was the catch, the largest being a 5-pounder. Capt. Roxie was the pilot.

Judging from the number of ducks and geese now in the Chesapeake Bay area, the prospects for a top waterfowl season is anticipated. In case you've forgotten, opening date is noon of November 27.

Gay Throngs End Annual Siege of City By Witches

Halloween Passes With Little Damage; Planned Celebrating Called Successful

Broom-riding witches of Halloween, their annual descent on the city repelled by masked and daubed defenders, vanished into the Potomac's mists this dawn and once more the District can announce the end of the weird siege.

Planners of an exciting but damage-free observance of the festival can report, too, that their efforts were generally successful.

Vandalism, other than the usual tomato-throwing and window-soaping, was low, police said. Most of the celebrants, young and old, worked off their destructive urges at dozens of public and private dances and parties.

As an added precaution against vandalism, all leaves were canceled by the fire and police departments.

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, Superintendent of Police, spent most of the evening patroling in a prowl car and visiting various celebrations.

Assistant Superintendent Walter T. Storm commented at 10 p.m. that the city was "unusually quiet" for Halloween.

While jack-o-lanterns grinned and black cats arched their backs, costumed kiddies and grown-ups displayed their finery or danced the Charleston, whatever their choice, under the clear autumn sky.

Warmth Smears Mascara

Unseasonable warmth made the mascara and paint run on dozens of little faces as their owners did their part to drive away the evil spirits.

Civic associations, the Metropolitan Police Boys Clubs, the schools, and merchants all had their part in keeping the gaiety in bounds at giant parties.

One of the biggest celebrations was in Georgetown where the City Recreation Department, boys clubs and civic and school organizations joined to sponsor a mammoth street party, replete with marching bands and Halloween queens.

Teenagers danced at Gordon Junior High School and the younger fry dunked for apples at playgrounds. Georgetown University's band and drum majorettes added a musical touch.

Arlington police blocked off a section of Wilson blvd., while adults and children paraded, partied and danced. In Silver Spring, two giant parties attracted 1000 persons to Montgomery Hills Junior High and Silver Spring Intermediate School.

Vandalism Decreased

Takoma Park, Md., held its third annual street party that has caused an estimated 75 percent decrease in vandalism since its inception.

On the other, more destructive side of the ledger, the fire department reported 20 false alarms from boxes and three by phone by 9 p.m. Pvt. Richard V. Brown, of the 14th Precinct, captured two boys in the act of pulling an alarm box at 50th st. and Bass pl. se.

A southeast resident reported to police that a group of boys set a trash fire on his front porch but said it was extinguished before causing any damage.

Silver Spring, according to police, seemed to be the favorite haunt of the tomato-throwing brigade. Officers there investigated several complaints from stained citizenry, victims of the tossers.

As the night proceeded there could be heard occasionally the tinkle of breaking street lamps and the report of firecrackers but police were confident the damage total was lower than in some past years.

It Was a Great Day for Kids

EVEN IN THE HOSPITAL—So the kids at Childrens Hospital wouldn't miss the Halloween fun, the girls of Alpha Omicron Pi Sorority at the University of Maryland came down and put on a special show for them. Joan Cagle, 8 (left), and Judy Lee, 6, seem to be enjoying the entertainment

Mayhew Gets Added Year As Fire Chief

To stop his aides from campaigning for his job, Fire Chief Joseph A. Mayhew yesterday asked and was given permission by the Commissioners to keep his position for a year after his sixty-fourth birthday next March 11.

Chief Mayhew

Sixty-four is the compulsory retirement age for District policemen and firemen.

Mayhew wrote the Commissioners that the approaching retirement date has "caused quite a bit of discussion within the department regarding the relative merits and chances of those who might be considered eligibles for the office . . ."

"Such discussion is harmless enough," he wrote, "but I have learned that many rumors are being circulated and alignment of certain factions is apparently taking place which, I believe, could result in the undermining of efficient operation . . ."

Furthermore, Mayhew added, "I am most eager and able to continue in the service of the department . . ."

Mayhew would not say who he thought were active candidates for his job. Other sources indicated they are the two senior deputy chiefs, Percy A. Davis and Millard H. Sutton. Davis is nearly 61; Sutton is 58. Fred Litteral, the third deputy chief, is 51.

The Commissioners unanimously approved to one-year extension, according to Charles Stofberg, special assistant to Commissioner John Russell Young, and "complimented Mayhew highly on the efficiency of the department's operation."

Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young added he was particularly glad Mayhew will stay on "because of the considerable planning he has done for civil defense."

Mayhew joined the department in 1908 and was appointed chief on July 1, 1949. He succeeded Clement Murphy.

Woman Lying In Street Dies Under Truck

DISTRICT TRAFFIC TOLL:
1950 Deaths to Date......54
Total 1949 Death Toll.....71

A 32-year-old woman who police said, "staggered and fell" into the street at 603 I st. nw., 20 minutes earlier, was killed instantly by a truck rounding the curve from 6th st. about midnight Monday.

Accident Investigation Unit officers, identified her as Mrs. Sue Mary Beebe, alias Jacqueline Kelley of 3710 S. Kemper rd., Arlington.

Detective Sergeant Emmett Waters, reconstructing the situation after investigation, said Mrs. Beebe emerged from the I st. house and "sort of staggered down the steps onto the sidewalk and fell into the street."

Separated From Husband

Several persons attempted to remove her from the roadway without success, he reported. Waters said the woman was separated from her husband, William.

The truck was driven by Nathaniel W. Wilder, 25, of 702 I st. se., police said. He reported the woman was lying in such a position as he turned the corner to go west on I st. that his headlight beam did not strike her.

Wilder, who was not held, told police he did not see the woman, but stopped to investigate when he realized his wheels had struck something.

Dr. Richard Siggers, arriving in a Health Department ambulance, pronounced Mrs. Beebe dead at the scene.

Student Struck By Cyclist

An autopsy by Coroner A. Macgruder MacDonald showed she died from extensive rupture of internal organs. Specimens were taken for chemical analysis.

In an accident yesterday 17-year-old Carolyn Green, a student at Eastern High School, was struck by a motorcycle as she crossed the street at 17th and East Capitol sts. en route home from school, police reported.

The girl, who lives at 1815 D st. ne., was treated for leg and hand injuries at Casualty Hospital.

She told police the cyclist stopped after the accident and carried her to the sidewalk. He told her she "had no business in the middle of the street" and then rode off, Carolyn told police.

She managed to walk home. Her mother took her to the hospital.

Park Police Start 5-Day Work Week

Chief Assured Of Men Needed To Fill Ranks; Twelve Promoted

By Al Lewis
Post Reporter

The Park Police are now working on a five-day week basis, effective last midnight.

Inspector Mark H. Raspberry, chief of Park Police, placed his force on the new schedule on orders of the Department of Interior after being assured of the 33 new men needed to fill the ranks. Raspberry will swear in 13 new men today. On November 16, he expects to swear in an additional 27 he interviewed yesterday.

Last summer, Congress authorized the additional men and the five-day week for the Park, Metropolitan and the White House police. Metropolitan police are currently training new men and expect to go on a five-day schedule by January 1. White House police have no date set.

Course Shortened

In a rush to get the men on patrol, both Park and Metropolitan police are giving the men four weeks training instead of the usual six-week course. White House police obtain their men from the Metropolitan force.

The Metropolitan police were granted 300 men and promised Congress they would train an additional 200 before they put the new system into effect. The Fire Department has been operating on a five-day week since July 1.

Yesterday, Maj. Robert J. Barrett, chief of Metropolitan police, announced that 62 men of the 200 men needed had completed their training and were being transferred to precincts.

Lt. Liverman

At the same time, Barrett announced the promotion of 12 men and transfer of 21 others.

He designated Lieut. William J. Liverman acting captain to remain in charge of the accident investigation unit. Lieut. Liverman has been head of the squad since its inception in August, 1940.

In a letter to the District Commissioners, Barrett pointed out that Liverman could replace Capt. Loraine T. Johnson, of the Traffic Division, when Johnson is on leave. He cited Liverman's efficiency he said:

"By his deep interest in traffic and through his initiative and efficiency has played no small part in causing the District to be the recipient of so many traffic awards."

Major Barrett also announced the promotion of Acting Capt. John E. Winters of the Communications and Records Bureau to a full captaincy. Winters will remain in his present assignment.

Others promoted are:

Sergt. William Glassman, to lieutenant; Corpl. Louis H. Giersch, to sergeant, transferred from Fourth to Sixth Precinct; Pvt. Gerald T. Culley, to corporal; Precinct Detective John T. Bailey, to detective sergeant; Probational Detective Joe Y. Chennault, to precinct detective; Probational Detective Joseph Bonaccorsy, to precinct detective; Pvt. James K. McCarthy, to probational detective; Pvt. Mahlon E. Pitts, to probational detective.

Those transferred or given new assignments were:

Pvt. Joseph C. Prather, assigned to plain-clothes duty in Thirteenth Precinct; Pvt. Donald F. Everett, assigned to motorcycle duty with Traffic Division; Pvt. James D. Sandy, from Fifth Precinct to motorcycle duty with Traffic Division; Lieut. Robert J. Tompkins, from Sixth ot Fifth Precinct; Corpl. John T. Triscik, from Twelfth to Fourth Precinct; Precinct Detective Walter F. Grove, from Tenth to Thirteenth Precinct; Precinct Detective William A. Schotter, from Thirteenth Precinct to Detective Bureau; Pvt. Douglas W. Hedrik, from Traffic Division to Communications and Records Bureau; Pvt. Peter Zacharko, from Eleventh to Twelfth Precinct; Pvt. Clarence G. Insley, from Third Precinct to Communications and Records Bureau; Pvt. John C. Ostrom, from Sixth Precinct to Communications and Records Bureau; Pvt. Paul J. Clarke, from Fifth to Seventh Precinct; Pvt. Melvin T. Feggans, from Fourth to Thirteenth Precinct; Pvt. Lawrence G. Janes, from Seventh to Second Precinct; Pvt. Thomas B. Basnight, from Third Precinct to Detective Bureau; Pvt. Howard L. Pilling, from Sixth Precinct to Detective Bureau; Pvt. Clarence A. Chaney, from Fourth to Sixth Precinct; Pvt. Charles A. Dabbs, from White House to Second Precinct; Pvt. Thomas B. Shipman, from Metropolitan force to White House force; Pvt. Paul H. Bixler, from Metropolitan force to White House force.

Last Culpeper Convict Taken In Tennessee

A widespread search for five felons who broke out of a Culpeper (Va.) prison camp last week ended yesterday near Knoxville, Tenn., with capture of the last of the escapees.

Robert J. Miller, 21, who was serving a 7-year term for robbery and previous escape attempts, was bagged by Knoxville agents of the FBI in a highway cafe 10 miles east of Knoxville. The bureau said Miller, who was unarmed, surrendered without a struggle and readily admitted his identity.

Miller's home is in Johnson City, Tenn. His four companions in the break were captured at scattered points—one in Arlington, one in Alexandria, one in Culpeper and one in Norfolk.

Meanwhile, police in a 13-State area still were on the alert for another escaped convict, James Zollo, 22, who bolted from a prison camp at Goochland, Va., the same day Miller and his four companions escaped from Culpeper. Another convict who escaped with Zollo was apprehended by police at Fredericksburg the day after the break.

The Washington Post

'A MARK OF ESTEEM'—Post Reporter Al Friendly presents Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of The Washington Post, with a plaque from more than 600 members of the newspaper's staff. Representatives of all departments of The Washington Post were on hand for the ceremony yesterday in the press-room of the new building, at 1515 L st. nw.

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

Employes of The Washington Post joined yesterday in presenting a plaque to Eugene Meyer, "Newspaperman of Conscience."

The presentation was made on his seventy-fifth birthday, against a backdrop which testified physically to the paper's progress since Meyer, now chairman of the board, bought it at auction in 1933—the spanking-new presses in the new building at 1515 L st. nw. into which The Post will shortly move.

The plaque, which will go into the building's lobby, testified to another brand of progress which Meyer considers more important to a paper:

"To Eugene Meyer, Newspaperman of Conscience, On his 75th Birthday. A Mark of Esteem for Dedicating to the Public Service The Newspaper He Built. The Staff. The Washington Post. 31 October 1950."

Representatives of all departments of The Post were on hand.

Actually the plaque was guilty of the newspaper business' unforgivable sin: it didn't make the deadline. Reporter Al Friendly presented a facsimile in lieu of the black slate, with letters cast in silver, due before long as a permanent fixture of the new building.

More than 600 of the newspaper's staff chipped in to buy the plaque.

The presentation was the kick-off of a day of reminiscence and tribute for the man who retired from a world-famed banking career to launch, at 57, a newspaper career that has brought him—and his paper—even more renown.

Returns for Lunch

After posing for pictures with the pressmen, Meyer returned to E street to the "old" Post building, where he had lunch with "a few of the people on the paper."

Then in the afternoon a group of former Post men who have gone on to other jobs in and out of the newspaper business called to wish many happy returns of the day to their former publisher.

They presented him with a silver tray engraved with their names, including many a byline once familiar to Post readers. Christine Sadler Coe, now director of McCall's magazine's Washington Bureau, handed the tray over.

Congratulations Pour In

Informally it was a time of much remembrance and laughter. Felix Morley, former editor of The Post, referring to a story in yesterday's Post that Meyer had among other things proved himself "a pretty good reporter"—sharing in a National Headliners' Club award, for example—observed that Meyer was the only man he could remember who traveled the road "from publisher to reporter."

All day long congratulatory telegrams poured in from over the Nation. In the late afternoon Meyer left his office and went to his home at 1624 Crescent pl. nw. for a party featuring his eight grandchildren—from California, Baltimore and Washington—and himself.

A family dinner afterwards, with his five children, daughter-in-law and two sons-in-law present, ended his seventy-fifth year.

Judge's Alert Brings Arrest Of Motorist

Charges of driving while drunk were continued in Municipal Court yesterday against a man arrested Monday on an alert furnished by U. S. Court of Appeals Judge David L. Bazelon.

The case against Manuel Hovanian, 29, 5429 31st st. nw., was continued to November 15 by Judge Walter J. Casey.

Hovanian was arrested at 12:15 a.m., Monday on Connecticut ave., near Calvert st., a few minutes after Judge Bazelon, while driving home ,had given a scout car patrolman a description of the vehicle.

In a separate case, William B. Mabis, 22, RFD 2, Alexandria, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while drunk, and was sentenced by Judge Casey to pay $100 or serve 30 days in jail. Mabis paid the fine.

Police arrested Mabis on October 24 in the 1100 block of 25th st. nw., after he had struck five parked cars. He pleaded not guilty when arraigned, but changed his plea to guilty yesterday.

On Saturday, Traffic Director George E. Keneipp called for automatic jail sentences for all persons convicted of driving while drunk. He said fines are not a sufficient deterrent.

For Second Year

President Backs Sesqui Play Repeat

President Truman has come out for another year's showing of the Sesquicentennial drama, "Faith of Our Fathers," a White House visitor reported yesterday.

The visitor was Carter T. Barron, executive vice chairman of the National Capitol Sesquicentennial Commission.

"The President thinks 'Faith of Our Fathers' is a fine show and hopes it will keep going," Barron told reporters after a conference with the President. Mr. Truman attended the premiere

Barron met with the President to ask him to participate in the grand finale event of the Sesqui year on November 22. That day marks the 150th anniversary of the first meeting of Congress at the Capitol.

Last week the Sesqui executive committee postponed action on a staff recommendation to present the drama again next year.

Barron and Paul Massmann, Sesqui general manager, feel the production was lucky to lose only $21,000 this year in view of normal first-year difficulties, several rainy nights and insufficient time to conduct a vigorous publicity campaign.

"Sometimes I think we in Washington are too blase," said Barron yesterday after stating that people from all over the country have written letters of praise about the Rock Creek Park Amphitheater and the drama.

$1500 Taken From Safe at Metal Shop

Police yesterday were investigating the second local safe-cracking in two days after an intruder with plenty of brass reportedly took $15000 from a downtown firm, stealing away in the night.

The irony of it all was that the meddlesome intruder used tools found on the job at Lyon Conklin & Co., Inc., 930 E st. nw., wholesale distributors of metals, to be tested on his mettle as a medalist among safecrackers.

Police said there were no indications of how the thief entered the store Monday night. They surmised he may have hidden inside before closing time or may have had a duplicate key.

Clarence L. Lanier, a clerk at the company, discovered when he arrived for work yesterday morning that the safe had been moved from a first-floor office to the center of the store.

The bottom of the safe had been cut out. Lanier said $15 more was taken from the firm's cash register.

Police were still investigating the theft of $5500 over the weekend from a safe at Super Freez, Inc., 723 11th st. nw.

$1½ Million Cost Boost Feared by Gas Company

FPC Told Proposed Increase in Rate By Wholesaler Aims At District Utility

Proposed new wholesale gas rates would boost the cost to the Washington Gas Light Co. by 1½ million dollars in 1951 and by two million dollars in 1952, the Federal Power Commission was told yesterday by the utility.

Some time ago the company estimated the proposed rate would cost the company one million dollars and that "unquestionably" higher rates to the consuming public would be sought of the District's Public Utilities Commission if the wholesale increase were granted.

The FPC has been considering a wholesale rate increase request of the Atlantic Seaboard Co. and the Virginia Gas Transmission Corp. It was testified yesterday that the District firm buys 70 percent of Atlantic's output.

Otis H. Rittenour, comptroller of the Washington company, took the stand to give detailed accounting figures on the gas rate boost which his firm is opposing in the form proposed by Atlantic.

Stoddard Stebens, company attorney, said earlier that the company would introduce evidence to show that the cost to the utility was in fact "several times" larger than Atlantic contends; that the increase is "not only unjustified but highly discriminatory" and that the local firm will suggest a new wholesale rate which would provide a 6 percent return for Atlantic while requiring Washington Gas Light to pay "only a fair share" of the increased cost.

Gas company testimony is expected to take several days, much of it devoted to detailed accounting practices.

The Washington gas firm already has been granted a $750,000 rate boost by the local utilities commission but it has been blocked by a court order now on appeal. A new and higher wholesale rate probably would result in an additional retail rate to Washington area gas consumers. There are now 271,000 gas meters in the area, Rittenour said yesterday.

Man Working On Elevator Falls to Death

A 52-year-old man plunged six floors down an elevator shaft to his death yesterday at 1629 Columbia rd. nw.

Jacob McDowell of 1725 U st. nw., helper to the chief engineer at the Argonne Apartment Building, had gone to the sixth floor where an elevator was stuck between the sixth and seventh floors.

Chief Engineer Charles W. Wray said McDowell apparently fell through the open elevator door shortly after calling for help to restore the elevator to service.

McDowell was pronounced dead by Dr. E. Naiden of Emergency Hospital. He came to Washington more than 20 years ago from Timmonsville, S. C., where his family lives.

11th St. Bridge Reopens Ahead of Schedule

The Anacostia Bridge (11th st. se.) will be reopened to four-lane traffic today at 7 a. m. after a 20-day partial closing to remove streetcar tracks.

District Highway Director J. N Robertson said Capital Transit Co. and District workmen sliced 10 days off the estimated schedule for removing tracks from the center lanes and resurfacing.

Manager's Sharp Eye Leads to Arrest in Holdup

An armed bandit who robbed an ice cream store of $29 Monday night failed to reckon with the cold stare of the woman manager and ended in jail under $15,000 bond, police reported yesterday.

Charged with carrying a concealed weapon and with robbery of the High's Ice Cream store, 3170 Mount Plesant st. was Wendell L. Holland, 28, of 2032 15th st. nw.

Police said Holland pretended to use the pay telephone about 10:45 p. m., until the store was clear of customers. He then walked over to Mozelle Milton, 27, of 1336 Maryland ave. ne., a clerk, brandished a .32-caliber revolver and said, according to police: "This is a hold-up—just step out of the way."

As Holland took $29 from the cash register, he was being watched through a peep-hole from the rear of the store by its manager, Rose Lee Davis, 42, of 1773 U st. nw., according to police.

She phoned police the minute the bandit left, giving a detailed description of him and noting he carried a brown topcoat over his arm.

Minutes later, Holland was arrested by Detective Sergts. James Roche and John T. Bailey, who responded to the call in a headquarters cruiser.

Holland was araigned before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence and held for action of the grand jury under $15,000 bond—$10,000 on the robbery charge, $5000 on the concealed weapon count.

Arlington School Building Policy Hit

Arlington County's school board might have saved as much as "two million dollars" if it followed the school construction policies of Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, Md., a committee of five Arlington citizens said yesterday.

A special school committee of the Arlington Ridge Civic Association issued a 24-page statement to back up its contention.

It came as Arlington voters prepared to vote next Tuesday on a $7,450,000 bond issue for still more school construction.

The survey, comparing the Virginia county's school construction costs on a per-pupil basis, found they averaged 42 percent higher than in either of the Maryland counties.

Board Findings Differ

Last month, the school board made its own survey and concluded that its school building costs compared "very favorably" with those of seven other Maryland and Virginia communities—including Montgomery County.

Said the Arlington Ridge Association committee: "Arlington elementary schools 82 percent more than representative elementary schools in Montgomery, a[illegible] [illegible] percent more than Prince Georges."

The report said Arlington's Stratford Junior High, now nearing completion, cost 40 percent more than the junior high and high schools in Montgomery, and 67 percent more than Prince Georges high schools.

The two million dollars Arlington "might have saved" by following building policies of the two other counties "would have constructed 54 additional classrooms," the committee declared.

Five Reasons Given

It gave five reasons why it found Arlington costs "excessively high":

1. "Custom" building of schools, including "individual planning" of each building and room and "oversized classrooms."

2. Use of radiant heating—described as "the most expensive type."

3. "Excessive use of glass blocks" in Arlington schools.

4. Inclusion of "luxury-type" equipment items such as elementary school showers, private kitchens for teachers, individual classroom toilets, and hotel-type kitchen equipment.

5. A "lack of realistic planning" behind school construction, and "an inexperienced individual in charge of construction."

Signing the committee report were: Leon K. Bryner, the chairman, and A. B. Leggett, Miss Virginia Clifford, Mrs. Alice Campbell, and Miss Emma Johnson.

Postlude

Composers Quizzed by The Public

By Paul Hume

The public had another chance last night to ask composers why their music sounds the way it does.

The Public Library's Music Division gave out with the first of its annual composers' forums. The Southwest Branch of the Library held a large audience, with Dr. Mark Fax of Howard University serving as moderator.

After hearing music by Victor Penso, a student at American University, and by the Rev. Russell Woollen of the music department of Catholic University, the listeners asked their questions—and got answers straight from those who produced the music.

Penso was represented in a one-act opera, Feng, based on a Chinese folk tale.

When asked to describe the harmonic basis for his music he told the questioner it was modal, polytonal, and not intended to suggest an Oriental atmosphere. His orchestra is the same as that required for Stravinsky's L'Histoire du Soldat. The reason for this unusual combination is a practical one: his opera will be given together with the Stravinsky later on this season. Composers have, for centuries, been writing for just such considerations.

Father Woollen's half of the program contained three songs, handsomely sung by Rilla Rowe Mervine, a trio for three flutes, and a sonata for piano, four hands.

The audience was partcularly interested in the influence of jazz in the sonata and the choice of the flutes for the trio.

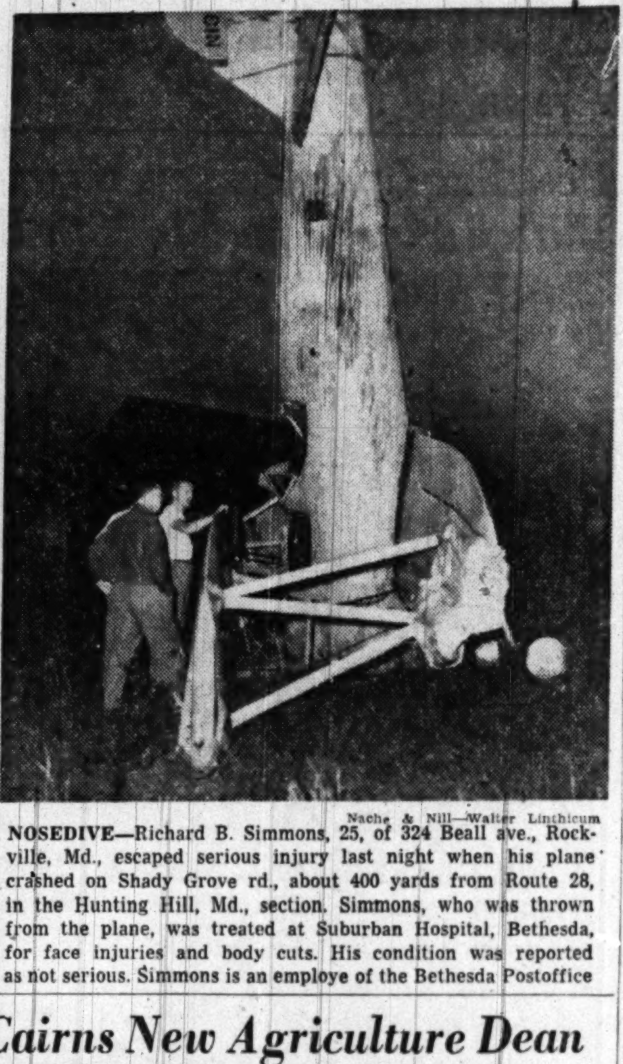
The best thing about these forums is that they give Washington's leading composers a chance to hear their music, and to find out at once how the public likes it, and why.

And, on the other side of the picture, the listener gets his turn at saying what he does and does not like in music, and why. It turns out to be a kind of "Be Your Own Critic" evening, and a good thing too.

Christmas Seal Goal

The Arlington Tuberculosis Association has set a $38,600 goal for this year's Christmas Seal sale campaign, it was announced yesterday. Proceeds of the sale are for the fight on tuberculosis.

Rockville Pilot Hurt in Crash



Nache & Nill—Walter Linthicum

NOSEDIVE—Richard B. Simmons, 25, of 324 Beall ave., Rockville, Md., escaped serious injury last night when his plane crashed on Shady Grove rd., about 400 yards from Route 28, in the Hunting Hill, Md., section. Simmons, who was thrown from the plane, was treated at Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, for face injuries and body cuts. His condition was reported as not serious. Simmons is an employe of the Bethesda Postoffice

Cairns New Agriculture Dean At Md. U.; 5 Others Shifted

Dr. Cairns Dr. Gwin

. . . In new posts at Maryland

Dr. Gordon M. Cairns, 39, head of the dairy department at the College of Agriculture of the University of Maryland, has been appointed dean of agriculture, the university announced yesterday.

Dr. Cairns succeeds Dr. Thomas B. Symons, who retired in September.

Other top staff changes in the university's agricultural organization announced yesterday were:

Dr. James M. Gwin, currently in charge of poultry extension in the department of poultry husbandry, to be director of the Agricultural Extension Service.

Dr. William B. Kemp, currently director of the Agriculture Experiment Station, to take on additional duties as director of instruction for the College of Agriculture.

Dr. Irvin C. Haut, currently head of the department of horticulture, to be assistant director of the Agricultural Experiment Station. He is scheduled to become director on Dr. Kemp's scheduled retirement in 1951.

Dr. Ronald A. Bamford, currently associate dean of the College of Agriculture and head of the department of botany, to be dean of the graduate school.

Prof. Paul E. Nystrom, currently associate director of the extension service, will leave the College of Agriculture temporarily to become assistant to the president of the university. He is slated to become director of instruction of the College of Agriculture on the retirement of Dr. Kemp in 1951.

The above appointees, the university statement said, will form part of a high policy committee on agricultural affairs, representing all large farming interests in the State. All appointments are effective immediately.

Dr. Cairns will serve as head of the dairy department until the end of the year. A graduate of Cornell University, he served as head of the department of dairying at the University of Maine before coming to Maryland in 1945.

Used Car Men To Fight Parts Of Regulations

About 50 local used car dealers last night mapped plans to fight "objectionable" sections of proposed District regulations which would control used car sales practices.

The dealers, members of the National Capital Used Car Dealers Association, instructed their attorney, William R. Lichtenberg, to voice their views at a hearing on the proposed regulations, scheduled by the District Commissioners for November 13.

After a closed meeting held at the Hotel 2400, dealers' spokesmen would not say what parts of the proposals they object to. Joseph S. Silverstone, chairman of the meeting, said only that "we all feel that we will fight anything that is objectionable to us."

Lichtenberg said the proposed regulations "might be adopted with reasonable modifications, to serve the purposes intended to be accomplished by the commissioners." He will present such modifications at the hearing, he added.

The regulations would require auto dealers to give detailed information on costs of their purchases, including the commission or fee to be paid the dealer.

65 Percent Mark Reached in Drive For Cathedral

With nine days to go, the month-long Washington Cathedral fund drive passed the 65 percent mark yesterday.

A total of $32,376 of the $50,000 goal has been collected, campaign workers were told at a report luncheon in Barker Hall of the YWCA, 17th and K sts. nw.

The Very Rev. John Wallace Suter, retiring dean of the Cathedral, who addressed the meeting, urged "a mopping up of procrastination spots."

The Rev. Hall Of Alexandria Dies at 87

The Rev. Percy Foster Hall, 87, rector emeritus of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Alexandria, died yesterday at his home, 10 W. Linden st., Alexandria.

A native of England, Mr. Hall had been rector of St. Paul's for 16 years when he resigned in 1937 because of ill health and was elected rector emeritus.

He was a member of the Diocesan Board of Missions of the Episcopal Church of Virginia and had been chaplain of the Alexandria-Washington Masonic Lodge No. 22 for 29 years at the time of his death.

For many years he was also treasurer of the Piedmont Convocation, chaplain of the Alexandria Red Cross chapter and sky pilot of the local Kiwanis Club. He was a founder of St. Agnes School and on the board of trustees of King Hall.

Mr. Hall served as assistant minister at the Church of the Epiphany in Washington from 1914 to 1920, and during that time was an examining chaplain of the Diocese of Washington. He was in charge of the parish for about a year, until he became rector of the Alexandria church in 1921.

Following his ordainment as priest in New York City in 1893, Mr. Hall served for a number of years in Maryland and West Virginia churches.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. Thursday at St. Paul's Church in Alexandria. Interment will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery in Alexandria.

He is survived by three sons, Percy Arden Hall of Guilford, Conn.; Frederick Parrott Hall of South Orange, N. J., and the Rev. Reginald Foster Hall of Laurel, Md., and a daughter, Miss Margery Arden Hall, with whom he made his home at the W. Linden st. address; two sisters and a brother. His wife died in 1947.

Freight Car Of Plywood Is Exhibited

Three young businessmen came to town yesterday with a product they believe will revolutionize railroad car construction and save about 20 tons of steel on each car built.

The new refrigerator car, on display on track 1 at Union Station yesterday and today, is made of plywood, electronically laminated with special plastics.

The manufacturers, the Pressed Steel Car Co. of Chicago, hopes to sell the car (they call it "Unicel") to railroad companies and to the Federal Government as an answer to steel shortages.

The firm is currently tooling up for a production rate of 40 cars a day and hope to be in assembly line production by next spring, officials said.

Pressed Steel Co. made the first all-steel hopper car in 1897 and the first all-steel box car in 1914.

The British Mosquito bomber was made of the same laminated plywood process as the car is.

Travel Agents Arriving for Convention

Almost 1000 travel agents and transportation line officials are expected to gather here today as the twentieth annual convention of the American Society of Travel Agents opens at the Shoreham Hotel.

The group will include a number of travel experts from foreign countries who are allied members of the American society.

The three-day meeting, theme of which is "What's Ahead in 1951?" will open at 9:15 a. m. with an address by Newell Grinnell, ASTA president, of Rochester, N. Y.

The convention will be welcomed by John Russell Young, President of the District Commissioners, and by Washington business leaders, at a luncheon scheduled for 1 p. m. today.

Highlights on Thursday and Friday will include talks by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national Selective Service director, and Dr. John R. Steelman, assistant to President Truman.

Moral Aspects of Atomic Warfare Lecture Theme

Col. Elmquist

Officer Dies Day Before Retirement

Lieut. Col. Carroll Elmquist, 49, USAF, died Monday at Walter Reed Hospital, one day before his retirement.

Colonel Elmquist had been hospitalized with a heart ailment since his return from his post in Germany last April.

A native of Oakland, Calif., Colonel Elmquist served as an enlisted man in World War I. He left the Army in 1923, settled in Washington, and was for many years a salesman for the Trew Motor Co.

He joined the Army Air Forces as a captain in 1942, spent three years at the Pentagon, and has since served two tours of duty in Germany.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Ida M. Elmquist, of 233 Whittier st. nw.; a brother in New York, and four sisters in California.

Funeral services will be held in the Fort Myer Chapel at 2 p.m. Friday. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

W. H. Contee Dies; Retired U.S. Chauffeur

William Henry Contee, 52, a retired Treasury Department chauffeur and special messenger, died Monday night at Gallinger Hospital.

Mr. Contee was the trusted friend of former Treasury Secretaries McAdoo, Glass, Houston, Mellon, Mills, Woodin, Morgenthau and Vinson.

Known to everyone as Henry, he joined the Treasury in 1918 and retired three years ago. He lived at 2304 Ontario rd. nw.

During the flu epidemic that swept the United States in the fall of 1918, Mr. Contee volunteered his services to the wife of Secretary McAdoo, who had opened a kitchen in the old Emergency Hospital building at 15th st and Ohio ave. nw.

Working long hours, he carried food to stricken Government workers throughout the city for six weeks.

Once, Secretary Mellon remarked to a Senator who had a big secret to tell him, "You can talk freely in front of Henry; he can be trusted with anything."

Mr. Contee, who had a reputation for fine cooking, very often prepared dinners for distinguished White House guests. When he retired, Secretary Vinson spoke at a party attended by the highest department officials.

Born in Washington and a Dunbar High School student, Mr. Contee leaves a son, William Henry Contee, jr., of 140 Adams st. nw. Mrs. Contee died two years ago.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 1 p. m. at the John T. Ryan funeral home, 901 3d st. sw.

DETROIT, Oct. 30 (AP).—Frank Couzens, who at 30 became Detroit's youngest mayor in 1936, died today.

Mr. Couzens, son of the late United States Senator James Couzens, was 48. He was only 35 when he retired from public life more than a decade ago.

District Boosts Pay for Twenty Municipal Jobs

On the recommendation of the District Personnel Board, the District Commissioners yesterday upgraded 20 city jobs with the result that incumbents will get pay increases totaling $9064 a year.

Chief among those promoted were J. G. Dance, deputy director of weights, measures and markets, whose job was boosted from GS-9 to GS-12 with an increase from $5225 to $6400; and Clark F. King, assistant corporation counsel in charge of criminal work at Municipal Court, from GS-11 to GS-12, from $5800 to $6400.

On the Personnel Board's recommendation the Commissioners also got around to putting into effect a section of the 1949 Classification Act to reclassify jobs without waiting for approval of the Civil Service Commission. The CSC must still approve such actions. But pay changes would take effect at the time the Commissioners act instead of waiting up to a month for CSC approval, personnel officials said.

D. C. Area Couple Admits Holdup Of Baltimore Cafe

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31 (AP).—A young couple, who admitted stealing their landlady's gun and using it to hold up a Chinese restaurant, were held under $5500 bail each for grand jury action today after a hearing in Central Police Court.

They identified themselves as Miss Georgia Gallo, 20, of 1712 Michigan ave., ne., Washington, and Joseph F. Farrell, 32, of Rockville.

Miss Gallo told police, they testified, that her role in the holdup was to play drunk in order to get to the kitchen of the restaurant to check if any other people were there.

After Miss Gallo feigned inebriation and had her look at the empty kitchen, Farrell held up Johnson Aman, took $62 from the cash register, then shut Aman and two waitresses in a wash room, police testified.

Both pleaded guilty to charges of holding up the restaurant and taking the gun.

George Newton Dies; Former Tax Official

Funeral services for George V. Newton, 69, former deputy commissioner of the income tax unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, will be held at 3 p.m. today at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mr. Newton died Monday at his home in Laurel, Md.

A native of Sedalia, Mo., Mr. Newton entered Government service in 1900 as a clerk in the Bureau of the Census here.

He transferred to Internal Revenue in 1913, beginning as head of the corporation audit section. He became deputy commissioner in 1920, and resigned the following year to enter private business as a tax expert.

He returned to Internal Revenue as a revenue agent in 1935, was later promoted to group chief in the Washington branch office of the Baltimore Agent in Charge, and retired last June.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Mary E. Newton, a brother living in Portland, Oreg., and two sisters living in Kansas City, Mo.

W. S. Martin Dies; Retired Mail Official

Funeral services for Walker Shelton Martin, 80, retired assistant general superintendent of the Railway Mail Service, will be held at 4 p. m. today at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be 12:30 p.m. Thursday in Woodbine Cemetery, Harrisonburg, Va.

Mr. Martin, a veteran of 47 years in the Post Office Department, died after a long illness early yesterday at his home at 1826 Kilbourne pl. nw.

A native of Staunton, Va., he was the son of William Martin, one of the jurors in the trial of John Brown after the Harper's Ferry raid.

Entering the Railway Mail Service in 1893, Mr. Martin helped launch the parcel post system and the airmail service. Retired in 1940, he was recalled during World War II to help set a mail service for overseas servicemen.

He was a member of the Masons and leaves two daughters, Mrs. Richard Goetze, Old Greenwich, Conn.; and Mrs. Charles B. Chamberlin, Garrett Park, Md.; a son, William W. Martin, Albuquerque, N. M., anad eight grandchildren. His wife, Mrs. Helen Bradley Martin, died in 1938.

Four Named to Study Juvenile Court Setup

Judge Edith H. Cockrill announced yesterday that a commission of experts has been formed to study the policies and administration of Juvenile Court.

The group, which will hold its organization meeting Thursday, consists of:

William H. Sheridan, consultant on juvenile delinquency for the Children's Bureau; Col. W. W. Naramore, of the Department of Justice; Mrs. Robert E. Freer, lawyer, commentator and civic worker, and Charles C. Glover 3d, first vice president of the United Community Services.

Judge Cockrill said that while the group will work independently in determining the scope and extent of its study, the court staff will give "full cooperation." Its report will be made directly to the judge.

The idea of forming the commission was suggested on June 8 by the Advisory Committee of Juvenile Court, a body of citizens who have been working in behalf of the public under the tribunal's setup.

At the time the court was under fire, with two key aides there leaving because of disputes over policy with Judge Cockrill.

The advisory group suggested that the study be made by representatives of the Children's Bureau, the Department of Justice and the administrative office of the United States Court.

Judge Cockrill expressed willingness to have the probe but said it must wait until she put into effect certain personnel changes and reorganization.

On August 1, Miss Helaine Todd was appointed director of social work.

Since that time, said Judge Cockrill, "we have had an opportunity to work out together certain internal problems, policies and procedures for strengthening and improving the efficiency of the court.

She said that the study of the court should prove "most helpful" at this time. She added she has asked that an evaluation be also made of the Advisory Committee, including its membership, selection and tenure.

The Administrative Office of the United States Court declined to send a member to the investigative body, she said. Instead the United Community Service "the largest single representative community agency" sent Mrs. Freer and Glover to be "representatives of the community at large," she added.

Cabbie Accused of Raping Girl, 14, En Route From Church

A 24-year-old Laurel (Md.) cab driver has been charged by Maryland State Police with the rape of a 14-year-old Laurel girl Sunday night, police disclosed yesterday.

The cabbie, Lewis Bolyard, was hailed by the girl about 9:30 p. m. to take her home after church services, they said.

Instead, Bolyard reportedly drove to a little-traveled spot along Brooklyn Bridge rd. and raped the girl in the cab, she told police.

The girl first told her mother of the incident the next day, police said. A warrant was sworn by the mother after a medical examination showed evidence of an attack, they said.

Bolyard was arrested after the girl identified him at a hack stand in Laurel, according to police.

He was to be removed to the Hyattsville jail last night, they said, to await a hearing in police court November 6.

Assault Case Is Quashed

A charge that an Air Force colonel fired a pistol from his yacht in the Potomac River last July at two youths in a smaller craft was dropped yesterday in Prince Georges County Circuit Court.

The officer, Col. George H. Sparhawk, of 2401 S. Culpeper st., Arlington, was accused of assault—specifically that he fired at the youths because they were circling his yacht.

The charge was nolle prossed by State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie at the request of the complainant, Herschell Williams, jr., 18, 1 West Glendale ave., Alexandria, and his father.

With Williams at the time of the alleged incident was Robert Brixner, 17, of 604 Melrose st., Alexandria.

Paper Price Hike Set at $6 a Ton By Abitibi Firm

TORONTO, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—Abitibi Pulp and Paper Co., Ltd., said today it will increase its price of newsprint only $6 a ton Wednesday instead of $10 as originally announced.

The company said the increase was scaled down to bring it into line with the boost announced last week by the International Paper Sales Co., Ltd., and to "avoid a period of uncertainty and confusion."

It added, however, that an increase of $10 a ton was needed "to meet increasing costs and thus to encourage further expansion of supply." Four other Canadian newsprint firms have announced $10 increases, bringing the New York delivered price to $110 a ton.

Composer Critically Ill

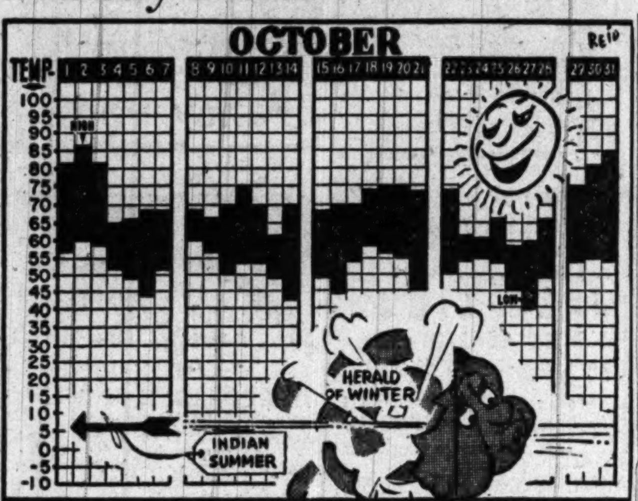
You Say You Liked October? Weatherman Rates It Drab



The Washington Post

October took it on the lamb—at both ends

October's weather may have been pleasant to the senses and sensibilities of Washington area residents, but to Weather Bureau statisticians, it was rather drab.

In short, everything was pretty close to normal—until yesterday, the last day of the month. Then the bureau recorded the highest temperature for the date, 85 degrees, in local weather annals. They date back to 1871.

While giving out with October's records, the Weather Bureau also forecast a warmer and drier November than usual over most of the country, except for our own east coast and the northern border area, which are expected to be near normal.

Less rainfall than normal is indicated over most of the country, except for near normal amounts in the northeast and along the northern border.

The highest temperature during October, 87 degrees on the 2nd, with 82 degrees recorded on the 1st and 3rd, made the month come in like a lamb, similar to its exit.

There was nothing to compare, however, with the all-time maximum, 97 degrees, on October 1, 1941. Even the minimum for last month was undistinguished. It was 39 degrees on the morning of October 27, compared to an all-time low for the month of 26 degrees in 1873, 1893 and 1917.

The average maximum and minimum temperatures, and the mean temperature of 61 degrees all were 3 to 3½ degrees above normal. That's not very abnormal, the Weather Bureau sniffed.

Rainfall was 3.59 inches, less than an inch more than the average for the period. The wettest day, 1.79 inches, was October 23.

For those who thought the thunderstorm on October 8 was unusual, the weather people sniffed again. One thunder and lightning session is to be expected in October's behavior.

We had 50 percent of the possible sunshine—the average is 61 percent — during eight clear days and eight partly cloudy days. There was also 13 plain cloudy days.

Remember the heavy fog we had three days straight, on the 18th, 19th and 20th? That was pretty ordinary stuff for October, too.

As a result of a special plea, Weather Bureau officials finally came up with something special for the month. The wind, which blew at an average hourly velocity of 8.4 miles, came from the "wrong" direction. It usually blows from the northwest in October. This time the prevailing breezes were from the south-southwest.

One On the Aisle

A Bunch of Stoics In Triangle Yarn

By Richard L. Coe

"THE GLASS MOUNTAIN," a British triangle yarn at the Little, is, I regret to say, just about as unsatisfactory as such things are in real life.

This time we have an RAF airman, who'd begun to make a dent in the musical composition world before the war, shot down over the Italian Alps. His life is saved and he's nursed to health by Valentina Cortesa, a cure, perforce, limited to only a few. After the war, his wife and work mean nothing to him and he can't get Valentina or her Alps out of his craw.

Understanding wife orders him to Italy and the girl, where he's inspired into composing an opera that even the shaggy directors of the Venice Opera think worth producing. Conscience plays hob with both the composer and his Valentina, who's chucked her village reputation in going off with the Britisher. His wife flies down to Venice for the opera and, as luck will have it, crashes at the foot of the glass mountain which is the basis for his music drama.

This concerns a legend about how the glass mountain will echo back the name of your true love if you shout it, but should you call the name of some merely passing whim, your only answer is chilly silence.

All this is played sincerely enough, but it is more the sincerity of chess players getting basic. Miss Cortesa puts up a brave front as the interloper who loses and Dulcie Gray goes through her heartbreak with enviable calm. Michael Denison is the vacillating male, as reserved about his loose libido as General Ike is about his political career.

Breaking into the story with his popular voice is Tito Gobbi, that fine baritone who's become extremely helpful in the Italian operatic pictures. He sings an appealing old folk song, "Song of the Mountains," as well as the operatic excerpts specially composed by Nino Rota. Gobbi is that rare operatic bird, a personality who registers on celluloid.

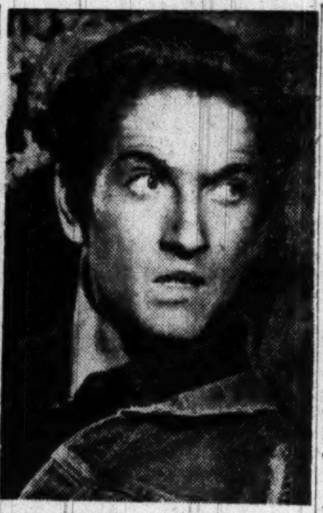
Propaganda Short

Also on the Little screen is an extraordinary short subject on Nationalist China, extraordinary because its propaganda for the Chiangs is so blatant. Produced by an outfit called United World Films, of which setup I can find no record, and narrated by Quentin Reynolds, it's called "Death of a Dream."

While I don't pretend to know much about China, I have learned from such sources as Walter Lippmann and Dorothy Thompson considerably more than this 40-minute propagandizing of the China lobby tells you. Naturally, there are many truths, but there are as many half-truths, and I couldn't help wondering who's footing the bill for this dish of thought food.

KEITH'S will be having a notable guest list of Defense and Army personnel tonight for its short subject accompanying the revival of Ingrid Bergman in "Joan of Arc" . . . This short is "The First 40 Days in Korea" and was filmed by the Army Signal Corps cameramen; a similar print of it is being shown round the globe by the State Department motion picture division . . . It's an engrossing factual story, quite free of the China lobby propaganda elements of the Quentin Reynolds short at the Little . . . For the run of the short, an exhibition of material collected in Korea will be on view in the 15th st. lobby.

THE TRANS-LUX will have another new one starting Friday, released by the recently-formed Pentagon Pictures, which will be distributing a good many of the J. Arthur Rank pictures in this country . . . Ann Todd and Eric Portman star in the melodramatic story by Monckton Hoffe, directed by Compton Bennett.



PROFILE JR.: John Barrymore, jr., has a Western role in "High Lonesome," opening tomorrow at the Metropolitan

"THE BARRIER," which Lawrence Tibbett and Muriel Rahn played for a week at the Gayety, will be opening in New York Thursday night . . . Since a layoff after the Gayety week, the music drama has been playing the subway circuit and now the closing of "Burning Bright" has unexpectedly opened up a theater in midtown, the Broadhurst.

THE BARTER THEATER will be back at the Washington-Lee High School November 13 with "A Comedy of Errors" . . . The Barter's last one, "The Show Off," doesn't seem to have been so hot, but Virginia's State theater usually does a rollicking job with Shakespeare . . . You get your seats for this one at the agency in the Willard Hotel, at the Arlington Sun or at Penny's store.

JOSE LIMON will be bringing his group of dancers to Lisner Auditorium Monday night in a program featuring two new works, "The Exiles," with music from Schoenberg, and "Concert," set to preludes and fugues by Bach. . . He'll repeat "The Moor's Pavanne." . . . This appearance is being sponsored by the Institute of Contemporary Arts, 1322 New York ave., Sterling 6266.

Tenants Pity Landlord, Raise Their Own Rent

WHITEHALL, Wis. (U.P.).—Rising prices caught up with Mr. and Mrs. C. Andrew Kuhn in the form of a note from their tenants.

"We have decided on account of high taxes that you should have more rent," the note said. "So if it's okay by you, starting in September we are raising it ($10) to $50."

Inquests Termed Waste of Time

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31 (AP).—Dr. Russell S. Fisher, chief medical examiner of Maryland, today attacked coroner's inquests as "time wasting and unnecessary."

Dr. Fisher extolled the Maryland medical examiner system, which he heads, before the tenth annual conference of the Maryland-District of Columbia-Delaware Hospital Association.

He said a coroner consumes time on "quasi-legal procedures," while a medical examiner can "devote more time to determining the medical facts concerning the cause of death."

A medical examiner, Dr. Fisher explained, determines the cause of death after consultation with police and the state's attorney. A coroner holds an inquest before a jury.

"If they decide someone is responsible for a death, they simply hold him for action. We do the same thing in much less time."

Auto Output Nears Record, Sales Slump

DETROIT, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—The auto industry is having an economic nightmare—a boom and a bust at the same ime.

Assembly lines are humming toward the first eight million-vehicle year in history. And at the same time, sales of new and used cars have slumped to near depression levels.

This situation, strangely enough, has brought forth no cries of alarm from top industry leaders. The silence of the manufacturers stands out like a dented fender when contrasted to the storm of protest raised by the Nation's more han 40,000 passenger car dealers.

The auto merchants, of course, blame the new Regulation W for cutting their sales just about in half—the 15-month limit on time payments and required one-third down payment.

Dealers have bombarded the Federal Reserve Board with complaints against Regulation W with the unspoken approval of their factories.

They also have warned auto makers that cars are beginning to pile up dangerously in their showrooms, with few buyers in sight.

Actually, the sales slowdown has caught the industry in a two-sided squeeze.

While Regulation W trims sales, the cost of making cars continues to rise. Labor costs jumped during the summer, and the increasing cost of living may result in further wage increases this fall under the "escalator" contracts in effect at many firms. Steel and rubber prices still are moving up.

One result of the "nightmare" may be a leveling off of prices.

Building Cleanup Work in D.C. Far Surpasses Former Years

The Board for the Condemnation of Insanitary Buildings has speeded up its work to the point where it handled more cases in the first half of 1950 than it did in the preceeding two years put together.

District Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young told his fellow Commissioners yesterday the six months figure was 252. The board had never handled more thon 100 cases in any previous year.

The board is still taking only small bites at the backlog of cases that Assistant Engineer Commissioner Thomas J. Hayes 3d estimates at 5000. The board's job is to force owners of run-down dwellings to bring their buildings up to city health and building standards, or get out.

Hayes attributed the swift progress to the streamlining of procedures, including several suggestions made in a report compiled by Young and Hayes last winter.

One important and fundamental step forward, Hayes said, is the acceptance of uniform procedure for handling all cases. The board also gives definite time periods to make corrections, thus eliminating constant checking. Concentration on blocks rather than individual houses, has helped speed the work. And the appropriation of funds for three more inspectors and an engineer should make the second half report even better, Hayes said.

Young told the Commissioners 455 families lived in the 252 houses. Repairs were made in 196 cases; 249 families were evicted. Of those evicted all but 45 families found other housing either on their own or with the help of the National Capital Housing Authority. The remaining 10 percent were up against it.

Young recommended that since the board has "so wide a field to choose from" it concentrate for the present on cases where corrections can be made. There will be unavoidable cases where evictions must be made, he said. But where possible this should wait until a large-scale slum clearance and housing program gets started.

Savings Peak Cited at Loan League Parley

By S. Oliver Goodman

The 28 member associations of the D. C. Building and Loan League now serve more than 250,000 individuals and share savings approximate 340 million dollars. Both totals are new records.

This was reported last night at the league's annual business meeting in the Shoreham Hotel, attended by more than 200 leaders in the industry.

Fred A. Smith was reelected president and other officers were continued for a second term as follows: William H. Dyer, vice president; Robert E. Buckley, treasurer; F. Willson Camp, secretary, and C. Clinton James, general council.

Reappointed to serve another year on the executive council of the league were Edmond M. Emerish, Martin A. Cook, Carl C. Smuck, Raymond C. Williams, John P. Balster and Edward K. Jones.

The league was presented with the Treasury's award of merit for cooperation in the Savings Bond program. The presentation was made by Edward C. Baltz, chairman of the D. C. Savings Bond Division.

A reception, honoring the officers, took place after the business meeting. Following the annual banquet, feature address was made by Dr. Murray Banks, New York newspaper columnist.

Secretary Camp in his annual report outlined the year's legislative gains and losses, probable effects of Regulations X and W, and gave statistical highlights of the year ended September 30. He noted that assets of the 28 member associations now exceed 406.5 million dollars and that loans outstanding aggregate 339 million dollars.

ANOTHER PEAK: Washington bank clearings in October soared to $443,367,754, highest monthly total on record. Last month's aggregate was more than 100 million dollars higher than the $341,709,822 in October, 1949. For the first 10 months this year, clearings reached the astronomical figure of $3,839,923,567, against $3,195,719,729 in the similar 1949 period.

IN NEW POST: Felix Morley has been placed in charge of the Washington office of Barron's weekly newsmagazine, at 1249 National Press Building. Morley, editor of The Washington Post from 1933 to 1940, been associated with a radio news program. He will be assisted in his new duties by Mrs. Evelyn L. Freer, former business manager of the weekly analysis "Human Events" John Davenport, new editor of Barron's, recently announced that the publication will give expanded news coverage, with critical analysis, while maintaining all of its regular market and statistical information.

Stocks Again Slump in Late Selling Wave

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP).—Sudden selling beat stock prices down again today.

Heavy liquidation hit the market in the last hour of trading. A similar wave of selling, intense and unexpected, flattened the market in the last hour Monday.

Losses today extended to around $3 a share before leading issues found a botton. Final prices were a trifle above the extreme lows in most cases.

The plunge came as a surprise ending to a mild morning advance. Buyers took a fancy to steel and rail shares and for a while a real rally appeared to be brewing. Not much progress was made however.

WHAT STOCKS DID:	Tues.	Mon.
Advances	192	216
Declines	754	715
Unchanged	223	235
Total issues	1169	1166

Trading volume expanded to 2,010,000 shares from 1,790,000 Monday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 40 cents at $82.10 a share. This compared with a drop of 90 cents on Monday.

There was nothing spectacular in the news to account for the suddenness or severity of the break. Since the market fell flat on its face last week, however, traders have been jittery and more susceptible to the winds of rumor and fancy than cold facts.

At the same time a speech by the new economic stabilization administrator, Alan Valentine, had a distinctly unpalatable flavor. Valentine said home front controls may last far longer this time than the four-year sacrifices of World War II.

The Administration, he said, is placing its first hope in indirect controls. Later, he added, direct wage and price controls may be necessary.

Early interest in the steels was stimulated by the approach of a meeting by the board of U. S. Steel. After the close of the market the company announced an increase in the dividend plus a 75-cent special payment.

U. S. Steel closed 50 cents higher at $41.25. An even higher price was paid on the west coast after the New York exchange closed.

Armco made a comeback after dropping $2.75 to $43.50 a share Monday. The stock gained more than $1 a share at one time but this was later reduced to 12 cents.

New York Cotton

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP).—Cotton futures closed 55 cents a bale higher to 65 cents lower today. Prices moved over a range of about $2 a bale under alternate influences of hedge selling against the new crop movement and mill covering against textile sales. Professional traders were on both sides of the market.

Business Outlook

Employers Honor Labor Boss, Can't Get Along Without Him

By J. A. Livingston

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—"When he came to Philadelphia in 1929, we hated him. We had enough trouble. The stock market had crashed. Some of us had lost our shirts in Wall Street. Business was lousy. And he wanted to form a union! That was all we needed!"

A small, earnest, elderly man, Jacob Pincus, of Pincus Bros., Inc., men's clothing manufacturer, was talking of Charles Weinstein, vice president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America. Suddenly Pincus' face burst into a smile. "And now we love him. We couldn't do without him."

Livingston

Imagine! A manufacturer praising a union leader! That's in a class with man bites dog, Stalin says yes, and boy doesn't meet girl. Can you dream of the coal mine owners cheering—not jeering—John L. Lewis? Or the leaders of the steel industry giving a testimonial dinner to Philip Murray? Or the heads of General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, and other automobile companies naming Walter Reuther man-of-the-year? Yet all these tributes have just been accorded Weinstein.

After two years of trying, the Philadelphia Men's Apparel Association got him to accept their annual award of Man-of-the-Year for 1950. They'd tried in 1948, but Weinstein ducked. If management paid him homage, maybe some of the workers would feel he wasn't doing his job, maybe it wouldn't sit well with fellow union leaders.

THE ASSOCIATION wouldn't take no for an answer. Representatives went to Jacob Potofsky, who succeeded Sidney Hillman as president of the Amalgamated. Potofsky said: "If you honor Charlie Weinstein, you're honoring the union."

Upshot: A dinner attended by 1200 persons, at a cost of $15,000. Representatives of Hart, Schaffner & Marx, John Wanamaker's H. Daroff & Sons, City Stores, Lit Brothers, William P. Goldman & Brothers, Alfred Decker & Cohn, the Quartermaster General, United States Army Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania, saluted him.

You can't help wondering: What has this guy got that sets him so far apart as a labor leader that even the men he bargains with pay tribute to him? The answer of Louis Goldsmith of Louis Goldsmith, Inc., is: "He understands and appreciates the problems of the employer and is able and willing to help solve them."

Weinstein is a tough bargainer. All the employers say that. Right now the Philadelphia Clothing Manufacturers Association is building jointly with the union—half and half—a $1,300,000 Sidney Hillman Medical Center for clothing workers. The manufacturers have contracted to meet the yearly bills, estimated at $250,000 to $300,000.

WEINSTEIN'S SECRET is quid pro quo. What his union gets he pays for in high productivity. He has sent union experts into the alteration shops of large department stores. Result: Alterations cost less today than a year ago, in spite of higher wage rates.

Back in 1932, when his union seemed to be falling apart—you can't hold a union together with unemployment — Weinstein showed his mettle. Six out of 10 tailors were walking the street. John Wanamaker's was being undersold by low-priced men's clothing chains by $12.50 a suit. Weinstein went to Wanamaker's: "I'll get a manufacturer to make you a suit to sell for $22.50 and compete with the chains, if you'll reduce your markup." Wanamaker's agreed.

Next, Weinstein went to Pincus Bros. Yes, Pincus would reduce their markup. Weinstein, in turn, agreed to see that the workers gave Pincus production. So, Wanamaker's sold more suits, Pincus got more business, and Weinstein got more employment for his members.

In the 21 years since Weinstein came to Philadelphia, Philadelphia's share of the United States men's clothing production has gone up from 9 percent to 14 percent. No manufacturer has left the Philadelphia area because of labor difficulties. On the contrary, firms have opened up here for the benefit of Weinstein's counsel. When H. Daroff & Sons bought out Worsted-Tex in Baltimore, Daroff's asked the Amalgamated to permit Weinstein to handle their labor relations, even though Baltimore was outside the Philadelphia area.

Apparently, Weinstein has a rare kind of constructive insight—to see all sides of a problem and also to see a solution. Potofsky, in praising him, said: "You, Charlie Weinstein, belong not only to Philadelphia but to the Nation. You have a great future." Was that a suggestion that ultimately Weinstein, who's only 54, will move into a larger sphere, perhaps as Potofsky's successor as head of the Amalgated?

$1.50 'Melon' Is Declared By U. S. Steel

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP).—United States Steel Corp. reported its highest nine-months earnings since 1917 today and directors ordered an increased distribution of the profits to the company's approximately 245,000 stockholders.

Holders of common stock of the Nation's No. 1 steel producer will be paid $1.50 a share December 9, representing a 75-cent dividend and a special payment of 75 cents. Participating will be holders of record November 10.

Net income of United States Steel for the nine months ended September 30 was reported as $178,821,540, equal to $6.12 a commo nshare. This was the largest profit for a similar period since the corporation earned $180,304,000 in the first three quarters of 1917.

The dividends declared today will bring total payments for 1950 to $3.45 a common share. Disbursements of 65 cents each were made in three preceding quarters. Stockholders received $2.25 a share, on the basis of a similar number of shares, in all of 1949.

Irving S. Olds, United States Steel chairman, told a news conference after the dividend announcement that since many other industries have granted increases in their wage rates, "we may have to do something similar." The corporation is negotiating with the steelworkers union on wage demands.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Oct. 31 (AP).—Soybeans displayed unexpected strength at the Board of Trade today and carried other futures upward on a sustained rally.

At the opening traders expected to find notice of intention to deliver around two million bushels of soybeans tomorrow. When these notices failed to appear, shorts started to cover and found offerings very light.

Other grains followed the advance in soybeans and at the finish wheat was ¾ to 1¾ higher, corn was ⅞ to 2 cents higher, oats were ⅝ to ⅞ higher, rye was 1⅛ to 2⅛ higher, soybeans were 5¼ to 7¾ higher and lard was 5 cents higher to 40 cents a hundredweight lower.

I SAID NO—MA SAID YES

That's why I'm selling—so bring on your kids, your pets and the whole family as there is really room to spread out in this house, as it has ½ acre of ground; close to bus service and shopping.

Solidly built frame and Bricktex construction, with large kitchen, dining room, bath, living room and 2 bedrooms on 3rd floor; wonderful new stove and refrigerator goes with the sale. Oil hot air heat; with filter system, the kind that is so economical to use.

Upstairs you have separate rooms for the kiddies and the basement is dry as a bone, outside entrance to a lovely yard where you won't have to worry while your children are playing.

Oh yes, there's a garage where you can park the average man's car without heming and hawin.

There is a catch and the catch is that you must have $3000 down and be able to pay at least $78 per month for a substantially fair priced home—$10,750.

Call Ma or me and we will be glad to have you inspect this property. Phone AL. 6644 or TE. 7343.

Broadway Heartbeat

Celebs About Town: President Truman sipping champagne (for the first time, he said) at the U. N. luncheon. Didn't like it . . . Judy Garland, reported flat broke, singing for free at the various stayuplates . . . Evelyn Knight tee-heeing the news that M. Berle "Pagliaccis" for his ex-wife, Joyce Mathews . . . Heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles, whose intimates call him "Snooks" . . . Janet Paige, given the freeze by Hollywood last year, snubbing offers to return after her clicks here . . . John Steinbeck strolling along 5th Avenue after his play, "Burning Bright," was darkened by the critics. One of the very few playwrights who can afford to shrug off flops . . . Margaret O'Brien cutting some dashing figure-8s on the Rockefellerink . . . Ambassador Pandit and her 3 dghtrs from India spending a rare night out at The Tokay . . . Faye Emerson and Gigi Durston handshaking for the first time since L'Affaire Elliott, when they met at The Blue Angel.

Sallies in Our Alley: In Lindy's last night the big laugh was the gag about the gambler who died . . . The funeral was attended by his professional colleagues . . . In eulogy, the speaker intoned: "Moe isn't dead. He merely sleeps!" . . . To which a wag mumbled: "I got $10 that says he's dead!" . . . They were studying a rap in a column at Toots Shor's. To which Robert Sylvester critiqued: "There he goes again—throwing down to Second with nobody there."

Midtown Vignette: Sherman Billingsley, the Stork Club prop., after a career of Good Notices discovered that the Sour Ones were difficult to take . . . But when his closest intimates (who accepted his wine, perfume, food and gifts) turned out to be his severest critics over his teevy program he got up and left Table 50 for some fresh air . . . The rapping continued, anyhow . . . One fellow, nursing a brandy, offered no comment . . . "What about you?" he was challenged. "Scared?" . . . "No," he said, "I like Sherman. He picks up a heluva check."

Memos of a Midnighter: Patrice Munsel and Joan Caulfield will be the bridesmaids when Betty Caulifield becomes Lieut. Comdr. C. Victor's bride at St. Pat's . . . Cole Porter's new musical, "Out of This World," is sold out already for its 3-week run at the Shubert, Philly. The premiere is Sateve. Columbia Records paid Porter $75,000 for the rights to the score. A new high . . . Atlantic City and Hot Springs hotels are capacity because so many citizens from here don't appreciate the Kefauver crime probers . . . Dist. Atty. Hogan will unveil the top gambling scandal of them all . . . Jolson's last ballad, written with H. Akst, was titled: "No Sad Songs For Me" . . . Recommended: Andy Russell's Capitol platter: "I Guess I'll Have to Dream the Rest" . . . It's a girl for the Wm. Hammersteins (Christina Lind) at Drs. Hosp., elevating the "South Pacific" lyrics magician to grandpappyhood . . . A camera girl working for eating money in a Broadway Bop-spot is from one of Canada's First Families.

Overheard Novelette: Scene: A swank bar . . . Two attractive women of about 25 were talking . . . You couldn't avoid hearing this short-short story: "Don't ever become The Other Woman" . . . "I get it. Did you ever read 'Back Street'?" . . . "Did you ever LIVE it?"

Times Sq. Tabletalk: The newlywelded Rory Colhouns have solved the trick of staying married. While he is at Key West filming 20th's "Frogman," his bride (Lita Baron) will thrush in the night clubs there . . . George Raft kept his illness sotto-voce . . . Lee Grant of "Arms and the Man" and Gene Lyons are breathless . . . Stan Kenton's new heart is Pat Morris, his new thrush from Omaha . . . They say Audie Murphy's Dreamy-Boo is Pamela Archer, an airline hostess . . . The Jerry Siegels (he created the Superman strip) are imaging . . . When Irving Berlin sailed to Italy with his daughter Mary Ellin, he took along his barber (Bill) of the Strand shop. Bill hasn't seen his kin for as long as he's shaved Berlin—30 years . . . Claude Picard, who is time-buyer at Benton & Bowles, gets gifts from mail clients. Usually pipes, cravats, etc. Claude's a beautiful 24-year-old gal.

White Light Nightems: The 49th and Broadway Howard Johnson spot has a cashier and hostess (matinees) lovelier than most show-girl beauts . . . Locals hear that Lena Horne, appearing at the Flamingo Hotel (Las Vegas), is hospitalized daytimes . . . Frankie Carle and his long-time agency divorce when the contract fades in February . . . Job-hunting males are congesting the new Hazel Vandeveer-Elizabeth Lee agency on 42d. Both are ex-cover-gels . . . The Eniwetok atom tests, now in the newsreels, are the most scarey photos yet . . . Tide mag. published mainly for ad execs., doesn't think radio is whipped yet. Tide reports six million radio sets purchased in the first six months of 1950. Double the sales of videos—and the new figures show 41,500,000 radio homes over 39,200,000 in January, 1949.

Queericktors About Town: The Periscope Book Shop on 56th between Madison & Park where subscribers are told which books to avoid. Their own critics . . . Ray Bourbon, the entertainer, who wears a $4000 mink Eton jacket in his act . . . "Grandma Mildred," about 80, most successful of the autograph-collectors . . . The pathetic but proud woman of about 70, who usually parks at 50th and 6th, rendering tunes on the harmonica. Her nearby poster states: "I play requests. I do not accept money."

The Late Watch: Emlyn Williams' new play in London, produced by Leland Hayward and Josh Logan, is reported the most daring sex-theme ever staged. Great curiosity there whether New Yorkers will go for it . . . "Mr. Roberts" (with Ty Power) isn't enjoying its Broadway success because Londoners "just don't believe it." But one of the toughest tickets to buy, they report, is "Seagulls Over Sorrento," the British version of the same play . . . Senor Margolis, who bossed the Met Opera claque for many years, has retired on the coin he made hiring applause-makers and is living a cozy life at Monte Carlo . . . Blue lipstick threatens to become a fad here. It's The Thing in Chicago . . . Add Nominations for Prettiest Reporter: Phyllis Battelle of Int'l News . . . A long-time paragrapher and his New York paper are rumored parting . . . Horace Heidt says he never threatened radio critic Jack O'Brian and that he is touring for the Air Force, "which guards freedom of the press" . . . Herald Trib drama news-collector Bert McCord thinks actress Neva Patterson is the greatest thing since days off . . . The Morning Telegraph (of all gazettes) reported that a horse finished with "puissance" . . . Translation for the Broadway mob: The nag finished strong . . . Personal note to Ben Hogan, Sam Snead and Co.: Roney Plaza pro Jerry Cooke witnessed this duffer's 46½ ft. putt yesterday . . . Ho, hum.

British Fascist Chief Flies to Argentina

LONDON, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—Sir Oswald Mosley, British Fascist leader, left by plane for Buenos Aires today and it was reported he might get in touch with the secret German Nazi organization called "The Spider," which has headquarters in Argentina.

Mosley, who was interned during the war, reorganized his Fascists as the "British Union Movement," which deplores World War II as a "brothers' war"—namely, between Britain and Germany as brother Nordic countries. Mosley said before he left that, as a publisher now, he is going to try to "sell books" in South America.

FCC Asks RCA To Let CBS Try TV Tube

By The Associated Press

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday asked Radio Corporation of America to turn over its tri-color television tube to Columbia Broadcasting System for experiments with the approved CBS color plan.

The Commission last month selected Columbia color for exclusive licensing and at the same time ruled out rival color methods developed by RCA and Color Television, Inc., of San Francisco.

RCA, whose color system includes the single full-color tube developed in its laboratories, has since brought suit in Chicago to upset the Columbia selection. The court action is largely based on the fact that Columbia color, using different broadcasting standards from current TV operations, cannot be picked up on present sets without the purchase of additional equipment.

The CBS color method now includes a mechanical rotating color wheel.

However, the FCC noted yesterday that experts had testified the wheel could be discarded in favor of a single direct view tri-color tube when such a tube is "successfully developed."

The commission said in a letter to RCA that it recalled RCA had said last July that it hoped to have a sufficient number of tubes by the fall months to make them available to the industry for "study and development work."

The FCC said it is anxious to have the tube tested in the CBS color system and asserted:

"The commission feels it is appropriate to request when arrangements can be concluded between you and CBS whereby the above tests may be conducted.

"It would be helpful if the CBS could be given the necessary technical information and operating instructions and could have the opportunity to view the tubes selected by you in operation in the RCA system.

"The commission believes your cooperaiton in this matter will be in the public interest."

In New York, an RCA spokesman said the company had not received such a letter from the FCC, but "if and when we do, we will have a reply."

10 Percent TV Set Tax Starts Today

A 10 percent tax on the manufacturer's prices of television sets and freezers goes into effect today. District dealers were confused yesterday just how much of the tax would be passed on to the consumer.

The confusion stemmed in part from the fact that the tax is applicable only on goods sold by the manufacturer after today.

The major questions were:

1. How much would be absorbed by the manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer?

2. Whether the resulting increase would be tacked onto current inventories or only on past-deadline shipments?

The Internal Revenue Bureau said the new law means higher prices—but not much higher—on television sets and freezers.

A similar tax has been in effect on radios for years.

Three changes in the excise tax laws also go into effect today, too:

1. The 20 percent "luxury" tax will be applied when jewelry and furs are sold by auctioneers.

2. The annual levy on slot machines increases from $100 to $150 per machine.

3. The 15 percent passenger ticket tax and the 3 percent freight levy will be applied to payments made outside the country for transportation in the United States.

Miss Coca Hits Peak After Years of Work

By John Rosenburg

NEW YORK (U.P.).—Imogene Coca, the girl with the mobile face of a thousand verbs, finally has reached stardom after 16 years in show business. The glitter is not what she dreamed it would be, though.

Imogene Coca

Miss Coca's pantomime sketches on television's "Show of Shows," which stars Sid Caesar, have made her one of the "rave" names of the theatrical world. Each Saturday night she is seen in approximately 50 cities by an estimated audience of 10 million.

"When I think of that big audience, it scares me," she said. "It also makes me work very hard to be good. As a matter of fact, I've never worked so hard, or so long at a job before in my life."

Miss Coca first received mention in 1934 in a pantomime skit in the revue "New Faces." In the skit was an unknown actor named Henry Fonda. He was replaced later, by another unknown, Van Johnson.

WHILE FONDA and Van Johnson skyrocketed to fame and fortune, Miss Cocoa's career was relegated to a series of bit parts in Broadway productions. She quit the theater for almost three years, then began to play in the night club circuit. While always popular, she never hit the big time until she started in television.

Her present salary is reported to approach $2000 a week. She doesn't get much chance to enjoy it, however. She and Caesar begin rehearsals almost immediately after each performance. The rehearsals run from morning to night, right up to show time the following week.

"That's the trouble," she said. "Work, work, work. When I started in show business, I dreamed of stardom as every performer does. But it was stardom in the grand manner. A big home. Chauffeur-driven cars. Closets full of clothes. Plenty of free time to travel. Long vacations."

"THAT'S THE WAY it happens to movie and stage stars. Not so in television. Each week means a new set of ideas, new material and a completely new performance. It goes on from one season to the next.

"Why, I've been so busy I haven't even had time to buy a new hat. I mean that literally. Now, how can any woman be completely happy when she's cut off from that little luxury?"

Miss Coca said, however, that the television fan has made her efforts more than worthwhile. She claims the TV fan is completely different from those of the legitimate theater and the night club.

"The TV fan is a 'first-name' fan," she observed. "They seem to appreciate the performer as a real person, not as a facade of glamour and artificiality. I did some theater work this summer and met several of my fans. It was a refreshing and stimulating experience."

Building Drive Nears Peak

Stones Become Living Memorials in D. C. Cathedral

By Nicha Searle

Mrs. Berkley Simmons is collecting money for stones—not ordinary stones, to be sure, but huge blocks which in another generation will complete a beautiful landmark in the Nation's Capital—the Washington Cathedral.

Mrs. Simmons is the chairman of the general women's committee of the Cathedral Fund which is composed of 175 women canvassing the area for Cathedral subscribers.

Too many people have the erroneous idea that the Cathedral wants only large donations. That's not the case, the Women's Committee, will tell you. The mainstay of the fund is the smaller contributor—the Government girl who dedicates a stone in the Cathedral for a brother lost in the war, or the mother who gives a stone in thanksgiving for a daughter who has recovered from a serious illness. A stone may be bought for as little as $10.

And it's the plain stones—the great rectangular Indiana limestone blocks which are the strength of the Washington Cathedral—which are the greatest need to be met by the campaign.

CATHEDRAL WORKERS WILL ADMIT readily that they are thankful for the generous memorial gifts of stained glass and carvings which hold promise of incomparable beauty when these architectural features can be installed. But the plain stones are the prime necessity to insure continued building progress.

Even the plain stones become memorials, Mrs. Simmons will tell you. The names of contributors and benefactors and the names of persons in whose memory stone gifts are made are recorded in a series of volumes known as the Book of Remembrance. This book will constitute a lasting record to be preserved in the Cathedral.

Of the $50,000 Cathedral fund quota assigned to the Capital area, $35,000 is earmarked for sustaining and $15,000 for building.

A donor may select the phase of Cathedral life he chooses to support. He may wish to buy a building stone or contribute to the continued construction of the Cathedral. On the other hand, the donor may wish to designate his money for the conduct of worship services which he attends regularly. Or he may choose to earmark his money for the choir, the choral society or the library, or it might be the gardens and landscaping that are closer to his heart.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE, the committee tells prospects in the Washington area. When the campaign fund closes on November 9, the general women's committee and the special gifts committee will have made about 3300 personal calls to past subscribers and known friends of the Cathedral.

It was the women's committee which last year brought in 47 percent of the total fund. Judging by the progress made this year, the women's committee will do equally as well. Mrs. Montgomery Blair is chairman of the special gifts committee and Mrs. Simmons, with Mrs. Charles Hamilton Maddox as vice chairman, heads the general women's committee.

Although Mrs. Simmons has worked in a top leadership post for the first time this year, she has shown unusual ability in organizing the campaign and the 175 workers, in the opinion of seasoned campaign workers.

IT'S FOR THIS, THE ULTIMATE completion and the present-day maintenance of the Cathedral, that the army of volunteer campaign workers have laid aside their personal life to raise funds for the Great House of Prayer in the Nation's Capital.

CATHEDRAL VOLUNTEERS—On their way to the Washington Cathedral campaign fund offices are (left to right) volunteer workers Mrs. Ralph C. Mulligan, Mrs. William C. Coe and Mrs. Berkley Simmons. Mrs. Simmons is chairman of the general women's committee of the fund in Washington. The Victory Tea of the fund will be held on November 9.

All Soul's Church Plans Bazaar Nov. 9

ALL SOULS' MEMORIAL EPISCOPAL CHURCH also holds a bazaar Thursday in the church basement, Wisconsin ave. and Volta be sold. A ham dinner, served the public from 5 to 7 p. m., will wind up festivities at the Parish Hall, Cathedral ave. and Woodley pl. nw. A file box of favorite recipes of women of All Souls' will be among interesting items on the gift table, which will operate from 2 to 8 p. m. An artist will be on hand to sketch crayon portraits, and there'll be a fortune-telling booth. Pies, cakes, jellies, cookies, candies, cut flowers, books and "white elephants" will also be sold at booths and tables.

MEMORIAL SHRINE—Washington Cathedral fund campaign volunteers, Mrs. William C. Coe (left) and Mrs. Robert M. Griffin, take a peek at the model of the War Memorial Shrine as inspiration for their fund-raising efforts. When completed, the shrine, which is one of the architectural features of the south transept, will be the repository of the National Roll of Honor. The roll will be a permanent and growing tribute to the men and women who have served in the Nation's armed forces in time of war

First Family Starts Some Talk

By Marie McNair and Elizabeth Maguire

A TALKED-ABOUT PARTY is the cocktail fete to be hosted by Marvin Braverman on Sunday, November 12, honoring Mrs. Perle Mesta, United States Minister to Luxembourg. Since the honor guest is a good friend of the First Family, the President and Mrs. Truman have doubtless been invited—although White House Secretary Mrs. James M. Helm was mum on the subject at her news conference yesterday.

Socialites also speculate that Margaret Truman may be among the party guests, since Host Braverman is one of her frequent escorts when she's in Washington. Many top officials are expected to attend the party, which will be held in the Chinese Room of the Mayflower from 5:30 to 7:30 o'clock.

The date has not been set for a dinner which the President and Mrs. Truman are said to be planning for Mrs. Mesta before she returns to her post sometime around the middle of December. When Mrs. Mesta visited Washington last spring there was a dinner for her at Blair House.

Mrs. Helm did specify at her press conference that Mrs. Truman will be among the Pi Phi mothers who are giving a luncheon on Thursday for mothers of new Pi Phi members. Pi Phi was Margaret's sorority at George Washington University. The luncheon will be on the campus at 1 p. m.

Mrs. Truman will give a tea on Tuesday, November 7, for women here attending the Third International Congress on Brucellosis. (Brucellosis is undulant fever.) The tea will be at 4 p. m. at Blair House. An educational luncheon, to be given November 9 by the Women's National Democratic Club will be attended by Mrs. Truman.

It is expected the First Lady will attend the concert to be given by Miss Minna Niemann, pianist, at the Sulgrave Club on November 10 at 5 p. m. Mrs. Truman may also attend the reception, to be held at the Bishop's House, for the national board of the Young Women's Christian Association and "Y" leaders from the various States. The reception is to be held on Sunday, the 12th, after a service at the Cathedral at 4 p. m.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Well Liked by Students, Who Rate Her a Favorite, Teacher Fears She May Have a Stroke, Due to Hating People Generally; She's 37, Makes Friends Easily

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been a teacher in this town for several years. My efficiency rating is excellent, but there have been transfers and troubles here, as in other cities where I've worked, all because I can't get along with people. I would have been kicked out of the system long ago if it weren't for my excellent work production.

I make friends easily and end by hating them. I go out of my way to help people, or to do kind things for them, and I end up hating these people and thinking horrible mean things about them. I even visualize striking them. That's my problem—the ugly things I think and want to say. The violence of my thoughts makes my head ache. I feel a tight band around my head. I am afraid I'll have a blood clot or a stroke, and I get so frightened.

I am 37, attractive, well educated by academic standards; I dress well, and I keep busy with sports, study, religious and social activities. I have fine men friends and end up hating them too. I read good books in search of help, and I pray, Oh how I pray as I drive along; and the next minute I am caught in the same vicious circle of evil thinking. I want to learn how to take people as they are; how to laugh and forgive the foibles of mankind. I want to be free of malice.

If the person whom I am disliking makes the slightest concession of friendliness, I forget all evil thinking toward that person; but it is transferred to another, or to several others. Interestingly enough, I am well liked by my students, and considered a "favorite" teacher. Sometimes I cry out, I feel so helpless. I know this cannot go on, without hurting me. I have read your column for years, and I KNOW you can help me, if you will. E. L.

DEAR E. L.: Obviously you are suffering from a longstanding, somewhat complicated problem of psychoneurosis. And you need specialist help in exploring this sick condition, to fathom the history and mechanics of the ailment, as a first step in getting control of it,—just as you would need expert dental care in locating and healing, or extirpating, the source of pain in an aching tooth.

It appears that your maladjustment starts with a conviction of social rejection. Thus even when striving, compulsively, to get next to people by doing kind deeds on their behalf, you unconsciously expect thankless rebuff or heedless exploitation of your do-gooder attitude. Hence you succumb to discouraged resentment, midway in each new campaign for acceptance, and turn on the person bitterly, at least in your thinking. This literally isolates you, which accelerates neurotic depression, and keeps you in a chronic state of rage, anxiety and self condemnation—or call it emotional frustration.

Impulses to love and cooperate, as self perpetuating, self protective measures, are indigenous to human nature. When the individual life-force is denied experience along these reassuring lines, the energy is transmuted into self consuming hatred, which then "projects" as hatred of humanity, too. Thus you hate people partly because you aren't versed in loving them, faults included (because you weren't inclusively loved in formative years); and partly because you're mad at yourself. Why? For being a failure, you feel; for not achieving the fulfillment as a woman that your nature craves; also because it is ingrained in you to scorn yourself,—a slant acquired from your handlers in infancy and childhood.

Part of your neurotic pattern is that you won't let yourself get close to people. You guard against it involuntarily, even though hungering for it as salvation (which indeed it is), and overtly seeking it up to a point.

This conflict doubtless goes back to crushing defeats, in early life, of your attempts to get psychologically close to significant persons. In fighting closeness nowadays, you are hiding a tremendous need to love and be loved; you are afraid to expose this need, because in your experience it never yet has been dignified by understanding attention or answering devotion, insofar as you know.

The neurotic's major tragedy isn't so much the early emotional bludgeoning that geared him to maladjustment. Rather it is the fact that he blunders through life, overlooking so many potential blessings that could be his if he were alert to reality. But he blindly misses the healing chance, time and again, because he's still morbidly shadow-boxing with ancient history. And in your life, maybe the healing chance has beckoned and hovered many times, in someone's readiness to love you, while you churned by in self-absorbed unseeing misery.

For insight, perspective and guildance, read Strecker and Appel's good book "Discovering Ourselves," (Macmillan publisher); and give special attention to Chapter 10, which discusses anger—what it is, what it does and what to do about it. M. H.

a three-day visit with the President and Mrs. Truman. Mrs. William Duke, Mrs. Thomas Twyman and Mrs. Kenneth Bostian passed the time pleasantly and quietly, and on Sunday they went down the river with their host and hostess, taking luncheon on board the Presidential yacht Williamsburg.

For Mrs. Twyman it was a second White House visit, as she was here in the spring of '46 with the Bridge Club ladies from Independence. All three recent visitors are long-time friends of Mrs. Truman.

ALONG EMBASSY ROW

Dr. Carlos Brin, who came to Washington 10 years ago as Ambassador of Panama, found old friends in the gathering yesterday at the Panama Embassy when the Ambassador and Senora de Herbruger entertained in his honor at a late day fete.

Now Minister of Foreign Affairs for his country, Dr. Brin is down from New York where he's been attending the special sessions of the General Assembly of U. N. No stranger here, he received his medical degree from George Washington University School of Medicine and for a number of years has been one of Panama's outstanding surgeons.

Today Assistant Secretary of State Edward G. Miller, jr., will be host at a stag luncheon at Prospect House for the visitor and Dr. Brin was honor guest at a luncheon at the Pan American Union yesterday following a special session of the Council of the Organization of American States.

The Indian summer day had opened up the flagstone terrace for the embassy's overflow guests, and in the dining room there was a flower decked buffet with the usual party fare, plus South American cocktail accompaniments such as enchiladas and empanadas.

TODAY AT NOON, the Netherlands Consul in Puerto Rico, Waldemar F. Lee, is to be decorated as Knight in the Order of Orange Nassau. The award will be made by the Ambassador, Dr. J. H. van Roijen, on behalf of Queen Juliana.

Mr. Lee is American-born, and his father, the late Albert E. Lee, who also served as Netherlands consul in Puerto Rico, received the same award in 1912 from Queen Wilhelmina.

TRAVEL DEPT.:

RALPH ACKERMAN, United States Ambassador to the Dominican Republic, and Mrs. Ackerman are in Washington on leave from the Ambassador's post. They are spending the week with Gen. and Mrs. John N. Greely and will go from here to California for a visit. General and Mrs. Greely visited the Ambassador and Mrs. Ackerman in Trujillo City last winter.

MRS. ALLAN GLASGOW THOMPSON, the former Miss Charlotte Bernice Skonnord, was married last evening at the Lutheran Church of the Reformation. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Olaf B. Skonnard of Valley City, N. Dak., and the bridegroom is the son of Edmund Thompson and the Mrs. Thompson of Augusta, Mont. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore ivory satin and lace and carried white orchids with her Bible. Mrs. Kaare J. Loftheim was her sister's matron of honor. The newlyweds will reside in Arlington, Va., on return from their wedding trip

Feet Come First When A Lady Is in Waiting

By Ann Lawrence

(Second Day of Betty's Beauty Program)

THE ONLY PIECE OF ADVICE you should accept from your kind, loving friends during pregnancy is the one that is invariably offered first: Go to a good doctor (preferably theirs!).

Choose a man who has the respect of his profession and can be recommended by more than one physician. From then on, you are in his hands alone. Follow his instructions to the letter. If some of them seem unnecessary, ask for the reasons behind them and you will be glad to obey his orders. Let his scientific knowledge protect you from the fears and warnings and the old wives' tales of your friends and relatives.

When the doctor confirms your hopes, go immediately to your favorite shoe store. There you should buy at least one, and better, two or three pairs of low-heeled shoes.

BE SURE THAT THEY ARE large enough, as your feet are liable to swell. The importance of this cannot be overemphasized. The right shoes and a good corset are essential, even though you cannot afford another thing. Walking will be your main exercise and the safeguard of your health. Going places will be your main diversion and the safeguard of your mental peace. Neither will be possible without low heels.

No one has ever attempted to defend high heels on any other ground than vanity. The unnatural strain that they put on the body is increased two or even threefold during pregnancy. There is also the ever-present danger of tripping and the resultant possible injuries.

It was not only her back that was aching, Betty found, as she tried desperately to continue to wear her favorite high-heeled pumps; her feet were complaining more and more. Feet that were designed to carry 115 pounds through life find it difficult to bear an additional 20 or 30 pounds.

FURTHER TRICKS FOR PAMPERING her feet: During her lunch hour, she took 10 minutes off to lie down, flat, with her feet slightly elevated on a pillow. This relieved the strain of the morning's standing and walking around the office. The minute she arrived home from the office in the evening, she took off shoes and stockings, drew a tub of tepid water and soaked both feet for five minutes.

Following the lukewarm bath, she held them under rapidly running cold water for a minute, then splashed them lavishly with her favorite cologne which had been cooling in the icebox all day long. Incidentally you don't have to be infanticipating to follow this program. It's efffective for all swollen, burning feet.

A dust with bath powder; and Betty declared that she felt as if she had had an hour's nap, rested, refreshed and ready to tackle her household chores.

Slim Beauties Need Buildup Of Breakfast

By Ida Jean Kain

MANY UNDERWEIGHTS GET off to a low-energy start by slighting breakfast. They claim they are not hungry in the morning . . . Some go so far as to say they cannot force themselves to eat breakfast, declaring it makes them feel ill. But that's all in the mind and nothing but habit.

And girls, there is just this much about it—until you regularly eat a good breakfast, you are never going to turn into a healthy slim girl. Making up for lost calories at dinner won't work . . . you're apt to wind up with too much fat at the waist, and that isn't where you want it.

To be a vital slim girl with curves in the right places, here's your program: Instead of lying in bed until the last possible moment, then dashing like mad, set your alarm 20 to 30 minutes early. This won't cut short sleep . . . if you go to bed a little earlier.

FIFTEEN MINUTES of the time is to be spent eating breakfast . . . a leisurely, good breakfast. The extra time allowance is to prevent rushing in the morning. Don't hurry or make jerky movements. You may think all this is far-fetched, but you'll be surprised how a relaxed start can smooth out your entire day and eliminate the feeling of pressure which puts a person on edge.

AT LUNCH, AGAIN take plenty of time to eat. You'll think of more things to do during that period, but put them out of your mind. The lunch hour for the next 30 days is for eating only. Have anything you like, but order a balanced meal including milk. Or if you carry your lunch, vary the sandwich bread and fillings, fruits and cookies to avoid monotony.

The trick in increasing appetite, as every overweight knows, is to eat just a little more food than normally, for this increases food capacity. Don't try to suddenly step up the amount of food eaten . . . your digestive tract may not be up to it. It's a good plan to have between-meal nourishment, provided this doesn't spoil your appetite for meals.

AND EAT ALL meals at a regular time. Regularity is so important to the thin girl!

It takes planning to gain weight, but it can make such a difference in the way you look and feel.

ANTIQUE PITCHER—This antique glass pitcher will be among the items on sale at the annual bazaar and bridge tea of Georgetown Preparatory School today. The pitcher is part of the collection of old glass gathered by Mrs. Corneal J. Mack, chairman of the event. Mrs. Bartholomew W. Hogan (left) and Mrs. Edward A. Tamm admire the pitcher. The bazaar will benefit the gymnasium fund of the school.

Bazaar, Tea For Georgetown Prep Today

THE ANNUAL bazaar and bridge tea for Georgetown Preparatory School Gymnasium Fund will take place today in the school.

Mrs. Corneal John Mack, general chairman of the committee, and her co-chairman, Mrs. Howard Mitchell, met at the Mayflower to make final bazaar plans. Vice chairmen of the committee, in charge of various features of the afternoon, were also present. They included Mrs. Edward A. Tamm, Mrs. John Reilly, Mrs. Joseph H. Gawler, Mrs. Ralph Cusick, Mrs. Mary D. Lewis, Mrs. Paul M. Stewart, Mrs. Girard Cahill, Mrs. Batholemew Diggins and Mrs. Vito Russo.

Chief feature of the bazaar is a collection of rare antique glass which has been assembled from various parts of the country by Mrs. Mack.

The bazaar will open at 1 p. m., the bridge game at 2 p. m., with tea served at 4 o'clock. Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Edward A. Tamm.

Shoppers Face Lure Of Far-Away Places

By Dorothea Cruger

"FARAWAY PLACES with strange-sounding names" will be providing many lovely things for Christmas givers to place under the traditional tree this year. Available to shoppers are hand-blown glass from Guadalajara, woolen goods from Galashiels, dolls from Torino, all of which provide the charm of the unusual plus a chance to stimulate foreign trade.

A quick tour of a few of the Washington shops which carry these imports reveals several items deserving special notice. There's a nice set of four polished beechwood spoons for $1.50 at Anne's Kitchen, and also here an efficient corkscrew with top handle of polished olive wood that would make a good gift for a man at $4. Both from France.

SCENES FROM FINNISH MYTHOLOGY are etched on these vases from the Glass House. The tall vase shows a woodchopper in a forest in Finland, while the smaller bowl depicts a fisherman harpooning a whale. $12.50 and $9.50 respectively, they are nice individual items for Christmas giving, can be used decoratively as a centerpiece or to hold flowers.

VENTURING a little farther afield, into the world of mail orders, a whole range of British goods has been made available by two American women who, under the name of Gillies-Wells, Ltd., have inaugurated a mail-order catalogue system. This enables one to order plum puddings, old English toffees, hand-loomed tartans, fur gloves and "British walkers," even flower seeds, direct from English manufacturers. To get a catalogue, write Gillies-Wells, Ltd., 36 Grosvenor st., London, W.1.

Linoleum or Asphalt Tile Will Keep Cement Floors From Chilling the Tootsies

DEAR ANNE:

We will be moving shortly to a first-floor apartment with cement floors. There is no basement, but the floors are about 2 feet from the ground. Please advise us as to how we should cover the floors to protect us from dampness and cold. Could linoleum be used with padding in the bedroom? We are trying to be as economical as possible.

MRS. L. J. S., Washington.

Either linoleum or asphalt tile would be a wise and appropriate choice. Asphalt tile is often recommended for use over concrete because of its resiliency. On the other hand, linoleum, with its large unbroken areas, is fine for stopping drafts and would be especially good with the felt padding.

Both come in attractive colors and designs, suited to every room in the house. Since these materials are considered flooring, not floor covering, rugs can be used over them if you wish.

DEAR ANNE:

What is "Brittania ware?" I have an old pitcher made of it and wonder if it is part silver or simply something like pewter. It has designs on the side very much like some I have seen on old silver pieces.

E. L. P., Bethesda, Md.

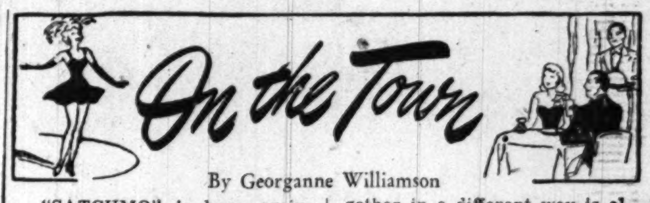
Britannia is a silvery-white metal which is in reality nothing but a super grade of pewter made of tin, copper, and antimony. It was introduced about 1800 and was first cast in molds. To meet the popular demand for it, however, the cheaper method of spinning and stamping was adopted and elaborate designs were used in imitation of the silversmiths. The discovery of electroplating later in the nineteenth century marked the end of its vogue.

DEAR ANNE:

Will you kindly tell me what the best-known method is for cleaning white linen shoes and bag? I bought a cleaning fluid at the shoe store at the time of my purchase, but it is very ineffective.

D. S., Hyattsville, Md.

I don't know that it's the best-known method, but you can use foamy upholstery shampoo for cleaning such articles. This will usually get them cleaner than dry cleaning fluid. However, it shouldn't be attempted where fabric is glued and likely to be loosened by dampness.



By Georganne Williamson

"SATCHMO" is here again. The dean of American jazz is back at the Blue Mirror.

The short, heavily built Louis Armstrong reigns supreme over his group of former band leaders. They improvise, solo as they please; take a walk on the bandstand, stand back to applaud their fellow musicians.

His gold-plated trumpet playing "Sleepy Time Down South" gets the same involuntary response from the audience as from musicians. Audiences, in fact, no matter how far from the sleepy South. From the Scandinavian countries to Italy, he is a star.

To Europeans, he is the personification of American jazz. When Armstrong went abroad in 1932, he packed London's Paladium with jazz devotees from many nations. George V paid him the compliment of attending in person. Louis repaid it with a grinning bow to the royal box. "This one's for you, Rex," he said, and the band went into a hot piece of New Orleans jazz.

"Satchmo" learned his trumpet technique in a waif's home, where he was taken for welcoming the New Year 1913—with his father's pistol. "Jazz and I grew up side by side when we were poor," he says.

On leaving the "home," he got a job playing on a Mississippi River boat and his fame spread up and down the river. When he returned to New Orleans, Jack Teagarden was there to meet him. Trombonist Teagarden was later to become a famous bandleader, and then to leave his band and join the "All Stars," as the Armstrong group is called.

The group also includes Earl (Father) Hines, piano; Cozy Cole, drums; Barney Bigard, clarinet; Arvell Shaw, bass fiddle, and Velma Middleton, vocalist. This is their second week at the Blue Mirror.

TWO BROTHERS, Frank and Tony Caligure, are back together again at Caligure's restaurant on Connecticut ave. above Dupont Circle. With Don McRoberts, they have joined forces as they did when the restaurant was first started.

Cuisine is Frank's business. Putting the same Italian ingredients—tomatoes, garlic, olive oil, cheese, peppers, etc.—together in a different way is always fascinating to him. "Most creations are my own," he says, "more or less from studying the foods. You know, it's all in how you put in the herbs and spices. Also, I make all my own sauces and my own paste (noodles, spaghetti, macaroni, etc.)."

Caligure's garlic bread is delectable. The antipasto shows the imagination of Chef Frank, as does the Italian salad,

HOW'S THE PERMANENT LIGHTING
AT YOUR HOUSE?

Some folks call it "minimum" lighting because it doesn't include lamps or special fixtures And it's always switch-controlled!

Let's take a look at these basics:

Living rooms need one fixed light source (ceiling, cove, or valance). Bedrooms and Hallways: one ceiling light. Dining areas: one light above table. Kitchens: one light over each work center. Stairways call for lighting at both top and bottom. All closets over three feet deep need one permanent light. So does every 150 ft. of enclosed porch space.

If your house doesn't offer this switch-ahead safety it's only wise to see that it does!

Our Bill Makes an Item Out of 0000

At first I thought it was just another one of those cleverly worded Give-Away letters:

"Seven-month-old cat wishes position as child's companion; will also do light mouse work. Overlook 0000."

I did a double take on that phone number, and wearily began dialing to check on it. "Somebody's idea of humor, no doubt," I grouched.

"This is Hartsfield," answered the voice at the other end.

"Johnny Hartsfield?" I asked. "The guy who plays the organ at the skating rink over in Alexandria?"

"Used to. I had to quit," he replied. "I was hearing skates in my sleep. Now I'm starting an organ program on WPIK."

I introduced myself and explained that I was just making a routine check of his phone number for the Give-Away item he'd sent in. "The give-away has already been gave," he told me. "I found a home for it."

"Okay," I said, "so I won't run it. But what's the story on that phone number of yours?"

"It's positively unique," he assured me. "When I got a phone several years ago, they assigned me a number that people called night and day thinking it belonged to somebody else. I complained so loud and so long that the phone company finally had to give me something else—and since it was in the middle of the war-time shortage, they had to create a number for me. And this is it."

"Don't you get a lot of nuisance calls?" I asked.

"The phone company foresaw that. Instead of a bell, they put a light on my phone. The screwballs who call me in the middle of the night get no answer—unless I happen to be up, and see the light."

I checked with the phone company. "It's true," said a spokesman, raising his right hand heavenward, "but, believe me, never again. He's got the first and the last of the four-zero numbers."

In case you're interested, the telephone people hesitate to issue any number in which all four digits are the same.

"You won't believe this," I was told, "but those numbers are so easy to dial that people usually make a mistake in dialing them."

FLOWERS FOR A LADY

Real Estate Man H. A. Willard of 1416 F st. nw. got on a bus on Connecticut ave. nw. the other day, one arm lugging a big sack of groceries and the other filled with flowers.

He eventually worked his way to the back of the bus without losing too much of the bouquet, and took up his station at a strategic point where he wouldn't fall far if the bus were to make a sudden start or stop.

"Let me hold those flowers for you," suggested a woman who was seated nearby. The startled standee politely declined.

"Oh, come on," said the woman. "You need one free hand to hold on with—and besides, I adore flowers and I'd love to hold them."

Willard handed over the flowers, still somewhat surprised to encounter such a neighborly spirit in a crowded rush-hour bus. In fact, he was still thinking about it yesterday, when he dropped in to see me.

"I wish you'd tell that woman that if she'll identify herself to you there'll be a real bouquet of flowers waiting for her at the Willard Hotel florist stand," he said. "That's one of the most neighborly gestures I've seen hereabouts since Washington got big enough for long pants."

He ought to know. The Willard family ain't exactly a bunch of squatters that drifted into town yesterday.

GOOD QUESTION

"I have a question about your item reminding us that the Virginia State law requires motorists moving in both directions to stop when a school bus stops," writes Dan Brown of 310 James st., Falls Church, Va.

"Some commercial buses in Arlington County serve as school buses during certain hours of the day, but are marked 'School Bus' in front only. There is nothing on rear of these vehicles to warn a motorist that they're carrying school children.

"How is the motorist supposed to know, so that he can obey the law?"

Would County officials care to make some answer?

TURNABOUT?

And there I would relax
If Uncle Sam would take my pay
And just give me the tax.

WHAT A MAN!

Gretchen Hood of 1226 Fairmont st. nw. reports that in a hotel elevator the other day she heard a fellow passenger revive the nifty: "What a pain in the neck that guy is; he's the only person I know who can strut sitting down."

LOOKS LIKE WE'RE BACK ON A SALMON PATTY DIET

The lady at our house has been campaigning for a raise in her table allowance, citing the price of meat in support of her position. I didn't take her too seriously until I read yesterday's front page story about a cow being auctioned off at Frederick, Md., for $11,000.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Duff Presents New GOP Outlook

By Drew Pearson

Duff

HARRISBURG, Pa.—The State of Pennsylvania, which has sent some freak Senators to Washington in the past, this year can't very well go wrong. It has two good men to pick from: Gov. James Duff, Republican, and Senator Francis Myers, Democrat.

However, if the tremendous swing which nominated Duff last May continues, he will be the new Senator in Washington next January.

This—if it happens—will mark something more than just a new Senator from Pennsylvania. For Duff represents a new philosophy inside the Republican party which it needs more of if it is ever going to recapture the White House. He also is a man who is sure to be considered a presidential candidate if he wins on November 7.

When Duff was nominated to the Senate last spring he received letters from all over the country in this vein: "Thank God for a change in the Republican leadership. We're Democrats, but we would vote Republican, if the Republicans offered something new."

What they referred to is the fact that Duff has not tried to tear down all the New Deal legislation FDR built up. Nor has he based his campaign on the Senator McCarthy bogey that Communists lurk under State Department desks. Instead, he has followed a policy not unlike that of Governor Warren of California of taking the best of the New Deal program and adding some features of his own—cleaning up one of the chief rivers of his State, reforming the insane asylums, improving the schools, and putting the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association in its place.

For years, Pennsylvania was ruled by the barons of coal, steel, gas and oil. What they wanted, they largely got. And the normal GOP Governor in Harrisburg usually did their bidding. Governor Duff, however, reversed this, and in so doing won the undying enmity of that insatiable disciple of the high tariff, Joe Grundy, plus all his fellow manufacturers. They did their best to defeat Duff at the primaries and, believe it or not, they are now conspiring with a Democrat, Senator Myers, to try to defeat Duff in November.

Belligerent Crusader

Jim Duff is big, barrel-chested, redheaded, rides horseback at the age of 67 two or three times a week, works late hours, reads till 1 or 2 a. m., and drinks water incessantly. If it wasn't for his age, he would be excellent presidential timber, though in these days, with MacArthur 71, General Marshall 70, and Harry Truman one year younger than Duff, he can't be counted out.

Duff has inherited some of his crusading belligerency from his father, a Presbyterian minister in Westmoreland County, near Carnegie. His father supported five children on an income of $3700, and sent all of them to college. When Jim Duff was a boy, he remembers an oil company drilling wells opposite his father's farm and offering to buy the Duff place—for a song. His father refused.

Instead, he drilled eight wells on his own land. But when he could not get the oil company to buy his gas, the elder Duff simply uncorked a well, let the gas gush out, thus lowering the pressure in the wells across the line.

After that the oil company came to terms.

That was when Jim Duff got his first taste of bucking big business, and he has been bucking the barons most of his life.

His next brush came when he was attorney general of Pennsylvania and closed the legal loopholes permitting dumping in Pennsylvania rivers. Later, as Governor, he started the almost revolutionary project of dredging the Schuylkill River.

For years the coal companies along the river had been dumping their waste coal and culm into the Schuylkill until its channel was choked to a height of 18 feet. This is now being dredged out of the river, the channel restored, and about one third of the coal reclaimed.

At first, business was opposed. But the other day, Revelle Brown, president of the Reading Railroad, told the Governor: "They've been rapping you over the Schuylkill River, but I think it's one of the best things the State has ever done."

Another Duff project was to clean up the State asylums, long one of the worst scandals in Pennsylvania. The Byberry Asylum near Philadelphia was so filthy that holes in the floor were used as toilets, and inmates were chained to the walls. But with the help of former Supreme Court Justice Owen Roberts, Life Magazine, and a group of Quakers, Byberry has now been completely renovated. And today Pennsylvania is ahead of most States in its care of the insane.

Former Bull-Mooser

Duff is a former Bull-Mooser, was a delegate to the Teddy Roosevelt convention in 1912, along with another eminent Pennsylvanian, Harold Ickes. His disrespect for big business was acquired both from Teddy and his father.

"The general run of people," he says, "are not interested in making the rich richer and the poor poorer."

There is an interesting contrast between the life of Jim Duff and that of Joe Hanley, lieutenant governor of New York. When Duff was urged to run for governor, he also pleaded lack of funds. But a friend argued:

"You can get two retainers for $20,000 and $15,000 that will supplement your State salary."

The friend mentioned two Pennsylvania utility companies for whom Duff had worked in the past. Unlike Hanley, however, Duff replied:

"Not me. When I work for my State or my Government, I don't take money from an outside source."

After conferring with Mrs. Duff, however, they decided to curtail their domestic budget and thus run for office.
